$1000-a-Day Gamblers Beginning to Close Down

Numbers Players, Racing Addicts Finding It Harder To Place Wagers

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Although the special grand jury probe of gambling is five days away, it is already having a significant result on this area's gambling.

A feeling of caution has replaced the air of indifference with which the gambling fraternity first greeted the investigation. It is becoming increasingly harder to place a numbers or horse race bet in some sections of the city.

A number of the more "timid" gamblers have already suspended operations, while others were reported "tightening up" their business arrangements to prevent "leaks."

Reports indicate several of the "medium bracket" numbers people—in the $1000 a day class—have closed down completely. But in some sections of Washigton, numbers playing still is reported to be flourishing openly.

Gambling, in general, however, is far from "closed down" in Washington. The "heat is on" to a certain extent, more as a "precaution" than anything else, according to reports in gambling circles.

Observers believe that one major factor responsible for the sudden caution among gamblers was the announcement last week that the United States Attorney's office has the names of 138 "bigger gamblers of Washington."

Yesterday and Monday there were conflicting reports as to which of the two top forms of gambling here—numbers or horse race betting—were being most affected by the "tightening up."

However, one thing was certain: it was far easier to make a numbers "play" than to place a horse bet; many of the handbook operators just were not answering their phones.

At the District Court building, United States Attorney George Morris Fay and his two top assistants in the probe, John W. Fihelly and Charles B. Murray, yesterday were sifting through the information they will present to the special grand jury after it is impaneled next Monday.

At Police Headquarters, Lieut. Roy Blick and the special squad assigned to him were gathering information on addresses for the list of 138 gamblers, which is now in Fay's hands. One member of this special squad, separate from Blick's vice squad, is Detective Sergt. Paul Clarke, formerly of the police raiding team of Clarke and Ogle.

Veterans Battle Pickets Protesting 'Iron Curtain' Film

New York, May 11 (AP).—Fist fights broke out tonight between pickets protesting the showing of the movie, "The Iron Curtain," and Catholic war veterans who set up a counter picketline.

Police said the clash occurred shortly after 11 p. m. in front of the Roxy Theater, where the film opens tomorrow.

Placard-carrying pickets began marching in front of the theater about 11 p. m., police said. They identified themselves as members of the New York Committee Against War Propaganda.

Police said the Catholic veterans had been waiting in the area since about 7 p. m.

Jews Take Arab Road Base; Farouk to Battle Zionist State

Only Force Can End Strife in Palestine, King of Egypt Says

By Walter Collins
(World copyright, 1948, by the United Press)

Cairo, May 11 (U.P.).—King Farouk I, 28-year-old Egyptian monarch, declared today that he "cannot and will not tolerate a Zionist state in the Near East, close to Egypt's borders."

Farouk, who has made repeated efforts to reach agreement with other Arab leaders on the Palestine problem, is expected to play a vital role in the future of the Holy Land after the British mandate expires at 12:01 a. m. Saturday.

One question submitted by this correspondent was:

"Does His Majesty have any suggestions or ideas as to what would be the best way to settle the strife now raging between the Arabs and the Jews in Palestine?"

The King's reply:

"It is the general belief that force will be necessary to deal with the Zionists. This is the only method they understand. However, it may be hoped that eventually—and perhaps at a not too distant date—wiser counsels will prevail among the Jews and they will realize their mistake in estranging all of the Arab nations,

Not a Shot Heard In Jerusalem Under Fourth Day of Truce

Jerusalem, May 11 (AP).—The Jewish army said today its fighters had captured Beit Mahsir, main base for Arab forces in the battle for control of the vital Jerusalem-Tel Aviv highway.

The Arabs launched a counter-attack in Bab el Wad Gorge, through which the highway winds.

The Jews said they were not only trying to secure the road but a belt of the Judean mountain terrain five miles deep on either side.

Haganah said it opened the road yesterday for the first time in three weeks. No convoys traveled the route because of the fighting still raging in the surrounding hills, a Jewish Agency source said. A previous statement of convoy movement was "premature and unauthorized," this source added.

As the fighting raged in the hills to the west, the Holy City went into its fourth day under a cease-fire order with not a single shot fired.

The United Nations Truce Commission made up of the American, British and Belgian consuls general issued a public appeal to continue the cease-fire status "to save the city which is dear to the whole world."

Top Welfare Post Given To Tramburg

Industrial School Chief to Get $9975 As Department Head

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

John W. Tramburg, 35-year-old superintendent of the Industrial Home School, yesterday was named director of the Department of Public Welfare by the Commissioners.

His appointment to the $9975-a-year post ended a deadlock of nearly four months between the Board of Public Welfare, which nominates the director, and the Commissioners, who must appoint him. The director's post has been vacant since the death of Ray Huff last December.

The nomination of Acting Director Raymond Clapp by the Welfare Board February 19 was rejected by the Commissioners April 20.

The Commissioners said Tramburg's appointment will become effective as soon as he takes the oath of office. Edgar Morris, Board of Public Welfare chairman, in a letter to the Commissioners, said the board had nominated Tramburg "by a vote of eight to one." Clapp had been the board's unanimous first choice.

Tramburg, whose salary at the Industrial Home School is $6144 a year, said he was "pleased" that the board and the Commissioners "thought highly enough" of his services to name him.

Britain Again Refuses To Quit Honduras

London (Wednesday) May 12 (U.P.).—Britain formally rejected again today a Guatemalan request that British troops and ships be removed from British Honduras.

The Foreign Office, replying to a Guatemalan note of March 24, said Britain would not discuss an evacuation "unless and until a competent body such as an international court" might question Britain's title to the Central American colony.

Sen. Overton Shows Slight Improvement

The condition of Senator John H. Overton (D., La.), who has been seriously ill at Bethesda Naval Hospital, was reported as slightly improved last night.

He underwent an operation last week for an intestinal obstruction and suffered a relapse Monday, but spent a "comfortable day yesterday," a doctor said.

Foes Battle House Vote On Home Rule

4 D. C. Committee Members Attack Bill at Hearing

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Foes of the Washington home rule bill launched new attacks on the measure yesterday in an attempt to persuade the House Rules Committee to keep it from the House floor.

Rules Chairman Leo Allen (R., Ill.) gave a boost to the hopes of home rule backers when he declared "Personally I'd like to see the bill go out to the floor."

After hearing nearly three hours of testimony, the Rules Committee discussed the bill briefly in executive session, but deferred action. Allen said he would call a session early next week to act.

Attack by D. C. Members

Joining in yesterday's attack were Representatives Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.), Oren Harris (D., Ark.), James C. Davis (D., Ga.) and Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.), all members of the House District Committee. District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen testified anew for the bill.

The home rule plan, which would give the District an elected city council, school board, and a nonvoting delegate in the House, has cleared the District Committee by a 14-to-8 vote. The Rules Committee now has the decision on whether the bill is to reach the House floor with some chance for passage, and how it is to be handled there.

Opposition witnesses yesterday centered their attacks on the election features of the bill. These are intended to make one-year residence in the District the basic voting qualification.

Letter About Bill

The purpose is to let residents take part in their local affairs—and not to take from them any voting rights they might have in a State where they are legally domiciled. In voting for the District delegate in Congress, however, the requirement would be not residence, but legal domicile in the District; so that those who vote elsewhere while living here could not vote for the delegate.

Against this plan, Harris and O'Hara threw a heavy barrage with disclosure of a letter written about it by Dr. George B. Galloway, staff director for the House District Home Rule Subcommittee. Both witnesses drew sharp attention to the second of the following numbered reasons advanced in support of the plan. Text of the letter,

'Plot to Overthrow Government'

Curbs on U. S. Communists Again Urged by House Group

By the Associated Press

A new demand for curbs on American Communists was made yesterday by a House committee, which formally accused them of planning the violent overthrow of the government.

"What the Chinese or Greek Communists are doing today is what the American Communists plan to do tomorrow," said the committee on un-American Activities in a 160-page report.

The committee prodded the executive branch for "vigorous enforcement" of existing laws to quell subversive activities, and declared the Administration has failed to understand "the potentialities of Communist agents within our nation."

The report also was an argument for the enactment of new anti-Communist legislation.

It cited the recent bloody outbreak in Bogota and said that Communists form a greater percentage of the population of the United States than is the case in Colombia.

The Russian Communist Party, it said, is the model for the American brand, and domestic Communists now and always have been under the direction of an international Communist organization

18-25 Draft Cleared by Senate Group

Racial Segregation Threatens Chances On Floor; Truman Gets Plane Measure

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Draft legislation — calling for the induction of 18-through-25-year-old men into the military forces—was approved by a badly split Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday.

Two-year "hitches" would have to be served by the 19-through-25-year-old group, while limited numbers of 18-year-olders would be called for one year's training and then go into the reserve. The draft would last five years under the recommended bill.

The group voted 7 to 2 to send the measure to the floor as the so-called 70-group-air-force bill cleared its last congressional barrier. With the voice-vote consent of both houses, the $3,198,000,000 plane-building fund was sent to the White House for President Truman's signature.

A last-moment fight over racial segregation delayed committee action on the draft and threatened its chances on the Senate floor.

Amendment Rejected

Senator Richard Russell (D., Ga.) proposed an amendment giving every inductee the right to insist that he serve only with members of his own race. He said that President Truman has indicated he intends to abolish segregation in the armed services and that his proposal would bar forced intermingling.

When the amendment was voted down 7 to 4, Russell declared himself against the bill. Three other Southern Senators—Harry Byrd (D., Va.), Lister Hill (D., Ala.) and Burnet Maybank (D., S. C.)—who supported Russell's proposal—voted "present" on final approval of the bill.

Senator George A. Wilson (R., Iowa) also voted "no" on final approval.

Byrd Opposes "Blending"

Byrd issued a statement later saying he did not support the measure, because he is opposed to its provisions "blending" the draft and universal military training.

Maybank served notice he was going to press the segregation fight on the floor, and strongly implied he would filibuster against the bill in its present form.

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) made public the text of the committee bill and said it would be formally reported to the Senate today. It contained two surprises:

1. Eighteen-year-old youths would be allowed to volunteer for induction for one year's training. Those accepted—and defense officials say that 161,000 of the one-year trainees could be taken next year under the budget—would be exempt from the regular two-year draft.

Few Without Consent

Previously, Senator Gurney had said that the one-year men would be chosen by lot. Committee experts said that defense officials testified that very few if any 18-year-olders would have to be called without their consent under the plan—though if the 161,000 quota is not met the bill permits their induction.

(2) Veterans who served at least three months between Pearl Harbor and VJ-Day would be entirely exempt from service in peace-time. Former GIs with less than 18 months' service, put in after the "shooting war" ended, would have to enroll in the National Guard or

U. S. Denies Proposing Parley With Russia to Settle Issues; Policy Reaffirmed by Truman

Plan Offered For Military Aid to Europe

Senate Committee Gets Vandenberg Resolution Which Would Clear Way

American military help could go to a Western European Union under the terms of a draft resolution which Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) proposed yesterday.

The Senator offered it as a "working paper" at a three-hour meeting of his Foreign Relations Committee with the understanding that the committee would discuss it further today. Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett was present at the meeting and approved it for the Administration.

The resolution has been "in the works" for weeks, with the double object of (1) giving reassurance and encouragement to western Europe, and (2) dealing with the flood of resolutions now pending in Congress for reforming or transforming the United Nations.

Ask Charter Conference

While Vandenberg was proposing it yesterday, leaders of the United World Federalists, a private organization with big and ardent public support, were pleading with the House Foreign Affairs Committee for an early conference to revise the Charter, and for a federation of the non-Soviet world if Russia refused to agree.

Vandenberg's resolution contained no direct mention of the new European union, and at first glance dealt with nothing but a "strengthening" of the United Nations. Read more carefully, however, it was a legislative umbrella under which support for a Western Union, and many other steps could be undertaken within the Charter's present terms.

If approved by the committee, it will be introduced as a Senate resolution of advice to the President. Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee indicated that the House would have a resolution of its own, perhaps in different terms.

Six-Point Program

The Vandenberg resolution would call upon the President to pursue a six-point program as follows:

"1. Voluntary agreement to remove the veto from all questions involving pacific settlements of international disputes and situations, and from the admission of new members.

"2. Progressive development of regional and other collective arrangements for individual and collective self-defense in accordance with the purposes, principles and provisions of the Charter.

"3. Association of the United States through constitutional process with such regional and other collective arrangements as are based on self-help and mutual aid, and as affect its national security.

"4. Contributing to the maintenance of peace by making clear its determination to exercise the right of individual or collective self-defense under Article 51 should any

Bewildered Britain Feels Note Exchange Is Blunder

By Don Cook

London, May 11 (NYHT).—Surprise, bewilderment, irritation and indignation marked Whitehall reaction today to the exchange of notes between the United States and Soviet Russia.

At 11:30 o'clock this morning a Foreign Office spokesman said it was too early to comment. At 12:30 this was amended to include a flat statement that Britain was not consulted on the American note, knew nothing about the exchange until it was released by the Russians last night, and had as yet received no official texts from the United States.

As the day wore on, the Foreign Office temperature rose perceptibly. The statement from President Truman, which reached London this evening along with official Washington reaction, did little to calm British irritation at what is openly regarded as a blunder that can cause considerable unrest in Europe.

In fact, there was some feeling here that Britain and France were not consulted first on the note because of a fear that their objections would be so strong no such approach to the Russians could be made, and that Mr. Truman went ahead therefore on his own.

Unofficially, here are some of the points which the British are raising:

1. They see the Russian "acceptance" as an attempt to drive a wedge between the United States and Britain, by assuming the exclusion of the British from any talks.

2. They say that there is little fresh in either the American or Russian policy statements, and therefore there seems to be little basis for fresh talks anyway.

3. They are concerned that the note might be taken as suddenly opening American policy to a phase of appeasement which would cause unrest at a time when the British in particular are working desperately to knit Europe closer together.

4. They feel that Russia has very cleverly seized a propaganda initiative from the United States at a time when gains against communism are just beginning to turn the tide.

5. The whole affair is certain to cause Mr. Bevin more trouble with the left wing of the Labor Party when he addresses the party's annual conference next week.

American Officials Embarrassed by Moscow Broadcast Of 'Acceptance'

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Official Washington was embarrassed, confused and annoyed yesterday by the Moscow announcement that Russia had accepted an American offer for "discussion and settlement" of Soviet-American differences.

Elsewhere, in many foreign capitals, the news stirred hopes of a break in the tension of recent months. But officials here hurried to explain that there wasn't any American offer at all.

President Truman promptly issued a statement saying that "no new departure in American policy" was involved in the message which Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith delivered to Foreign Minister Molotov on May 4.

President Stresses Two Points

The message made two main points, the President said—the first, that American foreign policy would be vigorously and firmly carried out, with the overwhelming support of the American people; the second, that it has no hostile or aggressive designs whatsoever against Russia.

All this was part of the effort, which Secretary Marshall foreshadowed last week, to rid the Soviet leaders of their "misconceptions" about American policy.

But the Ambassador's message, as made public by the State Department yesterday, ended on another note which the President did not mention. This was the statement that "as far as the United States is concerned, the door is always wide open for full discussion and the composing of our differences."

Thought Expressed Before

The same thought had been expressed on half a dozen occasions by President Truman and Secretary Marshall, notably in the President's message to Congress on March 17 and in the Secretary's testimony to the House Foreign Affairs Committee last Wednesday. But never until May 4, according to a State Department informant yesterday, had it been stated directly to Molotov by the American Ambassador.

Last Sunday, May 9, Molotov picked it up and apparently accepted it as a full-fledged offer of discussions. He received the Ambassador again and told him that the Soviet government "agrees to the proposal to proceed . . . to the discussion and settlement of differences existing between us."

He then went on to justify Soviet policies and to complain of American political, economic and military policies throughout the world. He spoke of American "intervention in the domestic affairs of other states," of the "progressive development of the network of naval and air bases in all parts of the globe," and of the formation

Trains Rolling But Dispute Is Unsettled

Union Heads Seek Settlement; Royall's Authority Not Clear

By the Associated Press

The railroad highballed as usual yesterday, but the rail labor dispute, snatched from the strike stage in the nick of time, remained unsettled.

Heads of the three unions involved paid a 20-minute call on Army Secretary Kenneth Royall, bent on seeking a settlement now that the rail system is under government control by President Truman's order.

Afterward, they said Royall told them he hasn't authority yet to deal with them but "will get in touch with us" again in a few days.

Secretary Royall told reporters earlier the Army was not disposed to enter negotiations with the unions for the time being.

Royall said he was choosing a union-management committee to advise him. Possibly this group could help toward a settlement. It was learned the group may have three members, one representing labor, one management, and the third the public.

The extent of Royall's authority to negotiate with the unions was expected to be clarified in a day or two.

Predicts Quick Settlement

A quick settlement was predicted by M. W. Clement, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Clement told reporters at the Pennsy's annual stockholders meeting at Philadelphia that he believed a settlement will come before May 19.

That is the date Federal Justice T. Alan Goldsborough set for a hearing here on the Government's plea for an injunction to replace the temporary restraining order granted by the justice Monday night to stop the strike.

It was a question of bowing to the court order or facing possible heavy fines for the three union chieftains—Alvanley Johnston of the Locomotive Engineers, David Robertson of the Firemen and En-

Dewey, Stassen To Debate on Communism

New Yorker Accepts Bid Sponsored by Oregon Committee

Bend, Oreg., May 11 (AP).—Oregon's Republican presidential primary battle moved toward a dramatic climax today with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey agreeing to meet Harold E. Stassen in a radio debate on the issue of communism.

The New York Governor, barnstorming Oregon for the State's May 21 presidential preference, accepted an invitation to tangle with the Minnesotan under the auspices of the Multnomah (Portland) County Republican Committee.

The date was yet undetermined. But less than two weeks remain before Oregon casts its ballots in the last popular primary election before the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia next June 21.

Stassen is due in Oregon this week ahead of schedule to meet Dewey's bid for Oregon's 12 convention votes. The political prestige of both candidates is at stake in the spectacular Oregon contest.

Dewey accepted the face-to-face debate in a wire replying to Dr. Peter H. Odegard, president of Reed College of Portland. Dr. Odegard had offered the college as an impartial debate forum.

The New Yorker set the issue—"Shall the Communist Party be outlawed?" He suggested a Nation-wide broadcast.

It is an issue on which he and his Minnesota rival are at bitter odds.

In his town-to-town campaigning, Dewey has hammered at Stassen's original proposal to outlaw communism. Dewey has demanded that it be kept in the open and under control.

Outlaw Communism, Stassen Urges U. S.

Chrysler Strike Starts Today as Mediation Fails

Detroit, May 11 (AP).—Federal mediators tonight admitted failure in their attempts to head off a strike of 75,000 Chrysler Corp. employes set for Wednesday morning.

"Our efforts at mediation have terminated," said Conciliator Leo Kotin. "We have been advised by the union that there will be a strike at 10 a. m. (EDT)."

The CIO United Auto Workers had set that hour for a walkout in 16 Chrysler plants in three States, unless a settlement had been reached.

Governor Sigler said late today that if Chrysler workers do not obey a State law requiring a vote before a strike, he would "expect the prosecutor of Wayne County to do his duty."

Norman Matthews, head of the UAW's Chrysler department, told a UAW conference tonight that, "since Chrysler has forced us into the position of striking, we will give them the damndest strike they have ever seen."

To Avoid Civil Rights Fight

South's Negro College Bill Held Due for Senate Tabling

In order to avoid a long and red-hot battle over civil rights, the Senate appears likely today to pigeonhole a bill to give Southern States the right to join in establishing Negro universities.

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), who insists congressional approval of such a regional arrangement is not required, made the motion to recommit the bill to committee.

Several Southerners have said if they can accept the legal theory advanced by Morse, former dean of the University of Oregon Law School, they will not waste the time of the Senate to consider this bill.

But if the motion to recommit is defeated, then a full-scale battle over civil rights which may indefinitely delay all other legislation is in the making.

Morse has an amendment which would ban white-Negro segregation in such regional colleges.

Southerners claim the votes to defeat this amendment. This would invade States rights, they claim. Also it would negate the whole purpose of the compact which is to give Negroes equal but not joint education with whites.

If this amendment is defeated, however, Morse threatens to bring up President Truman's whole civil rights program one amendment at a time. The Oregon Senator said he wants his own Republican Party to express itself on anti-lynching FEPC, Poll tax, etc.

Morse told the Senate in making his motion to recommit that congressional approval of the educational compact is not required by the Constitution, and the committee should give the bill more study.

He contended that one reason Southerners want the compact approved is as an aid in litigation over civil rights.

"It would be very beneficial to have this compact approved by Congress for use later in arguments before the Supreme Court," the Oregonian said.

Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.) told the Senate the committee had not thoroughly explored the compact and he would vote to recommit.

Senator Kenneth Wherry (R., Nebr.), acting Republican floor leader, told reporters he planned to hold the Senate rather late today in an effort to get a vote on recommital. He called it the first test for the bill and said the Senate might as well find out one time as another what it is going to do about it.

A half dozen or more Senators plan to talk today, including two

Antitrust Law By-Passed

House Votes Bill Legalizing Railroads' Rate Agreements

By the United Press

The House last night passed the so-called Bulwinkle bill to exempt from the antitrust laws rate agreements made by associations of railroads, or other common carriers.

The Senate has passed a similar measure, and it and the House version will have to be merged.

Opponents of the House act charged it would open the way to a giant monopoly in the transportation industry.

Representative John H. Folger (D., N. C.) described it as "the most dangerous piece of legislation to be offered in this Congress in many years."

Representative Alfred L. Bulwinkle (D., N. C.), the bill's sponsor, said there was nothing mysterious about it. He said the measure merely frees from fear of prosecution railroads, truck lines and other carriers which, because of the nature of their business, must work together in rate associations or bureaus.

Representative Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.), said the act's real purpose is to toss out of court the State of Georgia's antitrust suit against Southern and Eastern railroads. The action now is before the United States Supreme Court.

The House defeated, 97 to 38, an amendment by Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) to underwrite suits against the railroads by the Justice Department and by the State of Georgia.

New Welfare Director Is an Ex-Farm Boy, Teacher, Probation Officer, Navy Man

When John W. Tramburg steps into the tough job of director of the Public Welfare Department, he steps right into another problem.

He'll have to find a place to live, and as Tramburg himself said, "Oh, brother!"

Now living on the grounds of the Industrial Home School, where he has served as superintendent since early in 1946, Tramburg has no illusions about the difficulties he will face in his new post.

But with the zeal and vigor of his 35 years, he probably will pitch in as director just as he has pitched in on every other job he's held.

Born on Wisconsin Farm

Starting life on a dairy farm in Columbia County, Wis., Tramburg attended grade and high school in Fall River, Wis. Then, as he put it, "I grew whiskers, haired out and went to college." After a semester at Carroll College, Waukesha, Tramburg finished at State Teachers College, White Water, Wis.

He taught high school at Norwalk, Wis., two years, leaving to go to a Civilian Conservation Corps camp at Rusk, Wis., as educational adviser and recreation director.

Then Tramburg went to the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration, as a candidate for a master's degree. He still doesn't have the degree because he wrote a thesis on child labor legislation and somebody came along and wrote a thesis on the same subject for a Ph. D., which was submitted first.

Was Probation Officer

From 1939 to 1942, Tramburg was probation officer for Judge Fay Bentley. In that year he went to the Industrial Home School as assistant superintendent, leaving to enter the Navy in December, 1942.

Tipping the scales at 210, Tramburg, an even 6-footer, has dark hair and light brown eyes. As would be expected, he is an "outdoor man," participates in sports, likes to fish and hunt.

But there is another side to Tramburg. He imparts confidence to those who work with him, and seems to apply to himself that old axiom, "Hard work never hurt anybody."

Married, Tramburg has two children, Georgene Lou, 5, and Robert, 1.

Dewey Accepts Bid to Debate On Communism With Stassen

the aggressive Communist Party activities stemming from Russia," the Republican presidential candidate said in a prepared address.

"Neither do I believe that we should get jittery and say that war is inevitable and rush to turn America into a militaristic nation."

Stassen was here for a party rally. He had planned to continue deeper into Dixie in his quest for Southern votes at the Republican National Convention.

He said on arrival here by plane, however, that he was changing his plans and would fly tonight to Portland, Oreg., and a radio debate with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, also a presidential candidate.

Aggression by Infiltration

In taking the offensive against communism, Stassen went on, "We should recognize that the principal means of aggression of the Russian Communists is through an infiltration process. In Czechoslovakia, in Poland, and in country after country it has been demonstrated the Communists take every legal right and privilege and recognize none of the corresponding obligations and moralities. They use the Communist Party organizations, under orders from Moscow, to carry out their foreign policy and to weaken the rights and liberties of others."

Turning to the South, he said that now is the best opportunity in 80 years to develope a real two-party system in Dixie.

On the subject of prepardeness, Stassen described America's military as "too weak." He said he believed "the combined proposal of the President for both universal military training and selective service goes too far."

He suggested conferences among leaders of education, labor and churches to develop a manpower program.

'Best News Since V-J Day,' Dewey Says

Ontario, Ore., May 11 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today called proposed settlement of Soviet-American differences "the best news since V-J day."

But at the same time he warned that the United States must "deal from strength" if it is to accomplish more than simply accord communism "a temporary setback in its 100-year-old goal of world domination."

Dewey flew here from Bend in a resumption of his campaign against Harold E. Stassen in Oregon's Republican presidential primary May 21.

His voice still hoarse from laryngitis which kept him confined to his room over the weekend, Dewey appraised the prospects of U. S.-Soviet consultation before an open air rally this afternoon on the high school athletic grounds.

"If they (the Soviets) mean it," he declared, "it is the best news since VJ-Day. If they don't mean it, well—it will be just what has happened about once every six months."

But, this time, he added, American diplomacy must be prosecuted "with vigor and skill" to avoid "any repetition of the tragic mistakes" of Yalta, Potsdam, Teheran and the Moscow conferences. "I hope that we have finally learned as a nation that you cannot buy peace by appeasement. All you do is make trouble."

Truman Will Get 6 Wyoming Votes; GOP Uninstructed

Casper, Wyo., May 11 (AP).—Wyoming's Democrats have earmark d their six national convention votes for President Truman, but the State's nine-vote Republican delegation will go uninstructed to Philadelphia.

Those decisions were reached yesterday at simultaneous State conventions of the parties.

The Democratic delegation was instructed to support Mr. Truman for President and Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) for Vice President until released by the candidates.

The nine Republican delegates include supporters for Harold Stassen, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), aspirants for the presidential nomination.

Ted Crippa of Rock Springs was elected Republican national committeeman to succeed Frank O. Horton of Saddlestring, who is retiring because of ill health. Mrs. Katherine Meloney of Basin defeated Mrs. Doris K. Reynolds of Sheridan, incumbent, for national committeewoman.

Trace S. McCraken, Cheyenne publisher, and Mrs. Susan Quealy of Kemmerer were reelected to the Democratic National Committee.

Arlington League Says It Won't Campaign

Arlington's Better Government League will refrain from backing a candidate in next fall's county board election if both political parties follow suit, BGL Chairman Malcolm Miller said yesterday.

County Democratic leaders said they recently acted to hold a primary August 3 for the one board seat to prevent the league from "taking over" the race in case Republicans and Democrats withdrew.

Democratic Committee Chairman Harrison Mann yesterday rapped Miller's statement as "a little late."

Stassen Faces 2 'Unknowns' In West Va.

Harold E. Stassen yesterday found himself running against two virtual "unknowns" in West Virginia's GOP presidential primaries, but his managers watched the returns with all the interest of a major run-off.

The primaries are not binding on West Virginia's 16 delegates to the Republican convention, chosen in the same election. These will go to the convention uninstructed.

But the Stassen people say a West Virginia victory for the Minnesotan, even over little known opposition, will help him in his fight for the nomination by adding another State to his primary string.

Challenges Taft, Dewey

Stassen flew to Charleston on the last day for filing, April 10, and personally entered the primary. He issued a challenge to Senator Robert A. Taft and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, his avowed opponents for the GOP nomination, to do likewise. He said he wanted to get the issues before the people of West Virginia. They didn't accept.

The two entries against Stassen in the Presidential preference balloting are Ellis C. Vander Ply of Cleveland, Ohio, and Woods Bryer of Martinsburg. Stassen managers noted that any voters who don't favor the Minnesotan can register their opposition by voting for either of the other two entries.

Stassen returned to Charleston Saturday, made a speech "on the issues," and held a press conference. He said he is confident of "considerable support" among prospective West Virginia delegates. One of his reasons for filing, he said, was to test Republican Presidential sentiment in a border State.

Oregon Test Near

Stassen, who last week stood off Taft 9 to 14 in Ohio's 23 contested areas, meets big-league company again in Oregon in face-to-face debate with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. The two will bid for Oregon's 12 delegates in a preferential primary May 21. Stassen scored 2 delegates to Dewey's 6 in New Hampshire, but led the New York governor in Wisconsin and ran way ahead of the Republican field in Nebraska and Pennsylvania.

In their last published claims, Stassen said he had 340 delegates. Dewey claimed 400, and Taft said he had more than any other candidate, without naming any figure. None of the three has yet claimed a majority.

End Cold War, Wallace Urges

New York, May 11 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace tonight addressed an "open letter" to Premier Stalin, urging immediate action by Russia and the United States to end the cold war and insure a "century of peace."

He proposed, among other things, that the two major world powers initiate a general armaments reduction and outlaw all methods of mass destruction.

The letter was released at a Madison Square Garden rally addressed by the third party presidential candidate and his running mate, Senator Glen Taylor (D., Idaho).

Wallace said "the whole world was heartened" by the notes of U. S. Ambassador Bedell Smith and Foreign Minister Molotov.

The letter asked the two major world powers to take these steps to end the cold war:

"1. General reduction in armaments—outlawing all methods of mass destruction.

"2. Stopping the export of weapons by any nation to any other nation.

"3. The resumption of unrestricted trade (except for goods related to war) between the two countries.

"4. The free movement of citizens, students and newspaper men between and within the two countries.

"5. The resumption of free exchange of scientific information and scientific material between the two nations.

"6. The reestablishment of a reinvigorated UNRRA or the constitution of some other United Nations agency for the distribution of international relief."

Wilkes Again Elected Head Of D. C. Republican Committee

James C. Wilkes, chairman of the Republican State Committee for the District since 1936, last night was unanimously reelected to fill the post the next four years.

After taking the chair, Wilkes promptly denounced the "rebel" Republican group here which last week elected its own State committee officers and delegates to the national convention.

Wilkes

Some 65 members of the State committee and delegates to the State convention gave him a rising vote of confidence following his statement.

Wilkes asserted there has been "no breaking of the ranks of local Republicans." He disclosed he had been served yesterday with notice of a suit filed by the insurgent group which asks an injunction to halt the State convention for the District, slated for Thursday.

Other officers elected at last night's meeting at the Willard Hotel, all unanimously, are Joseph C. McGarraghy, vice cairman; Col. George L. Hart, jr., secretary, and Bruce Baird, treasurer.

Terming allegations in the suit "grossly exaggerated" and "wholly fabricated," Wilkes denied that advertising of precinct elections was inadequate, denied that individuals "known to be committed" were appointed, and branded "utterly, unqualifiedly false" an allegation that the public was barred physically or restricted from precinct elections.

He added denials to the remaining 13 allegations of the suit and declared that "these men have done a disservice to the Republicans nationally and locally in crying this cheap stuff to the newspapers and cluttering up the court record with something which . . . the law will not entertain."

Together with the officers, the following were elected the executive committee of the State committee:

Chapin B. Bauman, Thomas C. R. Bragg, Lewis T. Breuninger, Mrs. Marie T. Brown, E. F. Colladay, Joshua Evans, jr., Robert V. Fleming, Clyde D. Garrett, C. C. Glover, jr., William H. Grass, Clarence E. Kefauver, Luther W. Linkins, Jesse H. Mitchell, Claude W. Owen, Barrington D. Parker, Eugene H. Phifer, Mildred E. Reeves, Jules C. Ricker, James E. Schwar, A. J. Somerville, Helen Gatley Wheeler and J. Franklin Wilson.

Constituting the subcommittee of the executive committee are Wilkes, chairman; Colladay, Garrett, Phifer, Hart and McGarraghy.

Neely Takes Early Lead Over Holt in W. Virginia Primary

Charleston, W. Va., May 11 (AP).—Matthew Mansfield Neely, 73-year-old former Senator and former Governor, took a slight lead tonight over his old Democratic factional enemy, former Senator Rush Dew Holt, in the first trickle of returns from West Virginia's primary election.

Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota Governor running in the Republican preferential primary, was rolling away from two unknown opponents. The preference primary is purely advisory and Stassen was admittedly entered only to test sentiment. In 34 of 2788 precincts he had 1048 votes.

Neely, who in the days of the New Deal frequently tangled with Holt on the Senate floor, had 1464 votes in 42 precincts. Holt, the "boy Senator" of the '30s—he is now 42—polled 1230. There were three others in the race.

Senator Chapman Revercomb, Republican, who defeated Neely in 1942, was having an easy time of it for renomination in first returns In 45 precincts he had 2076 to 35 for John Alderson Simms, Charleston chemical engineer.

An unusually long ballot and the heaviest primary voting in years slowed the count.

A particularly bitter contest for the Democratic nomination for Governor gave the lead in early returns to Okey Patteson former executive assistant to Governor Clarence W. Meadows who ran with the Governor's backing. In 30 precincts Patteson had 1549 votes to 749 for James K. Thomas, former speaker of the House and former attorney general.

State Senator Herbert L. Boreman of Parkersburg, minority leader of the Senate, was out in front in a five-way race for the Republican nomination. He had 1200 votes in 34 precincts to 329 for Haymond Maxwell, former Supreme Court judge, and 412 for Edgar C. Lawson, former State auditor.

West Virginia voters also nominated candidates for Congress, State offices and the Legislature. They also elected delegates to the two national conventions. The delegations will go uninstructed, regardless of the number of votes Stassen might receive. There was no Democratic preferential primary.

Three Congressmen were renominated without opposition. They were Representative Melvin Snyder (R), Second District; Representative Hubert Ellis (R), Fourth, and Representative John Kee (D.), Fifth.

Arkansas Republicans Oppose 'Rights' Laws

Little Rock, May 11 (AP).—Arkansas Republicans joined southern Democrats today in opposing fair employment practices legislation.

The proposed law was denounced by the Arkansas Republican Convention as "a glaring invasion of States rights."

An uninstructed 14-member delegation was selected for the national convention. Selection of a slate of State candidates was deferred until after this summer's Democratic primaries.

5 Area Hospitals Lost $418,695 in '47

Five area hospitals operating here on a voluntary nonprofit basis did so last year at a running loss of $418,695.

Castle

The total deficit between incomes and operating costs of the five institutions was disclosed yesterday in preliminary report of an area-wide survey begun by the Hospital Council of the National Capital Area.

Hospitals reporting, and their losses sustained, include: Garfield, $206,680; Children's, $75,000; Alexandria, $62,645; Suburban, $46,389, and Providence, $27,981.

The losses were described as "indicative of the plight of our hospitals" by Robert P. Bryant, newly appointed executive secretary of the Hospital Council. Moreover, said Bryant, all five hospitals reporting foresaw even heavier operation losses for 1948.

Others to Show Losses

Bryant, former assistant manager of the University Club, said other nonprofit hospitals in the District and its environs will show similar losses for 1947 operations. These, he said, would be made public after the council has had time to study the financial reports.

The preliminary report, he said, was rushed so that it could be made public yesterday, when Washington and the Nation observed National Hospital Day. The day was further observed by "open house" festivities at six area hospitals, Arlington, Casualty, Emergency, Episcopal, Garfield and Sibley.

"Admittedly, the nonprofit hospitals are facing a financial crisis," declared William R. Castle, council president, in his National Hospital Day statement. "For the past two years, deficits have been mounting.

Education Time

"Today, throughout the country, cities and towns will observe National Hospital Day. For most hospitals, the day's observance will constitute the climax in a year round public education program.

"In Metropolitan Washington area, the day will be marked by the inauguration of a public education program designed to create a better understanding of hospital services, problems and needs."

He praised managements of the voluntary hospitals for their continued operations "without slackening of service or spirit" in the face of mounting losses.

Two Yellow Jaundice Viruses Now Identified, Doctors Told

Identification of two viruses causing yellow jaundice, the disease which plagued troops in epidemic scale in Africa during World War II, was reported here yesterday.

Evidence of the existence of the two minute disease-carrying agents was presented before a special session of the Fourth International Congresses of Tropical Medicine and Malaria by Dr. John R. Neefee, University of Pennsylvania Medical School.

From experiments with human volunteers, Dr. Neefee reported, he obtained strains of both viruses. One, he said, caused severe jaundice when injected into a man's bloodstream, with the disease breaking out in from 15 to 37 days. The second strain produced a milder form of the disease, and required from 60 to 135 days to produce symptoms.

He said volunteers who had either virus infection were not made immune to the other form. Similarly, he reported, an immune serum prepared from the blood of patients suffering the acute form protected volunteers from that type of the disease but not against the second form.

When jaundice broke out in epidemic form among troops in Africa it was believed to be connected in some way to yellow fever shots. Perhaps pointedly, Dr. Neefee stressed "the risk of using improperly sterilized needles or syringes as a source of infection."

The viruses, he said, have survived heating to 138 degrees Fahrenheit for periods of 30-60 minutes. Contaminated drinking water is also suspect, said Dr. Neefe. Experiments with the acute jaundice virus, he said, showed it highly resistant to water chlorination.

In another session, on bacterial and spirochetal diseases, a progress report in the treatment of syphilis with penicillin was given by Dr. John Roderick Heller, jr., chief of the venereal disease division of United States Public Health Service.

Though investigators are working towards a single-shot cure of the disease, he said, "it will be years before we can be sure that any single treatment cure will be successful for syphilis."

Foes Fight Home Rule Vote

which went out to a few members of the House District Committee, follows:

"In view of your interest in the proposed dual voting plan provided for H. R. 6227 (the home rule bill) permit me to summarize the reasons which led the Home Rule Subcommittee to recommend this plan.

"1. It would improve the composition of the District electorate by enfranchising 200,000 Federal employes who actually reside here, who have an occupational acquaintance with public affairs, and many of whom have a material stake in this community because they pay property taxes here.

"2. It would maximize the white element in the District electorate and provide a double check (along with city-wide elections) against minority rule here.

"3. A large part of the local electorate would be eliminated if District suffrage were limited to District domiciles. They would have no voice in the government of the City of Washington where they physically reside and live their daily lives.

"4. No voter would be voting twice for the same candidate for the same office. He would vote in the District for councilmen and school board members, and in his home State for State and national officers.

"5. Such limited suffrage is not prohibited by State constitutions and election laws.

"6. The Governors of two-thirds of the States have indicated their approval of the dual voting plan. They have assured the snbcommittee that District residents would not lose their State voting rights if they also voted in District elections.

Harris said that No. 2 in the list was the "real reason" for the voting setup.

Representative E. E. Cox (D., Ga.) Rules Committee member, commented that the reason was "bait for you and me."

Representative O'Hara said he was "amazed" when he received the letter from Galloway at the thought of "giving votes to balance off the colored people here."

Discrimination Denied

Dirksen declared "it was not the purpose in dual voting to discriminate against any minority." Instead, he said, the purpose of dual voting was to avoid excluding from the proposed local vote thousands of qualified persons who have a stake and interest in District affairs.

Abernathy charged the members of the District Committee and the people of the District "don't know what's in this bill." He said it would be an expensive piece of legislation, and declared "the District today has one of the most economical city governments in the United States." He said the plan whereby the city council would propose major District legislation, and Congress would pass on it, would slow down the legislative process.

Abernathy said the dual voting system could mean that some 300,000 voters could pass on bond issues which would fall heavily on 90,000 property owners here. Under the bill, bond issues would have to be approved first by the council, next by Congress, and finally by a referendum.

Abernathy charged that people "by the hundreds and thousands could be brought in to vote here."

"They'd have to be brought in for a year," commented Representative Christian Herter (R., Mass.) Rules Committee member.

Communist Charge

Abernethy insisted that "a lot of Red organizations" would be participating in the voting here.

Davis denounced the bill as a "sham and pretense." He said the home rule plan "is like giving a 6-year-old boy a cowboy suit and cap pistol and saying 'now, son, run out in the backyard and kill Indians'—it's that much of a pretense."

Davis said the dual voting section would create endless confusion in the States on questions of taxation, and property inheritance, both keyed to the question of residence.

On this point, Dirksen said that the number of District residents voting elsewhere, spread over the Nation's election districts, would be too tiny to affect the outcome in any one section.

Davis declared his main objection to the home rule bill was that "it would jeopardize the security of the United States Government. It would be easy for Communists, pinks and subversives to come in here and establish a spurious residence to vote here—they are alive to every dodge and subterfuge that can give them a political advantage."

Dirksen pointed out that both Cheverly, Md., and Brentwood, Md., have had mayors who were legally domiciled in other States. "There is precedent for dual voting," he said. "None of the ghosts seen under the table by my friend, Judge Davis, have come to pass."

Gallinger Gets New Chief Medical Aide

Dr. Brooke G. Brown, 39-year-old resident doctor at Cleveland, Ohio's Crile Clinic, was appointed Chief Medical Officer in Surgery at Gallinger Hospital yesterday.

Dr. Brown succeeds Dr. Donald Effler, who left the $7481-a-year post last March to join the Cleveland clinic's staff.

The Commissioners approved the recommendation by Health Officer George C. Ruhland, who said he was "favorably impressed" with Dr. Brown's "experience and his personality."

Gallinger Superintendent Alvin Sweeney said Dr. Brown is expected to take over the job "near the end of June."

A native of Decatur, Ga., Dr. Brown received pre-medical training at Emory (Ga.) University and George Washington University here. He obtained his medical degree from GW Medical School in 1939.

During the war he served in the Army medical service in England, France, Holland and Germany.

He is married and has a 5-year-old son.

Dr. George Crile, jr., head of the Cleveland clinic, said in a letter of recommendation that Dr. Brown has been "an able assistant, is possessed of unusually good judgment, and has a postitive genius for getting along with people."

U. S. to Seek Old Belasco Theater Bids

Bids for lease of the Belasco Theater, formerly a legitimate playhouse and now Government storage space, will be invited by the Public Buildings Administration "in the immediate future," PBA Commissioner W. E. Reynolds said last night.

Reynolds said the theater building still contains office furniture, and that it will "depend on what kind of bid we get" whether the Government finally decides to move out. In any event, Reynolds said, the lessor, if there is a lessor, will have to wait "two or three months" to take possession while the Government removes its stored materials.

It is known that at least one potential bidder already is in the field. He is Joseph H. Curtis, son of Harry Cohn, president of Columbia Pictures. Curtis's attorney, Wallace M. Cohen, said he and Curtis had been dickering for the property for the past two years.

Cohen said that a story in The Washington Post yesterday naming Alan Johnstone of FWA, David K. Niles and John Steelman, special assistant to President Truman, as members of Curtis's group was inaccurate. He stated the only person he was representing was Curtis.

Rail Embargo Cuts Food Shipments to D. C. To Near Zero; Early Increase Is Expected

The three-day railroad embargo on perishable food reduced rail shipments to Washington yesterday to near zero and brought some evidence that higher prices might be asked for lettuce and carrots.

Not a single carload of vegetables or meat arrived yesterday at the vast Potomac freight yards. Monday there were 703 and on Sunday 934 carloads were shunted on to their destination, mostly to cities north of Washington.

At the Eckington yards officials reported there "might" be a straggler car or two.

Potomac officials said they expected a trickle of perishables today and a normal flow of 400 cars daily within a week.

Although the embargo ended Monday night soon after the railroadmen were enjoined from striking, the thre-day break in the "pipeline" brought some higher prices in vegetables from California.

"Only Temporary"

Several large independent and chain store officials declared they had been asked "gouge" prices by wholesalers in Baltimore for iceberg lettuce and carrots from California.

"It's only temporary," said one buyer for a large chain.

Heads of lettuce last wek retailed at 15 to 19 cents in Washington. This week the price ranges from 18 to 23 cents.

"This (Tuesday) morning we were asked $9 a crate for 60 heads of iceberg lettuce in Baltimore," said the buyer. "Monday morning the price was $10.50. Last week it was $5.50."

Carrots from California were $6.50 a crate last week and $8.50 yesterday in Baltimore.

Meat Supply Adequate

Merchants said only a "normal" increase in meat prices was expected and that adequate supplies were in Washington to carry demand until full-scale shipments are resumed. Some meat is expected late today.

One large chain disclosed it had made preparations to buy its meat supply from Baltimore packing houses, but had given up the idea when the embargo was lifted.

District Purchasing Agent Roland Brennan said he would have no trouble feeding persons in Washington's institutions, but he warned "there'll be a little shortage in lettuce, asparagus and possibly meat for a few days."

Trains Roll For the Army

ginemen, and A. J. Glover of the Switchmen.

They finally gave in. But their instructions canceling strike plans came less than eight hours before the walkout was due to start at 6 a. m., local standard time, yesterday.

The court order had been obtained only after the union leaders had flatly refused to commit their men to work for the Army under Federal rail seizure.

Leavey Made Top Boss

In carrying out his assignment from President Truman to keep the trains rolling, Secretary Royall has designated Maj. Gen. Edmond H. Leavey, chief of the Army Transportation Corps, as top boss.

Andrew F. McIntyre, general manager of Pennsylvania Railroad's New York division, was called back to active duty from the reserve with the rank of brigadier general as Leavey's assistant.

Royall divided the Nation into seven rail traffic areas, commissioned seven civilian railroad presidents as colonels in the Army, and put one in charge of each of the areas.

Royall said the Army will only supervise rail operations, letting the carriers handle their own finances and other details. He said:

"He will extend our authority only as far as necessary to operate them expeditiously and efficiently."

Bans against shipments of perishable foods and produce, imposed in the face of the strike threat to prevent spoilage, were lifted.

The three unions were resentful of Government seizure and court action preventing the strike. At a news conference held by the heads of the three unions, Glover said.

"Now management knows that every time they get into a dog fight the Government will step in and act as a strike-breaking agency."

The unions said they had scaled down their demands in the lengthy and fruitless White House negotiating sessions precednig Government seizure.

Accepted Wage Increase

Johnston said they accepted the 15½-cent-an-hour wage increase recommended by a presidential fact-finding board, though they wanted more changes in working rules, which also affect wages, than the board had recommended.

The railroads had been willing all along to accept the fact-finding board recommendations but were unwilling to go beyond them.

Originally the three unions had asked for a 30 per cent wage boost. The 15½-cent-an-hour increase would mean about an 11 per cent raise. The other rail unions have accepted the 15½-cent boost.

The White House said that Presidential Adviser John R. Steelman was available if either rail management or the three unions want his help in negotiating a settlement, but Steelman won't take the initiative.

Steelman conducted the frantic settlement efforts for the White House prior to seizure.

Regions and Colonels

These are the traffic regions set up by Royall and the rail president-colonels put in charge of each:

GPO Workers Face Job Loss On Red Oaths

By The Associated Press

An estimated 1600 mechanical employes in the Government Printing Office faced the possibility yesterday of having to resign from their union or quit their jobs.

The choice was put up to them by the House Appropriations Committee by a clause inserted in the annual appropriations bill for the legislative establishments. The bill finances the printing office.

The clause bans the use of any of the money to pay the wages of Government personnel belonging to a union whose officers have failed to file affidavits saying they are not Communists. Under the Taft-Hartley labor law such affidavits are required if a union wishes to use the services of the National Labor Relations Board.

Congressmen Probably Exempt

There was some question in congressional corridors whether the anti-Communist clause might affect some members of Congress also, but the consensus was that it will not.

Several members of Congress reportedly belong to unions which have not filed the affidavits.

But Representative Keefe (R., Wis.), an Appropriations Subcommittee chairman who specializes on labor legislation, insisted that as constitutional officers, Congressmen are not affected.

A GPO spokesman said approximately 1600 employes there belong to the International Typographical Union, officers of which have not filed the affidavits. An appropriations committee source said the number is closer to 1700.

"They will have the choice," he said, "of getting a union leadership that will comply with the law, of quitting the union, or of quitting their jobs."

Passage Indicted

While the bill still must pass both the Senate and the House, a similar provision in several recent appropriations bills has been approved overwhelmingly.

The committee turned down a subcommittee recommendation to allow House members $450-a-year for long distance telephone calls. That would have been in addition to a $2500-a-year general allowance given Congress members.

The subcommittee said all offices in the executive branch of the Government and all Senators now have their official calls paid for by the Government.

The House share of the $56,056,690 in the bill is $17,846,045, approximately $100,000 below the President's budget estimates. The bills' total is $4,933,930 under overall budget estimates.

Figures Recommended

These were the recommended figures:

Senate, $10,611,925; Capitol police force, $26,500, a cut fo $2650; legislative counsel, $160,000; education of Senate and House page boys, $29,300; Capitol architect's office, $3,608,100, a cut of $559,700; Botanic Gardens, $155,000, a $6400 reduction; Library of Congress, $6,814,200, a cut of $1,267,700; Government Printing Office, $16,507,000, a reduction of $3,392,100.

The committee approved $49,000 for painting the Capitol dome and part of the exterior of the building.

De Mille Backs Right-to-Work Bill at Hearing

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

House Labor Committee hearings on a "right-to-work" bill opened yesterday, starring Cecil B. De Mille in the premiere.

Clusters of big spotlights blazed down, and the House Caucus Room was cluttered with microphones, movie cameras, recording devices and all the other pros of a "big" hearing.

Supporting the veteran movie director — De Mille made "The Squaw Man" back in 1913—were Senator "Pappy" O'Daniel (D., Tex.) and several committee members who asked questions.

Would Safeguard Work Rights

De Mille read with gestures and emphasis, telling the committee that what this country needs most is a Federal law to protect the right to work. He said what he meant was a law to protect men who wish to go on working in a plant, even though others there wish to strike. To stop these men from going to their jobs, De Mille said, ought to be made a crime, and the subject of damage suits as well. Besides these remedies, De Mille urged direct action, saying:

"The power of Government would be better employed in calling out Federal troops, if need be, to escort one worker through the gates of his plant than in encouraging plant owners, at the first hint of a labor dispute, to shut down and throw out men and women who want to work."

Seeks $300 for Directors

De Mille told the committee he knew both sides of the case, because he was both an employer and a union officer. He explained — when he was asked by Representative John Lesinski (R., Mich.) — that he is a director of the Motion Picture Directors Guild and that right now he is trying to win a minimum wage of $300 a week for directors.

De Mille said, too, in answer to Chairman Fred A. Hartley, jr. (R., N. J.), that he did not want a law to protect the right of strikebreakers to work; just that of striking workers in struck plants.

The movie man lashed out at jurisdictional strikes, saying one of his movies was held up several hours—at a cost of thousands of dollars — while officials wrangled over a bale of alfalfa. Both the stage hands and the greenhouse workers, he said, claimed the right to tote the hay off the stage.

Several years ago De Mille was put out of the AFL Federation of Radio Artists for refusing to pay a $1 assessment for political use. De Mille claims this cost him a radio job that paid $100,000 a year. He sued the union, but lost in the California Supreme Court, and on April 19 the Supreme Court here turned down his appeal.

De Mille said the rulings showed the need of a law to protect the right to work.

Today's star witness will be Donald Richberg, Washington lawyer.

Clothing Workers Give Complete Plant to Italy

Rome, May 11 (U.P.).—The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America have donated a complete mass production clothing factory to workers of Italy as an aid in reconstruction, it was announced tonight.

A factory employing 500 persons will begin operation in August at Carrara.

Philip de Luca of Philadelphia, now president of the Amalgamted Clothing Corp. for Italy, said the factory would introduce American methods and would be the first of a series of model cooperative factories estabished under a $500,000 program financed by union members in the United States.

Phone Union Accuses Firm Of Bad Faith

An official of the local union covering 3500 telephone plant, accounting and commercial workers yesterday accused the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of "not bargaining in good faith."

The charge was made by Glenn E. Watts, president of division 36, Communications Workers of America (Ind.). He announced that the contract with the ultility had expired at midnight Monday without an agreement on "basic wages" and other issues.

In a statement following a 15-hour bargaining conference, which ended at 1 a. m. yesterday, Watts lambasted the company for refusing to "extend our contract."

Will Work Without Contract

"At one time in our bargaining they offered a 60-day extension," he declared. "They have now withdrawn even that, and are insisting upon a two-year renewal of the old contract with a useless wage reopening clause from which we could get nothing."

He said the company had rejected an offer to arbitrate basic wages and "even refused to continue the contract in force while we submitted their final proposal to the membership."

Watts, emphasized, however, that "we shall continue to work even without a contract . . . "

Phone Operators Negotiate

Stating the firm's position, Vice President and General Manager F. G. Macarow declared:

". . . When the existing contract was about due to expire they (the union) proposed an extension for a short period. Such an extension would serve only to prolong negotiations and prevent any real bargaining progress."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Mary Gannon, president of Division 50 (CWA), covering some 3000 area operators, announced that her union's contract with the C. & P. Co. expires at midnight Monday. Negotiations were held for several hours yesterday and will be resumed at 10 a. m. today in Hotel Washington.

"We're going to do everything we can to keep from having a strike," she asserted.

First '48 Phone Accord Rests on Arbitration

By the Associated Press

The Communications Workers of America (Ind.) announced yesterday settlement of a contract dispute with the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. and said it is the first 1948 agreement with a Bell affiliate.

The union and company agreed to submit their dispute over wages, sick pay, differentials and other issues to binding arbitration under New Jersey State mediation machinery. The agreement covers 12,000 union members.

CWA is negotiating for 50 new contracts over the Nation with Bell affiliates and independent phone companies covering 217,000 workers.

Meanwhile, the Government arranged a conference today seeking to settle a dispute involving 23,000 long-distance phone workers represented by the CIO American Telephone Workers Union, a rival of CWA.

The Federal Mediation Service has been conducting negotiations in New York in this dispute.

New Effort to Settle Bakery Dispute Set Today

A fresh attempt to settle contract disputes between Washington bakery workers and their employers will be made tonight.

Counciliation Commission James Holden yesterday summoned officials of Bakery Workers Local 118 (AFL) and the Employing Bakers Association to a conference at 8 o'clock in the office of Louis Spiess, counsel for the management, at 1317 F st. nw.

Negotiations are stalled over wages. The union is seeking a 50-cent-an-hourly boost over the present scale, which runs from 80 cents to $1.60 an hour. Management's top offer to date is 12½ cents an hour.

The 1200 union members already have authorized a strike.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Italians Pick Banker As First President

Rome, May 11 (AP).—Parliament elected tonight as first President of the Italian Republic 74-year-old Luigi Einaudi, a banker.

Einaudi, Vice Premier in the government of Premier Alcide de Gasperi and diretcor of the budget, is an opponent of communism. He accepted the post with these words:

"I can only reply with an old phrase, 'Vox Populi.' Parliament is the voice of the people. The voice of the people is the voice of God. Let God's will be accomplished."

His term is for seven years. He will designate a Premier to form a cabinet which must be approved by Parliament. De Gasperie is virtually certain to be his choice.

Einaudi's election came on the fourth ballot at a joint session of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies. He received 518 votes, 67 more than the required 451 majority.

Of 871 votes cast, 320 went to the aged Vittorio Emanuele Orlando, World War I Premier, who was a candidate supported by the Communist-led Popular Front.

A scattering of the vote went to Foreign Minister Carlo Sforza, who withdrew after leading the field on the second ballot last night.

The Communists had been supporting Enrico de Nicola, president of the provisional government, who had said he did not want to be a candidate. They switched to Orlando on the fourth ballot.

Einaudi is an internationally known writer on public finance and economic history. One of his three sons, Mario, is a professor of political science at Cornell University.

[According to the United Press, his youngest son, Giulio, 29, is a publisher and member of the Italian Communist Party, but the new president has made it clear that Giulio's "political views have nothing to do with me."]

He was elected a Senator in 1919 as a member of the Liberal Party, which had always opposed Benito Mussolini's fascist regime. In 1942 when fascism was in its last throes he fled to Switzerland. He returned to Italy soon after its liberation, and was made governor of the Bank of Italy in 1945. In June of last year he was named director of the budget and later a vice premier in De Gasperi's cabinet.

24 Executed By Greeks

Athens, Greece, May 11 (U.P.).—Twenty-four convicted guerilla supporters were executed by firing squads today, increasing total executions since May Day to almost 250, the Athens press reported today.

Today's executions described by the newspapers included 13 persons shot at the eastern port of Volos; 8 killed in the great northeastern port of Salonika, and 3 at Trikkala, in central Greece.

[The Associated Press reported a visit by Count de Vaux Saint-Cyr, the French Ambassador, to Deputy Premier Constantin Tsaldaris, to express official concern over the executions which have followed the assassination of Justice Minister Christos Ladas. A French Embassy spokesman said no formal protest was submitted, but the Ambassador reported the "emotion" caused in France by news of the executions and asked detailed information. A similar request for information was submitted by Norwegian Minister Harald Juell, the Associated Press reported.—Editor's Note.]

Other dispatches reported that two government planes had been shot down by guerilla antiaircraft batteries in western Macedonia, near the Albanian border.

Reports from Larissa said 1500 guerillas had been trapped by troops in a ravine near Mount Hassia on the northern fringes of the Roumeli area recently swept by an army offensive.

Kuomintang Action Hit By Parliament

Nanking, May 11 (U.P.).—The legislative Yuan (parliament) protested strongly today against the Kuomintang-dictated nomination of its president and vice president. It demanded a free election for candidates of its own choice.

The Kuomintang has nominated Dr. Sun Fo for president of the legislative Yuan and Chen Li-fu, leader of the extreme rightist "C-C Clique," for vice president.

After a heated debate, the Yuan decided to form a 59-man committee to draft procedure for electing its presiding officers.

U. N. Korea Group Wires Lie Details of MacArthur Ban

(From Press Dispatches)

Seoul, Korea, May 11.—Details of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's refusal to permit the United Nations Commission on Korea to enter Japan to write its preliminary report have been wired to U. N. Secretary-General Trgvye Lie, the Syrian commission member, Yasin Mughir, said today.

The eight-man commission had supervised yesterday's elections in South Korea, the first free elections in the nation's 4000-year history. Late returns showed 7,500,000 persons, or 95 per cent of the eligible voters, defied a Communist-ordered boycott and terrorism and cast ballots.

MacArthur, Mughir said, turned down the request last week, citing as reasons a lack of accommodations; a misunderstanding among both Koreans and Japanese as to the reason the commission was leaving Korea, and the question whether a super-governmental agency could come into a country governed by the Far Eastern Commission.

A post-election calm and apathy settled over South Korea today, according to the Associated Press. Reports quoted from outlying districts, however, sent the weekend death toll to approximately 100 in incidents connected with the election.

Early reports indicated the votes were split among right-wing parties associated with Dr. Syngman Rhee, who spent 40 of his 73 years in the United States, and independent rightists. Final election results were expected to be announced late tomorrow or early Thursday.

Elections, for a 200-man assembly which is to draw up a constitution, were held only in South Korea. The Russians refused to permit the commission to enter North Korea.

Sweden Likes Union Plan

Stockholm, May 11 (U.P.).—Foreign Minister Oesten Unden said today that Sweden would not join any world power bloc, but finds the idea of a Scandinavian defense system "very appealing."

Unden told a Social Democratic Party convention that there has been talk of a Scandinavian defense pact by which Scandinavian countries would join a greater western bloc.

"We think that if Sweden joins a great power bloc, it means this corner of the world develops into a point of friction between the great powers in peace and that we inevitably would be drawn into any conflict," he said.

"The other plan is to constitute a Scandinavian military defense system aimed solely at a common desire of keeping other powers out of our sphere if there is a future conflict.

ONE-UNIT HEARING AID

Our Present Prosperity can become a mockery. The Deadly spiral of INFLATION can choke business, cut payrolls, increase unemployment, and repeat the tragic collapse of 1929. President Truman, Conscientious labor leaders, Business leaders, and economists are united in warning against INFLATION. The Federal Reserve Board has urged voluntary credit controls by business.

Typical of these warnings is the April 4 report of the Committee of Economic Policy of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The report compiled after exhaustive investigation strongly recommended that:

1. Consumers postpone all possible buying of "Tight" Merchandise.
2. Merchants and customers cooperate to hold down dangerous increases in inflationary credit transactions.
3. The general public build up holdings of savings bonds.

President Truman in his talk to the American Society of Newspaper Editors on April 18 stressed the same general necessities to protect all of us from economic collapse.

Good Americans

owe themselves and their families the duty of checking these facts, and ACTING.

For our Firm's part in combatting inflation we have been advising our customers and friends for almost two years to buy ONLY what they need, and THEN only after making certain they are getting the best dollar values available.

NOW

Every member of our firm is pledged to:
1. Cut distribution costs by every possible economy; hold down profit margins to the lowest.
2. Continue our credit facilities to aid business, but NOT to make artificial, dangerous INFLATION.
3. Encourage our customers and friends to invest in savings bonds.
4. Intensify our policy of "BETTER THINGS FOR MORE PEOPLE FOR LESS."

TO OUR CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS

With ERP reducing many Merchandise stocks, each of us can fight INFLATION by avoiding unnecessary purchases. With more cash available through income tax reductions, each of us can fight INFLATION by investing instead of spending money. With small supplies of much merchandise, business organizations can fight INFLATION by following the worthy example of U. S. Steel and CUTTING prices instead of greedily taking advantage of shortages. Likewise the foresight and cooperation of many labor and union leaders should be an inspiration and example showing how basic PRODUCERS can stabilize our national economy.

Americans

The decision is OURS. Shall we work and fight TOGETHER to block the increasing menace of INFLATION? Shall we UNITE to stop business chaos which might lead to something worse?

YES

Of Course, GOOD Americans will vote "YES" on the foregoing questions. But ACTION is also needed. We're all on the same team, GOOD Americans. Let's Go!

We invite your suggestions on how our firm can better cooperate in this tremendous battle to keep our nation UNITED, prosperous and FREE.

Rep. Downey Assails Reclamation Chief

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Senator Sheridan Downey (D., Calif.) told a House subcommittee yesterday that Michael W. Straus, commissioner of reclamation, gave false testimony to appropriations groups, and is guilty of "intrigue and dishonesty" in office.

After his testimony before a House Executive Expenditures Subcommittee, Downey told The Washington Post he hoped the House hearings "would result in some impeachments."

The Executive Expenditures group, under Chairman Forest Harness (R., Ind.), is investigating propaganda activities of the bureau, which Downey said is distributing "totally false" information designed cruelly to mislead veterans and others.

Krug Mentioned

Downey said he could not exclude Julius A. Krug, Secretary of the Interior, from responsibility for some of these activities.

Scorning reliance on Congressional immunity, Downey has incorporated a long list of charges against the Bureau of Reclamation and some of its personnel in a book—not printed at government expense—entitled "They Would Rule the Valley."

Downey said he made the charges first in this manner so he would be subject to the laws of libel and without Congressional privilege and he said he challenged "the ideologists and fellow travelers" in the Bureau of Reclamation to bring a suit.

The California senator, who said he has "just begun to fight," has a long list of charges against Straus and "the fellow travelers" in the Bureau of Reclamation. These include:

1. That the bureau "let loose a torrent of lies" concerning irrigation of the Central Valley Project in California to grab power into its own hands. Specifically, that, although the 160-acreage limitation on irrigation projects is equitable where public lands are concerned, it is admittedly impossible in the Central Valley Project, privately owned for almost a century, and yet the bureau is trying to "bulldoze" people into accepting it.

Testimony Cited

2. That Straus and Kenneth Markwell, an assistant recreation commissioner, had testified in December, 1947, that the bureau's carryover for the year 1948 would be 44 million dollars, when they had evidence as early as April of that year it would 88 million dollars; that they testified the carryover for the Central Valley project would be 10 million dollars although they had evidence that it would be 22 million dollars.

3. That in June, 1947, R. S. Calvin, an assistant regional director, gave orders that because of the large unexpended balances expenditures of the Central Valley Project should be speeded up in every possible way. Unexpended balances go back to the Treasury and count in the next year's appropriations. At first, Downey said, Calvin denied before the Senate Appropriations Committee last February that he had Bureau authority for a memo to this effect. Later, Downey told the House group, Calvin "broke down" and admitted he was acting on orders of Richard L. Boke, regional director at Sacramento, Calif.

Question of Boke

4. Downey said that when Straus wanted to bring Boke into the Interior Department from the Foreign Economic Administration he falsely represented Boke as an engineer, when in fact, Boke's only engineering experience was in working on a building at the age of 17. The California Senator said that Harry E. Kranz, Civil Service regional director at San Francisco, disclosed yesterday much of the file on Boke had been withheld from him and had he received it Boke would not have been appointed.

5. Introduced in evidence was a letter from Straus to Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, dated August 31, 1945, terming Boke "one of the new school of thought that that we are injecting into the Bureau of Reclamation."

6. Downey introduced Bureau of Reclamation statements about the number of farms which would become available in the next five years. These figures, Downey said, are "a hoax" and he introduced Department of Agriculture figures to support his contention.

Russian Bloc Seen Recognizing Jews

Lake Success, May 11 (AP).—A high-ranking United Nations delegate said today that Russia and her satellites plan to reorganize the new Jewish nation in Palestine.

The delegate told the Associated Press it is not certain whether such diplomatic recognition will be extended immediately upon proclamation of an independent country by the Zionists. He said some Latin-American republics would join in the move.

The Zionist proclamation of a new nation under the United Nations partition decision is expected simultaneously with a British announcement of the end of its mandate at midnight Friday.

The delegate, who represents an eastern European country, said that regardless of any delay in full recognition the Soviet bloc immediately will grant belligerent rights to the Jewish nation.

This would give Zionist troops the rights of war. Weapons could be legally shipped into the country. Jewish land, sea and air forces would be recognized in international law.

The Committee on Un-American Activities is sponsoring a curb-the-Communists bill which is slated to come before the House Thursday.

This legislation would require the Communist Party to register its full membership annually with the Justice Department, provide for the criminal prosecution of party leaders who fail to disavow connection with movements to overthrow the American Government, require the Communists and affiliated groups to label their publications and broadcasts as Communist propaganda, and deny passports to party members.

Does Stomach Gas and Bloat Make You Feel Miserable?
If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in freeing your stomach from this nervous distress. It works this way: Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.
To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.
Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalines to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

18-25 Draft Is Approved

organized, drilling reserve to avoid the draft.

Few Major Differences

Other major provisions of the bill were as previously reported. In all but a few prime instances, the Senate version agrees with the House bill. Major differences are:

Registration ages under the Senate bill are 18 through 25. The House would register men 18 through 30.

The Senate bill would have a life of five years, unless ended sooner by joint resolution. The House bill expires in two years.

Both measures would induct men aged 19 through 25 for two year "hitches." In addition, the Senate bill permits the call of 18-year-olders in limited numbers for a year's training and service at home bases or in home waters. The House Armed Services Committee strongly opposes the latter.

Under the House bill, no one could be inducted for 90 days after passage. The Senate version has no such provision, but officials estimate it would take nearly this long to set up the draft machinery.

Deferments Provided

Generally, the two bills agree on deferments. High school students would not be called until they graduate, fail or reach the age of 20. College students would be deferred until the end of the school year—not the end of the term as under earlier versions.

Men with dependents and those deemed "necessary" in agriculture, industry and Government would be deferred. Similarly, the bill authorizes detailed regulations to be prepared for deferment of medical, scientific and theological students.

Any man enrolled in the National Guard or organized reserve unit when the bill becomes law, also would be exempt from draft under both the Senate and House bills. The latter also permits youths to enlist later in such units up to the age of 18½ years old and not be drafted.

A proviso of the Senate bill authorizes such exempt enrollments in the National Guard alone and only where State Governors find the Guard is under strength.

Doctor Registration

The Senate bill provides for the special registration of doctors, dentists and "allied specialist" professions up through the age of 44. They could be drafted to meet the military needs up to that age in acordance with priorities fixed in the bill. A somewhat similar proviso is in the House bill.

No accurate estimates exist as to the number of men who would be drafted next year. This is because it is not known how many men will volunteer ahead of induction once the bill passes.

A Senate committee expert, however, said that most men aged 19 through 25 years old who are not exempted or deferred for one reason or other probably will be called if the measure passes.

$2,798,000,000 for New Planes

Under the aircraft-procurement appropriation bill sent to the President yesterday, $2,798,000,000 is provided for buying new planes. The Air Force gets more than two thirds, the Navy the rest. Although substantially beyond the recommendation of Mr. Truman, he is expected to sign the bill.

Orders for some 4200 warplanes can be placed immediately under terms of the measure and aircraft plants expanded for a five-year building program calculated to make America supreme in the air.

Senator Russell's rejected amendment to the draft bill would require every enlisted man or draftee to indicate in writing whether he wanted to serve in mixed units or those made up only of his own race. Only two races would be recognized—the "principal minority race" and all other Americans.

Court-Martial Provision

Officers disobeying the segregation amendment would be court-martialed for "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman." Senators backing it indicated that it would be reoffered when the bill comes up on the floor, probably next week.

Voting against the Russell amendment were Senators Gurney, Wilson, Raymond Baldwin (R., Conn.), Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.), Edward Robertson (R. Wyo.) and Millard Tydings (D., Md.) All but Wilson, plus Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), voted to approve the bill.

Earlier, the group adopted another amendment proposed by Senator Russell, authorizing the President to seize plants which refuse to give the armed forces priority on orders at reasonable prices. The committee also approved a separate resolution setting up a "watchdog" committee to keep tab on the way the defense forces are carrying out the preparedness program.

It was proposed by Senator Byrd. Chairman Gurney said he would ask Senator Saltonstall to head the group.

which had hitherto not been hostile to the Jews as a whole."

"It has been stated time and again that the Arabs in Palestine would give proper minority rights to the Jews living in Palestine. His Majesty feels that you are most certainly aware that Arab nations are well known for their traditional hospitality and broadness of mind."

There is every indication that Egypt means business in the Holy Land.

War Believed Unlikely Owing to Arab Rivalries

By Daniel De Luce

Jerusalem, May 11 (AP).—The threatened war between a Jewish state and the Arab world looks more and more today like an exploded propaganda balloon.

This correspondent has come to this conclusion after weeks spent mostly in Arab capitals and after seeing the Jewish setup in Palestine.

The Jewish state is now a reality despite continuation of the British mandate until May 15.

It has an army which has decisively defeated a few thousand poorly led Arab volunteers, the majority of whom came from outside Palestine.

Regardless of the flowery communiques issued after each conference of the Arab governments—at Damascus, Cairo, Amman, Riyadh—there are indications that the old jealousies among the Arab kings and premiers run on unabated.

It appears almost inevitable that Paletsine will be a trouble zone for a considerable time to come, with sporadic violence between the Jews and Arabs and among the Arabs themselves. But the prospective pattern is one of unorganized mutinies, underground terror and sheer banditry—not of modern war.

Egypt Senate Approves Invasion of Palestine

Cairo, May 11 (AP).—The Egyptian Senate approved tonight a proposal that the Egyptian army "shall with other Arab armies enter Palestine at a suitable time to restore stability and prevent massacres in Palestine."

Chevy Chase Girl Is Md. U. May Queen

MAY PROCESSION—Carol Haase, 20, Queen of the May, leads her entourage from the administration building at Maryland University

About a thousand persons gathered on the mall in front of the University of Maryland Administration building yesterday to watch Carol Haase, dark haired, brown eyed senior, be crowned Queen of the May.

The traditional ceremony was one of several honoring the month of May which were held yesterday. Other high spots of the annual May Day were the announcement that Miss Lucille Andrews had been chosen Miss Maryland, and the tapping of seven girls for Mortar Board, women's honorary leadership society.

Chosen by Perry Como

Miss Andrews of 4828 Chevy Chase dr., Chevy Chase, Md., was chosen by Perry Como after he had studied portraits of the University's prettiest girls.

Those tapped for Mortar Board were Helen P. Brown, Greenbelt, Md., Amy Hunt Cantwell, Ravenswood, Falls Church, Va., Nancy R. Clapp, 2804 N st. se., Eleanor Higgons, Greenwich, Conn., Ethel Jongeneel, Ross, Calif., Virginia Rustin, 1330 Holly st., Washington, and Mary P. Smith, Eastern ave., Takoma Park, Md.

1500 in Procession

Fifteen hundred boys and girls from 14 Catholic high schools participated yesterday in a May procession honoring the Blessed Mother at the Academy of the Holy Cross. The procession was followed by an outdoor benediction.

At Trinity College, a May Day procession was held at 2:30.

At the Langston Recreation Center, a festival "The Awakening of Spring" was presented. The festival was concluded with the traditional winding of the Maypole.

'Slight' Improvement Shown by Overton

The condition of Senator John H. Overton (D., La.) who is seriously ill at Naval Medical Center at Bethesda was reported "slightly" improved yesterday.

The 72-year-old Southerner suffered a setback Monday and was reported in "very critical" condition. He was taken to the Medical Center for an emergency abdominal operation last Wednesday.

Bids totalling more than a million dollars for three school projects were approved yesterday by the Montgomery County School Board.

Stine

The board at its regular monthly meeting in Rockville also elected H. Stanley Stine, vice president of the board, as president to succeed Mrs. Helen C. Walker, who was not a candidate for reelection.

Schools Superintendent Edwin W. Broome was authorized by the board to draw up new tuition rates for students living outside the county but attending county schools.

Broome estimated that the actual cost of educating a student is close to $180. The county at present charges $50, he said.

10 of 58 Paying Now

Assistant Superintendent Richard E. Carpenter told the board that 58 District students are attending schools in the county and that only 10 are paying.

County schools have followed the same policy toward these nonresident students as followed in the District toward Maryland students, Board Member James W. Gill said.

If free schooling for all nonresident students attending District schools is ended as proposed in a rider to the 1949 District Appropriation bill, it also should end in Maryland for District students, Gill said.

"Considerable difficulty" in obtaining teachers for elementary grades was reported by Dr. Broome. He said that there are now 50 vacancies for the Fall term.

Bids Are Detailed

The bids approved by the board, the lowest of those submitted, were: $29,326.72 for new toilet and storage room buildings for 16 Negro elementary schools to L. W. Bernard & Co. of Silver Spring.

$575,000 for a new high school at Damascus to L. J. Keller Sons, Jefferson, Md.

$423,000 for a junior high school at Takoma Park to Joseph Nebel Co. of Washington.

Mrs. Durward V. Sandifer, 8304 Oakford pl., Silver Spring, Md., was named vice president of the board in yesterday's election.

Stine, who lives at 617 Bennington la., Silver Spring, Md., was appointed to the board three years ago.

An attorney, he is vice president in charge of the Maryland Department of the District Title Co. He is active in civic affairs and is a Mason and a Democrat.

Mrs. Sandifer, a former school teacher, has served as vice president and president of the Maryland League of Women Voters.

A. T. & T. Ready To Negotiate on Work Contract

The American Ttelephone and Telegraph Co. agreed yesterday to take part in negotiations here today on a dispute involving 23,000 Long Lines telephone workers.

Announcement of the action was made by the Federal Mediation Service, which called the session after talks in New York failed to produce a settlement.

A contract for the long distance workers expired Saturday, but the union has withheld strike action. It asks a 30-cent hourly wage boost. The Mediation Service said the union had assured the Government there will be no strike "pending the outcome of the Washington negotiations."

Schools to Drop Religious 'Free Time'

The Prince Georges County Board of Education agreed yesterday to halt the practice of permitting students "free time" to attend religious education classes away from county schools.

The action, taken at the board's monthly meeting at Upper Marlboro, was designed to establish a uniform policy for all schools in the county, according to Superintendent G. Gardner Shugart.

At present, he pointed out, pupils in only two schools are given time to attend religious classes during school hours, and the board has recently refused several other requests for similar privileges.

The classes, now conducted by a religious organization for pupils of the Mount Rainier and Brentwood Elementary Schools, will be discontinued at the end of the current school year, Shugart said.

During yesterday's meeting, the board reelected J. Frank Dent, president, and Mrs. H. Edna Pitts, vice president, for the current year.

Mrs. Jane H. McCafferty, 41-year-old guidance counseler at Mount Rainier High School, was chosen as an "exchange teacher" to go to England, where she will teach for a year beginning with the new school term next September. She will be replaced by Miss Jean Oliver, an English teacher in Middlesex County, England.

U. S. Denies Proposing Parley With Soviet To Settle Differences Between Two Nations of alliances allegedly directed against the Soviet Union.

The Ambassador answered these charges as he had on his first visit—by blaming Russia for the "apprehensions and fears" in western Europe, by accusing her of responsibility for the Communist seizure of power in Czechoslovakia, and of having violated almost every item of the agreement under which the United States and Russia resumed diplomatic relations in 1933.

Monday night, to the astonishment of the State Department and of the Ambassador, who was on his way to Normandy for a vacation, the Moscow radio broadcast the exchange of views to the world.

"So far as I am concerned," said the Ambassador during a brief stop-off in Berlin, "my dealings with Molotov were completely confidential. The release rather surprised me, as this is the first time they have done such a thing with a confidential exchange."

The publicity from Moscow, with its emphasis on Soviet willingness to discuss differences, completely overshadowed the importance of the exchange as the first direct survey of Soviet-American relations since Marshall talked with Stalin in Moscow over a year ago.

Secretary Marshall was convinced, as he told the House committee last week, that the Soviet leaders either didn't believe what they were saying or had become victims of their own propaganda.

He felt the time had come for a new and more direct effort to make them see American policies and motives clearly. Hence the instructions went to Smith to see Molotov with one of the sharpest messages ever delivered by an Ambassador to the leader of a nominally friendly power.

Inverchapel 'Delighted'

But the sudden public announcement of it from Moscow caused complications and confusions that left State Department officials dizzy. The British and French, apparently, had not been told of the American message or of Molotov's reply.

The British Ambassador, Lord Inverchapel, hurried to the State Department in the morning to discover what it was all about, and later had an hour with Secretary Marshall. If he had any fears, they seemed to have been dispelled, for he told reporters on leaving that he was "delighted" with the development.

French Ambassador Henri Bonnet also saw Marshall, and left with the statement that "anything which is hopeful to understanding and peace will be welcome in Europe."

Dangers In Situation

American officials were quick to see the following dangers in the Moscow broadcasts:

1. It might revive the idea in Europe that the United States and Russia were about to launch a "sphere of influence" negotiation at other countries' expense. Accordingly, one official said firmly last night that the United States would not discuss matters involving other countries unless those countries were present.

2. It might revive public clamor for another Foreign Ministers' meeting, which Secretary Marshall has said would be a waste of time in present circumstances, or of another Big Three meeting, which would be even more futile until the groundwork had been carefully laid over many months.

No Easy Solution

3. It might revive the idea, combated again and again by Secretary Marshall, that a quick and easy "solution" with Russia is possible. The State Department is convinced that no over-all settlement can be obtained just by sitting down at a table. Progress can only be made on specific issues, it is felt here, and the recent breakdown of negotiations on Austria and on atomic energy offer little hope.

4. It might lull the American people and Congress into the belief that the "cold war" is over, and that there is no further need for UMT, or Selective Service, or other military preparations in this country and western Europe.

5. Finally, it might enable the Russians to pose as "peaceful" while continuing their infiltration of other countries and their attempts to wreck the European recovery program.

Why, then, did Ambassador Smith's message to Molotov speak of the door being "wide open" to discussions?

One answer is that a big segment of American public opinion demands it, and is by no means confined to Henry A. Wallace and his followers. Another is that all through the present "cold war," and ever since the days of Secretary Byrnes, the United States has tried to avoid an outright break in dealings with the Russians.

Still another is that the United States has a long list of pending issues—strictly Soviet-American issues, not involving other countries—on which the Ambassador has been unable to get satisfaction from the Kremlin.

From time to time he has tried to get decisions on these questions, including matters of trade, cultural relations, American citizens in Russia and other routine diplomatic tasks. Sometimes he has been unable to have a talk with Molotov for weeks at a time.

The first step, therefore, may be a cautious discussion of strictly Soviet-American issues, strictly through diplomatic channels, and with an advance understanding that the publicity of last night's Moscow broadcast will not be repeated without the consent of both parties. Before such talks begin there may be an American request to Moscow to come forward with specific proposals.

Until yesterday American policymakers were well satisfied with the course of events abroad. The Russians had been checked in the Italian elections; the ERP was under way, with overwhelming public approval here, and there were signs of returning strength and confidence in Europe.

Secretary Marshall had said repeatedly that American policy would lead, in time, to an atmosphere in which the German issue and others could be settled with Russia.

Now, however, American officials have let themselves be thrown off base by the Soviet disclosure of confidential talks in Moscow. They fear Moscow has already given the world a false and tricky interpretation of what happened and has regained the initiative in the propaganda war.

Secretary Marshall's scheduled press conference today may give him an opportunity to put American policy back on the track in the eyes of a bewildered public at home and abroad.

Note Episode Irks Britain

This group, while not a serious threat, is still articulate.

In short, one "yes" from Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov has caused considerably more concern than hundreds of Soviet "noes."

Russians Flock To Read Bulletins

Moscow, May 11 (U.P.). — Russians crowded 5 and 6 feet deep in front of newspaper bulletin boards today to read a Russian-American exchange of notes which, they hoped, might lead to better relations.

Laboring men in overalls, shawled mothers with babies in their arms, white-collar workers and army officers stood patiently awaiting their turn to read the three full columns of a Tass agency dispatch on the exchange.

As they read, they nudged each other and made such comments as:

"Good, huh? Good!"

For the first time in months many of them beamed at those among them who obviously were foreigners.

"That's something people understand," an elderly subway construction engineer said. "Molotov will get together with you folks yet, you just see."

American Disavowal Discouraging to U. N.

Lake Success, N. Y., May 11 (U.P.). — U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie said he welcomed "wholeheartedly the indication that the governments of the two great powers may be able to undertake a discussion of the differences between them."

Disappointment was caused here, however, by the American disavowal of any invitation to Russia.

armed attack occur affecting its national security.

"5. Maximum efforts to provide the United Nations with armed forces as contemplated by the Charter, and to obtain agreement among member nations upon universal regulation and reduction of armaments under adequate and dependable guarantees against violation.

"6. If necessary, after adequate effort toward strengthening the United Nations, review of the Charter at an appropriate time by a General Conference called under Article 109, or by the General Assembly."

Vandenberg Comments

Vandenberg explained to reporters that the veto provision was essentially the same as the proposal already made by the American delegation at Lake Success. As for points 2, 3 and 4, he said, they "represent the concept that there is a broad and relatively unexplored field of security action within Articles 51 to 54 of the Charter."

The World Federalists leaders were much less cautious in the statements they made to the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Cord Meyer, jr., the young Marine veteran who heads the organization, said the present U. N. veto was much less important than the lack of an adequate U. N. court or police force and the lack of enforcement powers against individuals.

He outlined his time-table as follows: First, a "pronouncement" by the United States, after thorough debate in Congress, that it was willing to give up some of its sovereignty to a federation; second, negotiations with other governments, and third, a call for a conference under Article 109 to revise the Charter. If Russia refused such a call, he said, the U. N. should be kept as a "forum for discussion," and those nations that were willing should form a federation within it.

"If we have the foresight to choose this road," he said, "there lies before us a more generous existence than men have ever before dared to hope for. On the other hand, we can cling to the shadowy abstraction of absolute sovereignty and follow the arms race through to its inevitable end in an atomic and biological war eliminating, as Eistein has warned, a third to a half the human population of the planet."

Thomas K. Finletter, New York lawyer who is vice president of the World Federalists, said such a federation could be formed under Article 51 of the Charter. He warned that the U. N. was repeating with "dismal faithfulness" the record of the League of Nations, and that it would not be long before Russia had atomic weapons.

The new federation, he said, would have very limited powers, but enough to protect its members against direct or indirect aggression.

Some Lawmakers Are Unconvinced

By The Associated Press

If Russia wants to shake hands instead of fists, it's agreeable to a lot of Congressmen.

However, some lawmakers were unconvinced of Russia's sincerity in striving for an adjustment of differences.

Senator Connally (D., Tex.), former chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he is "very hopeful" for an improvement in relations between the two great powers.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), present chairman of the committee, reserved comment on the development, but House Speaker Martin (R., Mass.) told a reporter:

"I think every effort should be made to reach a rapprochement between the two countries. I'm glad to see it's being done."

Double Talk to George

Senator George of Georgia, a high-ranking Democratic member of the Foreign Relations Committee, termed the Moscow announcement "just a lot of double talk."

And Representative Judd (R., Minn.), a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, looked on the Soviets' handling of the matter as "another clever move in the Russians' diplomatic warfare."

Other comment:

Chairman Eaton (R., N. J.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee: "The actual situation cannot be ignored or denied that the announced objective of Communist philosophy is world revolution and the establishment of communism by blotting out capitalism. Russian leaders never deviate from that purpose and judging from the evidence an agreement with Communist leaders isn't worth the paper it is written on."

House Majority Leader Halleck (R., Ind.): "We ought to be able to convince Russia that we have no desire for world conquest, and it is to be hoped that they can reach the same attitude. An understanding satisfactory to both countries would be desirable."

Representative Vorys (R., Ohio): "The Russian attitude is, of course, encouraging, but I've very little confidence in the meeting of chiefs of state. Every time we have had such meetings in recent years we have lost our shirts."

Senator Baldwin (R., Conn.): "I think we should take advantage of every opportunity to sit down and iron out our differences with Russia or any other country."

Berlin Sees Little Cause for Optimism

Berlin, May 11 (AP). — This squabble - hardened four - power capital tonight saw little in the Soviet-American exchange of views to justify optimism that there will be a quick settlement of the east-west differences.

Western power officials here pointed out that Moscow has not relaxed its efforts to force them from Berlin and that the Allied Control Council for Germany is still inactive.

Truman's Statement on Interview

The text of President Truman's statement on the Russian-American developments follows:

WITH regard to the recent exchange of views between Ambassador Smith and Foreign Minister Molotov in Moscow, it was felt by this Government that in view of the adoption of the European recovery program as a definite expression of policy and of the President's recent recommendations to Congress concerning the military establishment, it was important that there should be no misconception or confusion in the minds of the Soviet government concerning the position of this Government.

Accordingly, Ambassador Smith was directed to seek an interview with Mr. Molotov in order to set forth as clearly as could be expressed the policies and purposes of the United States with regard to the Soviet Union, and thus avoid any unfortunate misunderstanding in view of the character of the current propaganda statements.

The statement made by Ambassador Smith represented no new departure in American policy. It was a reiteration of the American position as it has been repeatedly expressed both publicly and privately.

The two salient points of the statement made by Ambassador Smith were these:

"The policies of the United States Government in international questions have been made amply clear in recent months and weeks. They have the support of the overwhelming majority of the American people. They will continue to be vigorously and firmly prosecuted."

"On the other hand, this government wishes to make it unmistakably clear that the United States has no hostile or aggressive designs whatsoever with respect to the Soviet Union."

American-Soviet Statements and Explanation . . .

Ambassador Smith's Remarks Delivered Orally to Molotov

The text of an oral statement by United States Ambassador W. Bedell Smith in Moscow to Russian Foreign Minister Molotov on May 4 on behalf of the United States Government, follows: It was made as Ambassador Smith left on a short vacation.

TWO years ago during my initial conversation with Generalissimo Stalin and yourself, I stated as clearly as possible my estimate of the inevitable reaction of the American people to the continuance of a policy by the Soviet government which would appear to have as its purpose the progressive extension of the area of Soviet power. At that time I pointed out that it would be a grave misinterpretation of the fundamentally pacific character of the American people to believe that they would not react strongly and vigorously to the progressive domination by one country of its neighbors and the clear threat to the world community which such actions would imply.

I emphasized at that time that the United States had no desire whatever to see the world divided into two major groupings, nor to divert a large part of its income to the maintenance of a military establishment which such a world situation would necessitate in elementary self-defense.

It seemed apparent then that such a line of policy as that described could lead inevitably to a crystallization of the non-Soviet areas of the world whose people would quite understandably feel themselves progressively threatened by such developments. It seemed also inevitable in such a case that the United States, as the strongest nation in this community, would be forced to take a leading part in this movement and to divert a large portion of its energy, which by preference our people would prefer to utilize for assistance in the reconstruction of the ravages of the war, to the maintenance of a military establishment adequate to meet the developing world situation.

UNHAPPILY the apprehensions I felt at that time have been realized.

Since that date, Soviet policy in eastern Europe has produced the reaction which was predicted. The situation which has resulted is obviously one of great seriousness.

The European community and the United States have become alarmed at the implications of Soviet policy, and are drawing closer together in mutual self-protection, but only in self-protection.

It is for this reason that my Government desires me to outline to you with complete clarity and frankness the position of the United States Government.

There should be no mistake about the determination of the United States to play its part in these cooperative movements for recovery and self-defense. The concern and the determination of the people of the United States have been intensified by the inexplicable hostility of the Soviet government to the European Recovery Program—a measure which in its inception and subsequent developments is so obviously only a measure of American assistance for reconstruction on a cooperative basis without menace or threat to anyone.

The situation which has been produced by the actions of the Soviet government or by political groups obviously under its control, and the natural and inevitable reaction on the part of other countries, including the United States, to these actions is obviously one of great seriousness.

My government has no idea what conclusions the Soviet government has reached concerning the present attitude of the United States. It has noted that the picture of this attitude given by the Soviet press is dangerously distorted and erroneous. Whether or in what degree the members of the Soviet government themselves believe this distorted version my government has no means of estimating. For this reason I wish to make plain certain points on which my government considers it extremely important that there be no misunderstanding at this time.

1. The policies of the U. S. government in international questions have been made amply clear in recent months and weeks. They have the support of the overwhelming majority of the American people. They will continue to be vigorously and firmly prosecuted.

It would be a grave error if others were to assume that domestic considerations, such as the forthcoming elections, would in any way weaken the determination of the U. S. to support what it believes to be right. The American people have always known how to separate domestic and foreign policy at the proper moment.

Similarly, my Govrnment is aware that Communist organizations here and there have been disseminating propaganda to the effect that a forthcoming economic crisis in the United States will soon produce a radical change in American policies.

It is hoped that no one will be so foolish as to forfeit the chances of progress toward world stability for the sake of an economic prognostication which has been proven wrong time and time again. Even those who persist in believing such a prognostication must, at the very least, realize that an economic crisis would not affect in any way our basic productive capacity, nor our concept of the basic factors underlying our foreign policy.

It must be emphasized that the present state of world affairs involves issues which the people of the United States consider to be vital to United States national security and the world peace. No one should deceive himself as to the seriousness of United States policy with respect to these issues.

GEN. W. BEDELL SMITH
Outlines Government's position

2. On the other hand, my Government wishes to make it unmistakably clear that the United States has no hostile or aggressive designs whatever with respect to the Soviet Union. Assertions to the contrary are falsehoods which can result only from complete misunderstanding or malicious motives. United States policies have been so devised that they can not possibly affect adversely the interest of a Soviet Union which seeks to live at peace with its neighbors and to refrain from attempts to exercise undue influence, directly or indirectly, in their affairs.

In fact, many of the elements of United States foreign policy to which the Soviet press takes such strong exception today would never have come into existence if it had not been necessary for the United States to aid other countries to defend their own political integrity from attempts, on the part of Communist minorities, to seize power and to establish regimes subservient to foreign interests. Should these attempts cease the necessity for some of the manifestations of United States foreign policy, which apparently are unwelcome in Moscow, would cease with them.

THE PRESENT State of United States Soviet relations is a source of grievous disappointment to the American people and to the United States Government. As far as we are concerned, it represents a painful and undesired alternative toward which we have been driven, step by step, by the pressure of Soviet and world Communist policy. We still do not despair by any means of a turn of events which will permit us to find the road to a decent and reasonable relationship between our two countries, with a fundamental relaxation of those tensions which today exercise so unhappy an influence on international society everywhere. As far as the United States is concerned, the door is always wide open for full discussion and the composing of our differences.

My government earnestly hopes that the members of the Soviet government will not take lightly the position of the United States Government as here expressed. They have it in their power to alleviate many of the situations which today weigh so heavily on all international life. It is our earnest hope that they will take advantage of these possibilities. If they do, they will not find us lacking in readiness and eagerness to make our own contribution to a stabilization of world conditions entirely compatible with the security of the Soviet peoples.

Tass Version of Moscow Message to Smith

London, May 11.—The Tass Agency's version of the Russian government's statement to American Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith:

ON May 9 Mr. Molotov received Gen. Bedell Smith and on instructions of the Soviet government made the following statement:

The Soviet government has acquainted itself with the statement made by the United States Ambassador, Gen. Bedell Smith, on May 4 this year with reference to the present state of Soviet-American relations. The Soviet government views favorably the desire of the Government of the USA to improve these relations as expressed in the said statement and agrees to the proposal to proceed, with this end in view, to the discussion and settlement of differences existing between us.

At the same time, the Soviet government deems it necessary to state that it is unable to agree with the Government of the USA in that the present unsatisfactory state of Soviet-American relations and the international tension are caused by the policy of the USSR in eastern Europe and by the growing influence of the Soviet Union there.

As regards relations between the USSR and its neighbors, as well as other countries in Europe, the Soviet government is in a position to note with satisfaction that these relations, indeed, have considerably improved since the war. It is known that this has found expression in the conclusion of treaties of friendship and mutual assistance between the USSR and those countries, treaties which are aimed exclusively against a repetition of aggression on the part of Germany and her possible allies and which, contrary to the statement of the United States Ambassador in Moscow, Gen. Bedell Smith, contain no secret protocols whatever. The above mentioned countries, which were swept by German aggression, are especially interested in the conclusion of such treaties.

IT IS known that the United States is also pursuing a policy of consolidating its relations with neighboring countries, such as, for instance, Canada and Mexico, as well as other American countries, which is perfectly comprehensible. It is equally comprehensible that the Soviet Union is also pursuing a policy of consolidating its relations with neighboring and other countries of Europe. A policy of consolidating friendly relations with these countries of Europe will be pursued by the Soviet Union in the future as well.

The statement of the United States Government says that certain foreign policy steps of the United States in other countries which evoke the discontent of the USSR are caused by the excessive influence of the Soviet Union on the domestic affairs of those countries.

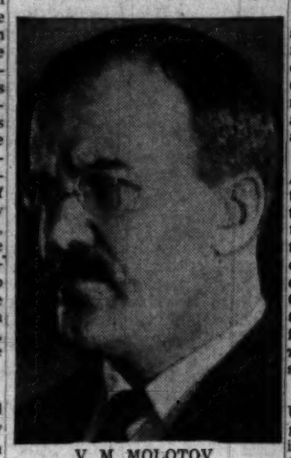
The Soviet government cannot agree with such an explanation. As regards the countries of eastern Europe which are referred to in this case, it is known that since the war important democratic transformations have taken place there, that they constitute a means of defense against the threat of a new war, and for this reason favorable conditions were created for the development of friendly relations between these countries and the USSR.

It would be utterly wrong to ascribe the democratic transformations which have taken place there to the intervention of the Soviet Union in the domestic affairs of the said countries. This would mean ignoring the indubitable fact that the above transformations constitute the natural result of the victory of the democratic forces over nazism and fascism and are regarded by the peoples of eastern Europe as a guarantee against the threat of a new war. In the light of the above, the promotion of Communists to leading positions is perfectly natural because peoples of these countries regard the Communists as the most consistent fighters against a new war.

NO one has the right to dispute the fact that the implementation of democratic reforms is the domestic affair of each state. However, from the above statement of the Government of the U. S. A. it clearly follows that this Government holds a different view and on its part practices intervention in the domestic affairs of other states, which cannot but evoke serious objections on the part of the Soviet government. Events in Greece are not the sole example of such intervention in the domestic affairs of other states.

The Government of the United States also explains the present unsatisfactory state of Soviet-American relations by the Soviet government's attitude to the so-called European Recovery Program. Meanwhile, it is perfectly clear that if the question of the economic recovery of the European countries had not been dealt with in the manner adopted in the said program, but on the basis of normal conditions of international economic cooperation within the framework of the United Nations organization and with due respect for the national rights and sovereignty of states, there would have been no reason for the unfavorable attitude of the USSR to the European Recovery Program—the more so in that the USSR, as one of the states which suffered most economically during the war, is highly interested in the development of postwar international economic cooperation.

At the same time the Soviet government deems it necessary to declare that the present unsatisfactory state of Soviet-American relations and the international tension result from the recent policy of the government of the United States. What helps to bring about such tension is, first of all, the actions of the United States government such as the progressive development of the network of naval and air bases in all parts of the globe, including territories bordering on the USSR, while the press and a number of official representatives of the United States plainly state



V. M. MOLOTOV
Acquainted with the statement that these are being set up for the purpose of encircling the USSR. Measures of this kind cannot be explained by needs of self-defense.

IT IS similarly impossible to overlook the fact that the present international atmosphere is being poisoned by all kinds of bellicose threats directed against the USSR and emanating from definite circles closely connected with the Government of the United States.

The Soviet government, on the contrary, is consistently pursuing a peaceable policy in regard to the United States and other states, does not set up military bases in other countries, and does not resort to any threats in regard to anyone.

Moreover, a military alliance of the Western countries, comprising Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg, was recently formed. Whereas all treaties of mutual assistance concluded by the Soviet Union with the east European countries, as well as with Britain and France, are aimed at preventing another aggression on the part of Germany, [illegible] not directed against any Allied state, the military alliance of the five Western states set up at present, as is evident from the treaty, dose not have Germany alone in mind, but can equally be directed against those states which were allies in the Second World War.

The entire British, French and American press openly says that this alliance is directed against the USSR. One cannot overlook the fact that the formation of the said military alliance has become possible only due to encouragement on the part of the Government of the United States. Clearly the military treaty of the five Western states can by no means be regarded as a treaty of self-defense.

The unfriendly policy of the United States Government in regard to the USSR is also revealed in Soviet-American trade. Under the trade agreement concluded between our two states, the United States Government is obliged not to apply to exports of commodities from the United States to the Soviet Union any more burdensome rules or formalities than those applied in regard to any third country.

HOWEVER, the present policy of the U. S. Government disregards this undertaking of the United States and completely contradicts the Soviet-American trade agreement in that it establishes discrimination against the USSR, despite the fact that the Soviet Union discharges its obligations under the said agreement in good faith. As a result of this the export of American goods to the USSR is being disrupted, although the Soviet Union has made advance payments for these goods, or has even paid in full for them. This also causes harm to the American firms concerned. It is perfectly obvious that such a situation cannot be tolerated.

At present the U. S. Government declares that the United States does not entertain any hostile or aggressive intention in regard to the Soviet Union and expresses the hope that it will be possible to find a way of establishing good and sensible relations between our two countries along with a radical relaxation in international tension, and expresses its preparedness to assist in such a stabilization of world conditions as would also meet the interests of the security of the Soviet people.

The Soviet government can only welcome this statement of the U. S. Government for, as is known, it has always pursued a policy of peaceableness and cooperation in regard to the United States, and this policy has always met with unanimous approval and support on the part of the peoples of the USSR. The government of the USSR declares that it intends to pursue this policy with perfect consistency in the future as well.

The Soviet government also expresses the hope that it will be possible to find a means for eliminating existent differences and for establishing good relations between our countries, such as would comply with the interests of our peoples and the cause of the consolidation of general peace.

Gen. Bedell Smith promised to communicate the Soviet government's statement to the Government of the USA.

U. S. Envoy Explains And Adds to Remarks

The text of Ambassador Smith's additional comments on Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov's reply to an American note of May 9 follows:

AT the conclusion of Mr. Molotov's statement I said I would comment briefly. With regard to remarks about "development of United States bases, our policy of encirclement and warlike threats," I had only to say that our entire history was refutation of any suspicion of a policy which involved aggressive war.

As I stated during our previous conversation, the drawing together of the western European countries and the support which was being given them by the United States was a direct reflection of the apprehensions and fears which had been aroused by the expansionist policy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and while I had no right to disbelieve his statements, I could not refrain from paraphrasing Mr. Vyshinski's comment that facts spoke for themselves.

The United States was secure in its honesty of purpose with regard to ERP. Our people were, as stated previously, completely unable to understand implications placed on that program by the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

THE United States appreciates and fully understands the desire and indeed the necessity of close and friendly relations between the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and its neighbors, but that here again facts spoke for themselves, and I was fully familiar with events which followed the acceptance by Czechoslovakia of the invitation to the ERP conference in Paris and subsequent reversal of this acceptance during the immediately following visit of Mazaryk and Gottwald to Moscow.

A country like my own which permitted complete freedom of political thought and expression did not oppose communism because of its Marxian ideology but purely and simply because we had seen repeated instances of Communist minorities coming into power by illegal means and against the will of the majority of the population in the countries referred to.

The United States remained convinced that these minority coups d'etat would have been quite impossible without [illegible] moral and physical support of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

With respect to trade agreements, there was nothing the United States would like better under conditions of reasonable and honest understanding than to participate in expanding trade with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and to contribute to the economic recovery of the Soviet states which had suffered during the war.

IF PROOF were desired of our previous feelings in this respect it would be found in the fact that under lend-lease we had shipped to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics enormous values in basic industrial plants which when shipped obviously would not be in production in time to contribute to the war effort. Our change in views with regard to trade was again a direct reflection of the Soviet expansionist policies referred to in my previous conversation.

I did not wish to indulge in a contest of words which might be interpreted as the "pot calling the kettle black," but I had recently reviewed some of our past agreements with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, particularly the Roosevelt-Litvinoff agreement, and I would remind him of what I am sure he already knows, i. e., that the only provision of this agreement which had not been violated by the Union of Soviet of Socialist Republics was that permitting the presence of an American clergyman in Moscow.

However, these were matters which it would be profitless for us to pursue to the exclusion of the major issues. I had, I believed, made completely clear the policies of the United States and the reasons which prompted the adoption of these policies. I appreciated Mr. Molotov's statement of the policies of his government, which I would communicate at once to Washington.

Floods Rout Hundreds From Michigan Homes

Detroit, May 11 (AP).—Flood waters of a half dozen Michigan rivers chased hundreds of families from their homes today and predictions were of more rain.

The Clinton River near Mount Clemens, the Grand and Red Cedar in the Lansing area, Buck and Plaster creeks in Kent County and the Rouge near Detroit, all swirled over their banks.

Time Is Of The Essence

Capitol Hill has witnessed a strange performance during the last two days. Sponsors of the District home-rule bill have been before the House Rules Committee pleading in an open hearing for the opportunity of getting their handiwork before the House for debate and a vote. Opponents have been arguing just as vehemently against the granting of a rule for this purpose. The District Committee, with the aid of experts, has spent many months working out this measure and getting it into proper legislative form. Now an entirely different group of legislators is presuming to pass upon its merits before letting it go to the floor to be voted up or down.

These tactics are particularly disturbing because even a slight delay in getting the measure before the House is likely to kill it. No companion bill has been introduced in the Senate. The House bill will have to run the gamut of committee and floor action in the Senate after being passed by the House. Only very prompt handling all along the line can save it from being lost in the last-minute crush of important national legislation. Surely the Rules Committee ought to see the urgency of granting Representative Dirksen's request for limited debate and authority for waiving technical points of order against the bill. In view of the 14-to-8 vote for the measure in the District Committee, the rule makers could not refuse their aid in speeding the bill to the floor without grossly abusing their function as legislative traffic director for the House.

The time has come, we think, for the House leaders themselves to take a hand in this undertaking. Speaker Martin is on record in favor of the bill. Some months ago he also declared that if the bill should clear the District Committee by a substantial majority, it would be given its "day in court" on the House floor. Now is the time to make good that promise. It would mean exactly nothing if the House were not allowed an opportunity to vote on the bill in time to permit similar action in the Senate. The people of the District expect the Speaker and other House leaders who have committed themselves to this vital movement to restore suffrage rights to the Nation's Capital to make their influence felt before it is too late.

Greek Justice

It is doubtful whether the reshuffling of the Greek cabinet carried out last week will make any substantial difference with respect either to general government policy or to the mass executions that have been carried out in recent weeks. The apportionment of cabinet posts between Liberals and Populists remains the same, with the Populists predominating slightly as compensation for the fact that the premiership is held by the Liberal Themistocles Sophoulis. Perhaps the most noteworthy newcomer is George Melas, Liberal Minister of Justice. He replaces Christos Ladas, who was assassinated earlier this month allegedly as a Communist reprisal for recent successes of the Greek army. A diplomat by training, Mr. Melas was at one time secretary to the great Greek leader Eleftherios Venizelos, and is a known democrat.

There is considerable misapprehension about the nature of the recent Greek executions. It is difficult to support the charge that these were carried out in retaliation for the murder of Ladas. A total of 80 persons were put to death during the period March 22-May 6 for heinous crimes committed during the German occupation and Communist uprising of 1944-1945. The acts of which the prisoners were accused were not crimes against the Nazi occupation forces—persons in this category were amnestied some months ago. Instead these were persons charged with crimes against Greek citizens—some of them particularly revolting, as in the case of a man convicted of murdering 30 people with an axe. To be sure, the fact that many of these prisoners were Communists lends a political tinge to the executions; but, surely, no one can question the right of the Greek government to protect its own citizens.

The delay in effecting justice may rightly be subject to criticism. Here, however, the fault seems to lie both with a tedious system of appeals and with the impossible overburdening of the courts since the occupation. Nor could the Greek government reasonably have stayed the executions. According to Greek law, after action by the highest appeal board, cases automatically go to the public prosecutor for carrying out of the death sentence. As of May 5 there were 2761 persons in this category in jail awaiting execution; of these 171 sentences had been commuted and 300 had been cleared for execution.

This is not to say that the methods employed in Greek executions are not repugnant to American sensibilities. Mass executions are too much like those employed by the Communist enemy to afford much reassurance. Nevertheless, it is well to remember that the niceties of justice may seem clearer to Americans, comfortably separated by several thousand miles of ocean, than to Greeks fighting for their lives with an enemy which infiltrates behind their backs. In any event, there is enough cause for concern with demonstrated instances of corruption and inefficiency without allowing a red herring to enter the picture.

Aftermath Of Seizure

With the threatened strike averted and the trains running at their usual clip under control of the Army, there is danger that the baffling dispute which led to Government seizure of the railroads may now be forgotten.

Actually, however, nothing has been settled. All that the Government has done is to say that the settlement shall not be effected at the cost of a stoppage of our transportation system. In taking this necessary stand to protect the national interest the Government has unquestionably prejudiced the cause of the three brotherhoods which attempted to strike. What action will the Government now take to see that the interests of the unions are protected?

President Truman ordered the Army to operate the railroads under the existing terms and conditions of employment, without prejudice to any agreement to make the ultimate settlement retroactive. If the carriers and unions cannot now agree, we think substantial justice would be done by putting into effect the recommendations of the President's emergency board. That group of experts held hearings on the dispute for 33 days and spent two weeks formulating its conclusions. It proposed a fair compromise. Certainly the Government, after breaking the strike threat, must not permit the carriers to impose a settlement less favorable to the unions than the emergency board's recommendations. And any White House activity to obtain a more favorable settlement for the unions would have the effect of encouraging other unions to flout emergency board reports and run to the President. We think the inability of the White House staff to settle a complicated dispute of this nature off the cuff, so to speak, has been amply demonstrated, and such efforts might well be abandoned in the future in favor of supporting the President's emergency boards.

There is some encouragement in the fact that Congress has taken fresh note of the national problem which every threatened tie-up of the railroads entails. Senator Knowland introduced a bill to bring the railroad unions under the terms of the Taft-Hartley Act. Along with Senator Taft, we doubt that this is the proper solution. Despite the Administration's success in ending the coal strike, the efficacy of the section of the Taft-Hartley Act dealing with national emergencies is yet to be proved. There is a long tradition in the railroad industry, moreover, of negotiations and resort to emergency boards under the Railway Labor Act. Amendment of that act is likely to be the more satisfactory approach. In any event, the matter will need extended study and deliberation. We suggest that it is an appropriate subject for exploration by the Joint Committee on Labor-Management Relations.

Alice In Wonderland

Dr. Luther H. Evans, Librarian of Congress, has set the stage for a noteworthy act of international goodwill in arranging for the return to England of the privately purchased original manuscript of Lewis Carroll's charming and profound satire, Alice in Wonderland. The manuscript had come into American hands in 1928 through an auction held by the impoverished original owner. With the cooperation of a book dealer, Dr. Evans purchased the draft on his own initiative in 1946 with the view of sending it to the British Museum, which had been an unsuccessful bidder in 1928. All but approximately $6000 of the purchase price has now been raised through contributions.

We hope that not only will additional contributions be forthcoming promptly to defray the remainder of the expense, but also that before the manuscript leaves this country some enterprising publisher will arrange to make a first-rate facsimile for sale to the general public. The only existing facsimile was completed before the advent of modern printing and does not show the manuscript off to advantage. A good facsimile is especially important in this instance because, unlike many authors' manuscripts, Carroll's is hand-lettered and contains many interesting drawings which became the basis for the famous illustrations by John Tenniel. On that basis alone, the project has intriguing commercial possibilities. Beyond that, a competent facsimile would provide inspiration for countless Americans who, in company with people everywhere, appreciate the significance of Alice in Wonderland not only as a delightful fairy tale but also as an important political document.

Accommodation With Russia

The anticlimactic handling of Moscow's surprise release of the Soviet-American exchange was lamentable. Judging from our own telephone, the entire world is teetering with interest, yet the unprepared and off-base Administration has let the opportunity slide for an immediate public grapple with the issues raised by Molotov's communication. Molotov, whom Mr. Churchill has recently put in the same class as Talleyrand, squeezed the last drop of propaganda value out of the exchange, and the Administration has given him a new bucketful. He must be smiling sardonically at the inept response in Washington—at what a news agency calls the "cold suspicion" of the official reaction. Of course, Moscow's note is propaganda, but the way to deal with propaganda of this transparent nature is to take it at face value, and consent to explore the terms of accommodation in common with the Soviet Union. Only in that way could the Administration have gotten itself out of the mouse trap that the 24-hour-a-day Molotov had prepared. Trieste diplomacy was conspicuously lacking.

We appreciate that the task of handling diplomatic relations with Russia is extraordinarily hard. John Hay once confessed the difficulty and delicacy of dealing with a government which made "a science of mendacity." He meant the Czarist regime. How much more delicate and difficult to deal with the successor regime which finds a place for deceit and falsehood in its ideology!

But it would have been easy to pick to pieces the Molotov assertion in the Soviet-American exchange that Moscow has consistently pursued "peace and cooperation." The list of its treaty violations has grown as long as Stalin's arm. On the very day of the peace treaty with Bulgaria, Petkov was murdered. In Romania, where the Soviet was treaty-pledged to withdraw its army, no fewer than half a million Soviet troops remain. No cooperation was received in appointing a U. N. governor of Trieste. Soviet agent activity was uncovered in the early days of the electioneering in Italy. The Soviet continued to steal Austrian property during the abortive conversations for a state treaty aimed at carrying out the four-power pledge to "liberate" Austria. These are a few of the many infractions that in our opinion should have been itemized in the White House statement of the Soviet-American exchange—by way of clearing the air and preparing the way for an effort to arrive at an accommodation.

No doubt the war hysteria had thrown so much mud over our foreign policy that Secretary Marshall felt the need to clarify it. He clarified it in public to Congress the day after the American communication to Moscow. But the responsibility is equally upon the Administration to keep the record clear for the sake of American opinion. Theodore Roosevelt used to say that the common sense of the American people is the greatest reliance of the American statesman. It is the people who can restrain their representatives from going off half-cocked on the basis of whispered reports that would strain a schoolboy's credulity. In addition, our greatest security comes not from the checkbook, but from a sense of awareness and responsibility on the part of the American people.

Accommodation is what this country avowedly seeks from Soviet Russia. It was with accommodation in view that we embarked on the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan.

The President called the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan "two halves of the same walnut." It was an exact description. Under the Truman Doctrine, and the action in Greece and Turkey that accompanied it, this country declared that it would not allow Soviet aggression to spill into the Mediterranean. It was a "containment" measure. Back of this shield the United States then decided to fill the vacuum of growing weakness and increasing panic in Europe with confidence and economic health, and asked for the cooperation of the "peace-loving" Soviet in sharing in the bounty and assuming some of the burden. But the Soviet not only declined but embarked on a policy of sabotage. If the Soviet had been peaceful and cooperative, the Doctrine would have been unnecessary and the Plan would not have had to be so ambitious.

What the Soviet hoped to gain from its intransigence was American resignation of the tortured scene in Europe to Soviet management. That has been the overriding Soviet policy since Mr. Byrnes began to negotiate the peace treaties. Moscow thought that America could be badgered into quitting Europe in disgust. Perhaps the Soviet mind is now persuaded that the United States is not a quitter.

If it is, it may be possible to negotiate an accommodation, and, even if the Soviet has no such intention, there is no excuse for not trying. In our view terms of accommodation should have accompanied an itemization of Soviet treaty violations in the White House statement. Our thought is that the terms should be based on the dissolution of the Cominform, revived in order to undermine and sabotage and kill the ERP, and the formulation of what is meant by indirect aggression, together with a pledge to liquidate it. There should be no difficulty about defining indirect aggression. Litvinov in 1933 and Molotov in 1939 brought up the issue in relation to Nazi Germany. Since the war ended, the Russians have been no less adept than the Nazis in practicing indirect aggression.

But let none be seduced that success in this enterprise would be the warrant for relaxation. Accommodation does not mean peace. Watchfulness and preparedness go hand in hand in any nation that assumes the burden of world responsibility. Britain had the same responsibility when she was defending the peace in the nineteenth century. When she relaxed, when firmness and patience ceased to be her watchword, as in the pro-Russian Aberdeen ministry in 1854, the people were thrust into war with Russia. Appeasement has never failed to breed war, for the way to wage peace is to be unafraid of war, to be zealous in seeing that justice is done and aggression checked—and to be on the job in diplomacy.

"Bribing Patriotism"

I would like to take issue with your "Bribing Patriotism" editorial of May 6.

In the first place, you used the word "bribed" for its emotional effect without regard to its aptness. A bribe is something accepted for improper conduct. Is service in the Army improper?

You make a good point that patriotism cannot be bought. Neither can it be coerced. Do you consider it more patriotic to submit to induction because of draft-dodging penalties than to enlist for the pay? It is certain that patriotism alone isn't going to get any men at all to speak of in a peacetime Army. And since we must have either a stick or a carrot, why do you consider the carrot so much more reprehensible than the stick?

You say that on moral grounds alone, Representative Allen's suggestion is indefensible. Without fully disagreeing, I would still like to ask why. Right now, the Government is preparing to offer higher inducements to its civil employes (including many in the War Department) on a purely mercenary basis. Even if UMT and/or the draft should pass, we will still have Regular Army personnel attracted by the money. We customarily pay bonuses for certain more hazardous tasks like flying and parachuting.

You speak of the tradition of equal responsibility of all citizens for the common defense, and state that young men of draft age should not be called upon to bear the whole burden of preparedness. But you and I both know that that is where it would fall. It is much more "equal" for us all to shell out higher taxes and have the servicemen adequately compensated for their trouble.

As regards efficiency, I am not sure but what even mercenary soldiers might take their training more seriously than men indiscriminately herded in whether or no. Remembering how low morale was in 1942-'45, I can only imagine that of a conscript peacetime Army.

I am not fully convinced that the Allen proposal is practicable or even desirable. If it is not, scrap it. The draft is certainly preferable to unpreparedness again. But I do feel that the pros as well as the cons deserve more consideration than either you or the President gave them.

Sigma Nu Noise

Although admitting that the Sigma Nu house at 1622 21st st. nw. is not among the more quiet places in Washington, I would like to correct any misapprehensions that may have been drawn from the story in The Washington Post of May 9 on the charges made against the fraternity by her neighbors.

As with any social organization, there is bound to be noise, regardless of any efforts made to prevent it. We have made every effort to reduce noise in the Sigma Nu house. There are marshals for every party with the power of asking offenders to leave. It is a standing order that while a party is in progress that all the windows and doors be closed. The marshals also see that no noise is made entering or leaving the house. Singing, whether off key or on key, is required to be of a low pitch so as not to disturb the other residents of the street.

In addition to our own rules, which are stringent enough, we are also subject to the rules of the George Washington University for fraternities.

The Washington Post's story and the complaints of a few of the neighbors imply that the house is overrun with giggling and screaming young ladies. The fact is that the university has definite rules on female guests, which we obey to the letter.

Unfortunately, we are often charged with noise on 21st st. for which we are not responsible. We are not the only social organization there. The United Nations Officers Club is a few doors from us, and while they are usually quiet, it is not a rare occasion when some of their guests are quite vocal in leaving the club late at night. We often get blamed for that noise, too.

We promise our neighbors that every effort will be made in the future to respect their peace. In return we ask their understanding and their assistance in our endeavors. Even though they may be angry at times with us, we are very happy to be their neighbors and we want to continue that pleasant relationship.

Uprising In Paraguay

On May 3 The Washington Post published a United Press dispatch containing the news of an uprising in Paraguay on information coming from Formosa (Argentina). I believe that it is my duty to make the following explanation to you.

The rumors of an uprising of the army and the closing of the port of Asuncion, capital of Paraguay, came from members of the Communist Party opposing the present government of Paraguay, who are interested in minimizing by all means the prestige of General Morinigo's government. I know that all this information is false.

I take this opportunity to state that General Morinigo's government is laboring earnestly for peace and tranquillity, which are essential for the reconstruction of the country after the last civil war.

"Atom Politics"

Your May 8 editorial, "Atom Politics," was fine, but doesn't it overlook something?

It was Senator Taft, a candidate for President, who insisted that the appointments be made by the new President.

His power in the Senate is evident. Would he not, could he not, get sufficient votes to pass the indorsement of the Atomic Energy Commission for one year? Why then do you charge Senator Vandenberg with playing politics when he proposes a two-year cooling-off period?

It is quite clear that Senator Vandenberg would be acceptable to many Republicans—more perhaps than would accept Senator Taft, graciously. Why compel him to stir up the Taft supporters at this time? If the situation were reversed in Congress, the Democrats would, of course, be patriotic, and confirm the commission, but count the number of Republican judges on the Federal bench. There should be a fair apportionment, in order to keep justice above politics.

Vocational School Standards

In answer to the letter in The Washington Post of May 5 relative to the Brooklyn school teacher incident, it is obvious that today we have large numbers of pupils in the high schools who are mentally and emotionally unprepared to participate in the courses offered. This is directly due to the philosophy of education for the masses which leads into the theory that grade promotions are to be made on the basis of chronological age and not on the basis of academic accomplishment.

Apparently in an effort to weed out undesirable students and lighten the load of the teachers, the academic high schools have made a practice of sending their most unsuccessful pupils to vocational high schools. They fail to recognize the fact that vocational high schools can offer educational opportunities to pupils of average or better abilities, and that they do not desire to be dumping grounds for exceptional pupils. These academic people also fail to recognize the fact that pupils unfit for academic pursuits are also unfitted for entrance into the highly specialized trades and service occupations which the vocational high schools include in their curriculum.

Today our social and economic order employs about 85 per cent of the population of this land in industrial occupations. The crying demand today by industry is for capable and well educated entrants who have had previous industrial experience. It is the duty and the objective of the vocational high schools in Washington to offer this service to the public. The Federal Vocational Act of 1917 and the subsequent vocational acts which followed specify that pupils so enrolled must be able to materially profit by such experiences.

The vocational high schools in this city offer a three-phase program to the public. Educational opportunities are offered to those students who wish to prepare for industrial occupations and at the same time obtain a regular high school education. Vocational training is available for pupils who must of necessity seek employment at an early date and desire work experience, and, finally, these schools work in conjunction with the various organized trade groups to provide related subject matter instruction to indentured apprentices in many fields.

Vocational teachers as a group feel that vocational education is not a special and isolated kind of education, but rather an area of general education which vitally affects the average American citizen. Those who teach these industrial subjects have been well prepared by apprenticeship, successful wage earning experiences, and by college studies to present our subjects to young America. They deeply resent the idea that the vocational high schools are of use only as occupational training centers for the unsuccessful academic high school students. It is true that this group must be educated to be valuable and self-sufficient citizens, but we advocate the establishment of special occupational training schools to accommodate this ever increasing number of pupils.

World Tie In Children

By Malvina Lindsay

People At Their Best

WITH MAN'S warlike instincts getting the headlines throughout the world in recent weeks, it is hard to realize that in many places his better nature has been having an inning. Yet a wave of generosity and sacrifice in behalf of tomorrow's generation has been running from primitive villages in Asia and Africa through the bomb-wrecked critics of Europe to the more prosperous continents of North and South America.

The dream of Dr. Aake Ording, Norwegian delegate to the United Nations, of the peoples of the world being brought together on one issue, the suffering of children, seems to be coming into realization. This country is now in the midst of raising its part of the funds needed to feed, clothe and help care for the millions of hungry, homeless and sick children who are war's legacy.

Here the United Nations Appeal for Children has been combined with that of the American Overseas Aid, which includes all the private foreign relief work. In most of the other countries participating, the appeal has been carried out according to Dr. Ording's original proposal—"give one day (in wages, income or work) for the children."

"WE ARE all reconciled through the child," wrote Gabriela Mistral, Chilean poet, as the appeal opened in her country. And in many places the movement has brought out such examples of human nobility and cooperation as to inspire new hope for a more civilized world.

Typical of the sacrifices made are those of 30 British mothers and one 81-year-old grandmother in the industrial town of Bolton, Lancashire, who, already on skimpy rations, went on an austerity diet for one week to save money for the Children's Appeal. They gave up smoking, candy and motion pictures, and limited themselves in food to 2 ounces of bacon, 5 ounces of bread, 1 ounce of tea or coffee, 4 ounces of fish, ½ pint of milk, 2 pounds of potatoes, 8 ounces of sugar, 4 of jam and ½ pound each of cereals and vegetables. "We Bolton mothers," they pledged, "believe that war will cease when a sufficiently large number of people are prepared to make such sacrifices as this for others."

In Ethiopia the people, remembering how their own children were orphaned, injured and made homeless by Mussolini's invasion, pledged a special sacrifice for the fund. In one South African school children on their own volition saved pennies from their lunch money and sent them to the United Nations headquarters. Students at Oslo University in Norway worked in homes to earn money to give. Great numbers of Norwegian youth gave a day during their spring holidays to earning their contributions.

THE PEOPLE of Plymouth, England, one of the worst blitzed towns of the war, stopped in their rebuilding program to raise funds for the world's children. Miners of Nottinghamshire worked zealously for the cause. The efficient Swiss organized their country so thoroughly that every citizen was reached with an appeal for a day's work or income. Government workers of Czechoslovakia gave three days' pay. The new state of Pakistan early made a pledge of self-denial for the cause. The people of Iceland averaged $3 a head in contributions.

Constantly to the United Nations come pledges or gifts representing sacrifice from all races, creeds and nationalities. People among all the 50 nations participating in the movement seem to be aware of what Gabriela Mistral pointed out in her appeal: "Many of the things we need have to wait. The child cannot . . . Help that comes too late does not save the child."

This country's effort to raise 60 million dollars to be apportioned among the Children's Appeal and the American Overseas relief agencies is now under way in many cities. Generous giving is naturally expected of the United States as the world's richest nation. Those who conceived the idea of uniting the world on the idea that "no child can be allowed to starve" have been hopeful Americans will give—not carelessly or begrudgingly as another dole to charity—but sacrificially and enthusiastically. For thus they will become one with the millions who are giving in this manner throughout the world.

One-Sided Reporting

Concerning the column of Mr. Shirley Povich in the May 4 Washington Post there seems to be a general feeling among newspaper reporters, sports reporters in particular that freedom of the press is absolute and without any limitations.

The column concerns a man in the athletic limelight who has had the audacity to bar a sports reporter from premises on which he and his fellows are tolerated as invited guests and not by any legal process. Now begins the "war" between a great metropolitan daily and a lone figure.

Conceded that newspapers have done a world of good to the country in exposing the various evils and rackets which beset us, but, after all, sports are for relaxation, enjoyment and just plain fun. A lot of the fun is taken away by the type of writer who has nothing to offer but insults, one-sided views and sarcastic remarks, but never a word of praise.

These comments are not meant in any way for The Washington Post sports staff. Mr. Povich merely brought the problem right to the point, though he failed to take a stand, which, I think, is real, unbiased reporting.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

The Kremlin's Choice

VIENNA.—In this bedraggled city, once so gay and now so dreary, there is little surface evidence of fear. The Austrian people have become oddly hardened to living under the Soviet Sword of Damocles. Yet even as this is written, the future of Austria is being decided in Moscow, and the future of the world will surely be closely affected by the decision. For the western negotiators in London, by refusing to continue the haggling on the Austrian treaty, have quite clearly said to the Russians, "Your move."

Thus it is now up to the Kremlin to choose, once and for all. The Soviets can try for the whole Austrian loaf, by signing a treaty and thus insuring the evacuation of the western troops. Or they can accept half a loaf, and try to incorporate only their zone of Austria into the monolithic structure of the great Soviet European empire. In either choice there are clearly explosive possibilities.

Until very recently it seemed likely that the Kremlin was seriously considering the great gamble of signing an Austrian treaty. The gamble must still seem tempting. To the Soviet planners, peering at their maps, Austria must have appeared a soft and easy mouthful, firmly held between the upper and lower jaws of the Soviet sphere, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia. It must have seemed (as it has seemed to many Austrians and some Americans) that, once the western troops were withdrawn, Austria could hardly withstand the economic and political pressure which the Soviet Union and its satellites could bring to bear.

BUT WITHIN the last few weeks, the odds have suddenly begun to change. The Marshall Plan is passed, guaranteeing an independent Austria and economic breathing spell. The western allies have let it be known that they will only evacuate Austria if both Western Union and the United States are willing to provide some sort of firm guaranty of the Austrian borders against aggression. Finally, there is the lesson of Italy, certainly fresh in Moscow minds.

The Communist Party that failed so dismally in Italy is the strongest and best in the west. The Austrian Communist Party is small and weak, with leaders so inept that they have been rudely reprimanded by both the Cominform and the Kremlin. For all these reasons, it is now believed probable — though still not certain—that the Kremlin will resist the temptation of a bold gamble for all of Austria, and the treaty negotiations will break down, probably never to be resumed.

But if that happens, those who have followed Soviet policy at close range expect the beginning of an entirely new, and perhaps extremely critical phase. Once a treaty becomes no longer a possibility, the pressure on the western powers in Vienna will almost certainly increase. The Soviets, entirely surrounding Vienna, will no doubt make things as difficult as possible for the westerners. This is certainly a disturbing prospect but it has been made clear to the Russians that there is a limit beyond which they cannot go without courting war. No one can accurately foresee how far the Russians will go, but on the basis of previous experience here it is doubted that they will pass this limit.

FAR MORE alarming, in fact, is the second development which is pretty generally anticipated. That is the partition of Austria, on the pattern of the partition of Germany. For except for Finland, the Soviet zone of Austria is the softest spot, the most likely area of infection, in the whole vast Soviet sphere of Europe.

It is easy to think of Austria as a kind of miniature Germany, with the Russian zone as tightly gripped by Russian power as in Germany. In fact, Austria has a central government. Despite some operatic Soviet pressure, the Austrian officials and functionaries of the Soviet zone are responsible, not to the Russians, but to the Austrian government in Vienna. Austrians move freely between one zone and another.

Most Austrians in the Soviet zone, with what appears downright foolhardiness, are quite openly anti-Communist and anti-Soviet. Workers in the factories seized by the Russians as war booty are represented by Socialist unions, bitterly anti-Communist, and hostile to their new employers, which must seem to the Kremlin a crowning indignity.

While a peace treaty is still possible, this resistance will be tolerated. But many here doubt that it would long survive the final breakdown of treaty negotiations. Instead, it is generally expected, the partition of Austria will begin. Movements will be restricted. Communications with other zones will be broken. Food shipments will be held up. Local officials will be instructed that they must no longer take orders from Vienna. Freedom will die. All this could be done slowly and gradually, so that the world would hardly notice. Or it could be done quickly and brutally, as in Czechoslovakia.

Perhaps nothing of the sort will happen. Yet it is well to consider in advance what the western policy is to be. For a Soviet attempt to expel the Austrian government from its zone of Austria will be in flagrant violation of treaty. And to this sort of overt attack, the western powers must somehow respond firmly.

Pennsylvania Dutch in Stew Over U. S. Cheaper Food Menu

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Staff Writer

Representative Gross (R., Pa.) is mad at the Agriculture Department. He says it's trying to tell Pennsylvania Dutchmen what to eat.

Gross got up on the House floor yesterday to talk to the Agriculture people like, well, like a Dutch uncle.

It seems the department has got out some sample menus to show how cheaper foods often may be substituted for scarce ones.

Save for one particular, that's all right with Gross.

"They say, 'eat cabbage instead of asparagus,'" he said. "Well, we eat cabbage the year around. This is the time of year when a fellow needs a little asparagus."

But it's geographically, not gastronomically, that he thinks the agriculture people are in error.

"They decided to start in Lancaster and York Counties in Pennsylvania," he said, in horror.

"Grocers are marking, 'best buy of the day.' That sort of thing.

"Why, we're Pennsylvania Dutch up there. Every housewife has enough food canned to run her four, maybe five years."

Gross later explained to a reporter that telling a Pennsylvania Dutchman what to eat is as ridiculous as telling Ted Williams how to bat.

"Those cellars," he said dreamily. "Those wonderful cellars.

"We probably eat better than anyone else, and we eat cheaper, too. We know how to do it."

Gross said he understands that in some unfavored sections of the United States, people live out of grocery stores and cellars collect only mice and broken down furniture.

"Let them take their campaigns there," he said.

"Although we can point to outstanding achievements and phenomenal advances over the last 80-odd years," he said, "realism forces us to admit that black America still occupies a precarious position."

The Atom In Politics

SINCE THE fateful day, now nearly three years ago, when the atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima, a great many people who formerly paid little attention to politics have been learning how the American system works and how it doesn't work. That goes for the scientists, who feel a special responsibility for having unlocked the door marked "Danger, do not enter."

Childs

The other day a group of top scientists, including several who had contributed vitally to the discovery of atomic fission, met with Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper, chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee. They listened to Hickenlooper explain why it would be impossible to confirm David Lilienthal and the four other members whom President Truman has reappointed to the Atomic Energy Commission.

Hickenlooper told the scientists that a move for confirmation would be the signal for a mud-slinging attack that would come from both Democratic and Republican sides of the Senate chamber. With what seemed to the scientists to be deep sincerity, he expressed concern that the work of the commission would be impaired by such a fight.

HIS OWN compromise plan to extend the terms of all commissioners for two years, Hickenlooper argued, would avoid that fight. Furthermore, as Hickenlooper presented the case, it would give the commission a chance to carry through certain plans now in the transition stage.

An open attack now, with charges and countercharges flying back and forth, would upset those plans. No body of men, however capable and determined, could have brought about the transition of atomic research from a wartime to a peacetime basis in so short a period.

False starts and moves, certain to be construed at this stage as mistakes, were inevitable. Thus, when the AEC arbitrarily ordered the closing down of the laboratories at Oak Ridge in Tennessee, which were to be reestablished later near Chicago, it produced an angry outburst from the hundreds of scientists involved.

There entered in here, too, the South's right to keep this center. That would undoubtedly figure in a confirmation fight.

To say that the scientists were convinced by Hickenlooper's presentation would be an oversimplification. Politics, it seemed to some of them, was a game played by the old rule of heads I win, tails you lose.

What has happened in this connection might have been averted in an election year, but from the beginning the likelihood was for just this sort of impasse. It began when President Truman failed to consult Hickenlooper or any member of the Senate-House Atomic Committee about his reappointment of the commissioners, whose terms expire in August.

THE SENATE-House Committee was created under the McMahon Act and given broad powers of supervision. That in itself would seem to have put a responsibility on the President to confer with the committee over the all-important appointments.

When he failed to do so, even after Hickenlooper asked him to consider a compromise, the storm signals went up. Republicans who had come to Lilienthal's defense last year and had made his original confirmation possible—among them, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg—became convinced the President was deliberately seeking to make a political issue.

Vandenberg makes the point that the law provided for a 12-months shakedown run for the commission and that the fight over confirmation last year had the effect of cutting that in half. This is one reason why he favors the Hickenlooper compromise.

Without his support, confirmation of the President's appointments is obviously impossible. Senator Robert A. Taft is insisting that the terms of the commissioners be extended for only one year. Taft will get some support for this move.

Nevertheless, the strong probability is that the Hickenlooper compromise will come out of committee and be passed by the Senate with relatively little debate. The House is expected to follow this lead.

Then, of course, will come the gravest test. If the President should exercise his veto power, the whole atomic energy program would be left suspended in midair until next January. That is why the scientists are hoping that President Truman will rise to the occasion and accept what would seem to be the inevitable. But they are frank to admit that they do not know whether this will happen. Then still have a lot to learn about politics, as they freely admit.

Harriman Denounces Attitude Of Soviet on Marshall Plan

Paris, May 11 (AP).—W. Averell Harriman criticized Russia's attitude on the Marshall Plan today.

The roving ambassador for the European Recovery Program was here to discuss with western European leaders plans for reconstruction of the continent. He told a news conference:

"The interpretation that has been put by the Soviet Union on the European Recovery Program is entirely distorted and always has been distorted. Its interpretation has had no relationship to the intentions of the United States or of the nations which worked it out."

Harriman told the news conference that he and the Marshall Plan council—it was the first time he had met leaders of the European Marshall Plan organization—promptly agreed "that this is a European program and that the initiative should be taken by the council."

He said the American role is to assist the council to make the program effective and to see that the reconstruction purposes are carried out.

Peterson to Retire From Fire Department; Capt. Ronan Gets $6242 Battalion Chief Post

Carlistle S. Peterson, 47-year-old Fire Department battalion chief and executive officer, will retire on June 1 on a $260-a-month pension for physical disability, the Commissioners announced yesterday.

Capt. William H. Ronan, 42, whom Fire Chief Clement Murphy recommended as "the best qualified captain" to succeed Peterson, was appointed to the $6242-a-year post of battalion chief.

He will be assigned temporarily as department executive officer, Murphy said, but is qualified to take active command of a battalion.

Testified at Trial

Peterson testified against Chief Murphy during his January trial on "demoralization" charges. Ronan was technical adviser to defense attorneys. A special civilian trial board acquitted Murphy.

Peterson's retirement was recommended by the Retiring and Relief Board after the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons found him "incapacitated" by anxiety neurosis, hernia and chronic bronchitis—"incurred in the line of duty."

Peterson joined the department in August, 1923, and served at No. 21 Engine Company until December, 1929, when he was detailed to the administrative department at headquarters.

He became captain and executive officer in June, 1940, with the approval of the Civil Service Commission, although he was not qualified to perform a captain's fire-fighting duties, Chief Murphy said. In June, 1943, he was promoted to battalion chief and executive officer under the same arrangement.

Plans "Long Rest"

Peterson, his wife and a son live at 1811 23d st. se. He said he is in "no shape to work" and will "take a long rest" after June 1.

Ronan joined the department in May, 1929, and worked up "through the ranks" to captain in July, 1946, with 11 years' experience in "busy" engine companies, five years with truck companies, and three years with a rescue squad. He was commended twice for rescues.

During the war he was assigned to the Air Raid Warden Service. He lives with his wife and seven children at 1319 Rittenhouse st. nw.

Fathers and Sons Dine at Oxon Hill, Hear Dr. Hastings

The annual fathers and sons banquet under sponsorship of the South gate YMCA was held last night in St. Barnabas Hall, Oxon Hill, Md.

In addition to a program of entainment fathers and sons who attended the banquet heard an address by Dr. J. Warren Hastings, pastor of National City Christian Church here, who pointed out the difference between stoic and Christion courage. He said there are few heroics in Christian courage.

"A man finds freedom in his discipline," said Dr. Hastings. "The world can only find freedom in her discipline. It is foolhardy for any one to feel that he will find the road to freedom by walking down the trail of licentiousness."

House Upholds TVA Steam Unit Ban

By The Associated Press

The House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday the 1949 Government corporations appropriations bill after refusing to restore four million dollars for a TVA steam power plant.

The measure provides $37,979,061 in direct appropriations for 25 Government agencies for the fiscal year starting July 1.

It includes a grant of $27,389,061 for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Passage came aften an amendment by Representative Gore (D., Tenn.) to boost the TVA fund by four million dollars to start building the steam plant was beaten down.

The split on the issue was generally along party lines. The roll call vote was 152 for and 192 against the amendment.

On an earlier teller vote in which no record was made of how individuals voted, the amendment to restore the four milion dollar item to the bill was turned down, 157 to 120.

The four million dollar item for the steam plant was trimmed out of the bill by the House Appropriations Committee last week.

President's Parley Credited With Increased Fire Prevention

Widespread fire prevention activity over the Nation has resulted from the President's Conference on Fire Prevention a year ago, W. E. Reynolds told the National Fire Protection Association yesterday.

Speaking in the absence of Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Public Works Agency administrator, Reynolds outlined progress of fire protection work done by various States. He reported that a model statute permitting adoption of codes and statutes by reference will be presented to State Legislatures in 1949.

"On another vital sector," he said, "the National Education Association has undertaken a fire-prevention education program in our schools and colleges."

About 500 members of the international organization, which will conclude its four-day meeting at the Statler Hotel Thursday, also attended a forum on the part of youth in fire prevention.

They heard 13-year-old Gordon Osmond, ninth-grade student at Alice Deal Junior High School, urge increased fire education programs in schools. Young Osmond pointed out that many fires are readily extinguished, provided the proper technique is used.

Wednesday, member will tour the National Bureau of Standards, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Archives and the D. C. Fire Department, including a cruise on the fireboat.

Chief Frank McAuliffe, president of the International Association of Fire Chiefs, will be principal speaker at Wednesday evening's session. He will discuss "Teamwork in Fire Protection."

Memo to Congress:

What Price "Unification"?

(Look for a "Rider" in H.R. 6341)

You may shortly be called upon to vote on House Resolution 6341. It is a Navy Public Works Bill. It is an innocuous-looking item calling for an airport at Annapolis, but it is a costly slap at unification.

Merger—Or Camouflage

*(An editorial from the Southern Maryland Times:)

Representative Hugh A. Meade's proposal that the Army and Navy use Andrews Field jointly offers a sane solution to Navy's problem of establishing facilities for flight indoctrination of midshipmen.

W. Stuart Symington, Secretary of Air, replying to Congressman Meade's suggestion, said he would be "most willing" to consider the Prince George's County field for both Army and Navy needs.

Andrews Field is only eight minutes flying time from the Naval Academy. By road it is approximately as far from Annapolis as Stewart Field is from West Point.

While several problems would have to be worked out, Mr. Symington declared, the Air Force would "do all in its power" to satisfy Naval requirements . . .

Meanwhile, Senator Millard E. Tydings was quoted as expressing the conviction that existing facilities should be utilized by Navy wherever practicable. Senator Tydings was further quoted as saying that full consideration should be given the Andrews Field proposal.

The Senator's suggestions are logical. It should be understood that Navy's stubborn insistence on the Sandy Point site means that the admirals demand expenditure of some $12,000,000 of the taxpayers' money for land and $100,000,000 more for construction.

Sandy Point, at the bottleneck of Chesapeake Bay, is near the main ship channel. In the opinion of maritime experts, approaching planes would create a serious hazard to congested water-borne commerce to and from the Port of Baltimore.

As a result, they fear, Baltimore may become a port for shippers to avoid.

The Sandy Point site, Representative Meade said, is three times as large as Washington's National Airport, yet would have housing facilities for only 48 planes.

With all of this, the actual air training planned for each midshipman is said to be only six hours each year.

The Andrews Field proposal should be studied thoroughly. If it is proved feasible, Navy's airfield problem is solved, and a long, bitter fight is at an end.

In this connection, it will be interesting to observe the Navy's reaction to the wholehearted offer of Air Secretary Symington.

From that reaction may be gleaned a definite indication of whether the merger of the Armed Services is real unification, or whether it is mere camouflage, insofar as Navy is concerned.

Please amend and knock out this unnecessary airport proposal.

"I NEVER GO TO THE MOVIES!"

In addition to hundreds of thousands of Washingtonians who regularly attend motion pictures there are many (perhaps you) who seldom go.

For you, the infrequent movie-goer there is ONE EXCEPTIONAL motion picture of such dramatic impact that you would be unfair to yourself not to see it.

It is the first film to be photographed in the authentic background of the American zone of Germany. A company of Americans were sent by M-G-M to enact principal roles, but most of the cast of hundreds are persons who actually lived its drama.

Jay Carmody in the STAR says, "The greatest love story ever told on the screen . . . To see it is a debt every movie-goer owes to himself . . . Played by one of the most inspired casts in screen history."

"THE SEARCH" has won the unanimous praise of the Washington critics, as well as citations and awards from many national magazines.

If you attend only the exceptional motion picture, you will be gratified by a visit to "THE SEARCH"

The Post leads AGAIN in Want Ad Gains!

And here's why..

Yes, a new tabulation shows that The Washington Post is still topping all other Washington papers in want ad gains. Here's how classified totals for the four months January through April compared with those of the same period last year.

Changes in want ad totals

Number of individual want ads

January-April 1948 vs. January-April 1947

POST	gained	22.2%
Paper B	gained	5.9%
Paper C	gained	5.5%
Paper D	lost	1.0%

Why are more and more people turning to The Post for classified advertising? Results! Results like those obtained by Corporal J. P. of Bolling Field, who last week got an apartment for his family of four in three days through The Post.. Results like those of Mrs. G. B., Douglas Street N.E.—she sold a dinette set for $50 the first day her Post ad appeared. Results like Mrs. L. K. of Upshur Street got May 5 when she advertised a room for rent. A high-type tenant took the room immediately.

Next time you have a want ad to place, get greater effectiveness for your expenditure. Use The Washington Post. Call NAtional 4200 and ask for an ad writer.

One on the Aisle—

Strauss Standby Has 'War Record'

By Richard L. Coe

AN INFECTIOUS, HAPPY musical has arrived at the Little—"Die Fledermaus," the Johann Strauss perennial whose tunes you know well.

The players are German, the soundtrack is good, and while one must quarrel that some of the best parts of the Strauss score are literally glossed over, the music you do hear is completely beguiling.

There's quite a story behind this latest version of "The Bat." The film is being presented by Artkino as "the first postwar German film in color to arrive in the United States." This isn't exactly true.

The film actually was made by the Germans in Vienna during the war, a fact which will be borne out by the lavishness of the settings and the use of German stars who were popular with the Nazis. When the Russians entered Vienna the film was seized and is now being released throughout the world by the Soviet film exporting firm, Artkino.

So while it certainly is not "the first postwar German film" this old favorite does come through as a gay, charming piece which captures the spirit of the old Viennese operettas. The absurd plot of marital infidelities and jealousies is brightly rolled along by a packet of experts. The girls are large blondes with peaches and cream complexions, they wink at the drop of a fan and think of nothing but liebe, liebe, liebe.

You may have seen this story on our operetta stages as "Rosalinda," "Champagne Sec," "The Merry Countess," "Nightbirds" or "The Bat," which means there's no point in going into its story of a theatrical manager who gets back at some friends' practical joke with a colossal one of his own. Remember?

No Worry for Natalie Kalmus

The characters are good fun in their Teutonic way, and it's pleasant, too, to hear the German language once more from the screen. While this party's German is limited to things like trinkwasser and verboten, the language has a tonal charm that's been missed.

Of all the players, you're most likely to enjoy Willi Fritsch, as the drunken jail keeper, one of his land's finest comedians and most effective as a pantomime artist.

There's been a good deal of advance pother about the German color process, but this is most surprising. It's blurred and given to horrible oranges and puces which are, one assumes, supposed to be reds and blues. Natalie Kalmus' Technicolor process has nothing to worry about from this quarter.

As befits even a wartime German endeavor on behalf of "Die Fledermaus," the production is extremely lavish and spirited. The word for the Little's newcomer is Vienna's own—gemuetlich.

"GIVE US THE EARTH" is one of those worthwhile shorts that comes along too seldom. . . . This Agriculture Department film is at the Trans-Lux and tells of our Government's efforts to bring the best scientific training to our Southern neighbors and the good such a helping hand policy can bring to ourselves. . . . It's a fine little picture and Loew's guarantees it good exhibition across the country.

"ALLEY MOON" is doing right well as the finale for Catholic University's season. . . . It's sold out for its scheduled run and an additional performance has been scheduled for next Sunday. . . . Tickets at Michigan 6000, extension 358.

AMATEUR LIFE: "Bonds of Interest" winds up its two-week run tonight as the winter season's finale of the Mount Vernon Players, at 900 Massachusetts ave. . . . The Foundry Theater is playing "Dear Ruth," the comedy's first nonprofessional appearance in this area, Thursday and Friday nights in the Foundry Methodist Church Dramatic Hall at 8:30; in the cast are Vivian Elliott, James Reish, Neeva Sanders and Bob Fabrik . . . The Browne Junior High School's Faculty Players are acting that popular melodrama, "The Ninth Guest," Friday night at 8:30 in the school auditorium . . . American University's Speech Club is doing "Charley's Aunt" Friday and Saturday nights at the Leonard Student Center, Ward Circle; Director Ella Harllee's cast includes Daniel Fisher, Albert Hodge, William King, Estelle Davis, Jack Gordon, Ruth Reiter, Gladys Phillips, William Garber and Helen Herbert.

"DIE FLEDERMAUS." Artkino release of a DEFA (Berlin) production from the operetta by Johann Strauss, adapted from the play by Meilhac and Halevy, "Le Reveillon." Music adapted by Alois Melichor. English titles by Charles Clement. Directed by Oscar von Boisrory. At the Little beginning Tuesday night.

'Black Raider' Gets 15 Years

Atlanta, May 11 (AP).—R. B. Ellison, named as one of the ringleaders in the recent "Black Raider" floggings, today pleaded guilty to participating in two terrorist whippings and was given a sentence of three years — the limit under the law.

Ellison, charged with assault with intent to murder Roy C. Berry on April 15 and Roy Gravitt on March 31, was allowed to plead guilty to the lesser charge of assault and battery.

In both instances, Ellison defended the actions of the Klan-linked floggers as "attempts to do good." He asked leniency in both cases "to show the women and children in this State that someone is interested in their welfare."

Ellison accused both flogging victims of failing to support their families.

After Ellison's statement, his attorney, John Echols, told Judge Boyd Almand, "His ideas of right and wrong are so far at variance with mine, I don't have any idea what to suggest."

Jury trials began today for three others accused in the floggings. Trials of three others were reset for June 2.

Reno Divorce Valid, Support Suit Is Out

The validity of a Reno divorce was upheld in District Court here yesterday, thereby saving Richard Stokes, a Washington correspondent, $700 monthly maintenance sought by his former wife.

Justice F. Dickinson Letts held that the Nevada divorce obtained by the 66-year-old Stokes in September of 1945 was legal and left Kathryn Stokes, his former wife, without right to sue for separate maintenance.

Stokes, correspondent for the St. Louis Post Dispatch, lives at 2224 F st. nw. Mrs. Stokes lives at 5224 Manning pl. nw.

Produced in court before the dismissal order was a letter, written to his wife while he was a foreign correspondent in Europe in December of 1944.

The letter told of Stokes' love for a French woman and voiced his request for "the divorce you have so often demanded."

The letter, read in full as Mrs. Stokes wept, was introduced primarily to show Stokes' intended disposition of their home.

"Do not think I am trying to be brutal," it said, "but the house and what it contains are yours to rent or sell as you please. My salary will continue to be yours as long as I am abroad, which will be the end of the European war, unless the paper recalls me."

Stokes, a native of Indiana, has been made music and drama critic of the Post Dispatch and of the old New York Evening World. He wrote the libretto for an English opera, "Merry Mount," which was produced by the Metropolitan Opera Company. He also has written the first full-length biography of Leon Blum, France's former Prime Minister; a folk comedy, "Paul Bunyan," and a drama in heroic couplets on Benedict Arnold.

The property referred to in the letter is the Manning pl. house, which was purchased in her name originally, Mrs. Stokes said.

Hackney Made Head of Local C. L. U. Group

By S. Oliver Goodman

Charles W. Hackney is the new president of the District of Columbia Chapter of Chartered Life Underwriters, succeeding Charles W. O'Donnell.

Hackney

Hackney, a native of North Carolina, came here in 1939 as Washington general agent of Minnesota Mutual Life Insurance Co. A graduate of Trinity College (now Duke University), he has been associated with Minnesota Mutual since 1935.

Other officers elected Monday by the CLU group are: Vice president, Chester R. Jones of State Mutual Life; secretary-treasurer, J. Mitchell Owens of John Hancock Mutual; directors, Joseph M. Silverman of Franklin Life, W. Elwood Baker of New York Life, J. Alan Maphis of Equitable Life Assurance Society, W. Ford Harvey of Penn Mutual, Leo B. Crabbs of Equitable Society, and J. Lawrence Choate of Mutual Benefit Life.

ISSUE AWARDED: Washington Suburban Sanitary District awarded one million dollars in water main and sewer construction bonds to Phelps Fenn & Co. and associates, including Ferris & Co of Washington. The bonds, bearing a 2⅛ per cent coupon, were bid at a small premium of $3250 over the million face value. On reoffering, the bonds are priced to yield from 1.20 per cent to 2.90 per cent, depending on maturity.

NECKTIES: Do you own 22 neckties? Do you buy or does somebody thrust upon you 13 neckties a year? If so, you are the "average man" as selected in a survey of 22 merchants composing the style committee of the National Association of Retail Clothiers. The stylists weren't unanimous. You can squeak by with only 12 ties in a pinch, but you ought to have 40, they figure. If you buy only four ties a year, you get a passing mark. However, 25 new ties a year put you at the head of the class. Father's Day is June 20, if you're wondering why these figures have been compiled.

SALES INCREASE: The Hecht Co. reported sales of $18,451,089 for the three months ended April 30 (first quarter of its fiscal year), a gain of 18.6 per cent over the $15,561,852 for the same 1947 period. Chairman M. S. Hecht pointed out that sales in the latest period included the Silver Spring store, which was not in operation during the first 1947 period.

ODD LOTS: Consumer incomes increased during March to an annual rate of $208,500,000,000, the Commerce Department reports . . . General Motors Corp. said its United States and Canadian factories produced 190,211 cars and trucks in April, against 209,597 in March . . . Advertising prepared by the Washington agency of Henry J. Kaufman & Associates for the Stone Straw Corp. has won an award in a national contest conducted by the Associated Business Papers . . . Southern Pacific Co. has awarded an $11,100,000 equipment trust issue to a group headed by Salomon Bros. & Hutzler . . . Commonwealth & Southern Corp.'s construction program for this year is about 50 per cent greater than last year's $93,901,748 . . . The first 100 per cent nylon-pile carpet made for home use is being displayed in 14 cities, including Washington. Retail price is expected to be between $50 and $60 a square yard . . . Steel industry lifted its scheduled operations this week to 94.3 per cent of rated capacity from 91 per cent last week.

NEW ENTERPRISE: A new organization for the development of electronic, optical and mechanical devices has been formed with a laboratory and machine shop at 4718 Bethesda ave., Bethesda, Md. President and technical director is Donald H. Jacobs, former physicist with U. S. Bureau of Standards and Naval Observatory. Assistant technical director is Michael May, whose background includes 12 years of research and development work in electronics for the British government and industry. Both Jacobs and May recently were associated with the aerophysics laboratory of North American Aviation, Inc.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: J. Clifford Folger of Washington was elected to the board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange; also Charles S. Garland of Baltimore . . . Samuel Zemurray resigned as president of United Fruit Co. and is succeeded by Thomas D. Cabot of Boston . . . Arthur B. Gunnarson, first president of the Washington Chapter, has been appointed secretary of the National Association of Cost Accountants . . . Harry C. Weiss, president of Humble Oil & Refining Co., was elected board chairman and Hines H. Baker, executive vice president, was elevated to president.

EARNINGS: Commonwealth & Southern Corp. reported consolidated net income of $29,871,797 for 1947, equal to .63 cents a common share, against $31,795,681, or 69 cents a common share, in the previous year. Other income reports follow:

Chicago Grain

Chicago, May 11 (AP).—Corn was the bellwether at the Board of Trade today, advancing more than 4 cents a bushel in fairly active trading.

Traders said tightness in the May contract prompted covering by shorts, who looked with disfavor at the small visible supply and the light country offerings.

Oats also showed some independent strength at the start but were forced to follow the leadership of corn. Demand for wheat was not sustained.

At the finish wheat was unchanged to ⅛ cent higher than the previous close, May, 2.43⅜@2.44. Corn was 1⅞ to 4½ cents higher, May, 2.25¾@2.26. Oats were 1⅛ to 2⅛ higher, May, 1.15⅝@1.18⅛, and soybeans were 2½ to 3 cents higher, May, 3.02.

Selling interest in wheat was rather light, but sentiment was affected by the Government crop report, which was not as pessimistic as recent private estimates. Government intervention in the rail strike also had an effect on trading.

New York Cotton

New York, May 11 (AP).—Cotton registered losses of 25 to 60 cents a bale today. The market established new season's highs on small gains in early dealings, but thereafter felt liquidating pressure from New Orleans and commission houses. Losses at one time extended to almost $1.50 a bale, but prices recovered partially on short covering.

Mullen to Quit NBC, Head Three Stations

New York, May 11 (AP).—Frank E. Mullen was reported today to be planning to resign as executive vice president of the National Broadcasting Co. to become president of Goodwill Stations, Inc.

Sources close to both organizations said a deal had been practically completed for Mullen to succeed G. A. Richards as head of Goodwill Stations, which operates WJR in Detroit, WGAR in Cleveland and KMPC in Los Angeles. It was understood Richards might retire from active administration of the stations—all of 50,000 watts power.

The resignation of Mullen, who heads NBC's ambitious television operations, is expected to become effective July 1.

RESCUED—George L. Thompson, 61, of 2305 3d st. ne., lies unconscious in an ambulance of Fire Rescue Squad 1 and is treated by Pvt. T. C. Parker of Engine Company 1. Thompson was brought from his home after fire swept the first floor. He was treated at Casualty

Two persons were carried to safety yesterday as fire swept swiftly through their two-story, brick row house at 2305 3d st. ne.

They were George L. Thompson, 61, owner of the house, who was found unconscious in the smoke-filled basement, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Lizzy Rutherford, 72, whose screams from the front porch brought rescuers.

Thompson was saved by William Stormont, 41, who kicked in the basement door, found Thompson huddled against it unconscious, amid "intense heat and clouds of black smoke." Stormont carried him outside. He was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Mrs. Rutherford was assisted from the front porch by another neighbor, David Brown, 53, of 2315 3d st. ne. He helped her to a nearby residence.

The blaze, which apparently started in the basement, swept through the first and second floors firemen had it under control and virtually out within half an hour, the interior was gutted. Row houses on either side suffered little damage.

The alarm was turned in by Police Pvts. F. G. Egbers and D. L. Costello of the Twelfth Precinct, who noticed smoke pouring out front windows as they cruised past.

Thompson, a carpenter, resides at the 3d st. address with his wife, May, a saleswoman at a downtown department store; a daughter, Margaret, and Mrs. Rutherford.

McNayr Gets Ultimatum on County Job

Montgomery County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr was given until next Tuesday to decide whether he is going to accept another job or remain with the county.

The ultimatum was delivered yesterday during a meeting of the Montgomery County Commissioners in which the closed door could not keep silent the shouted remarks.

McNayr had revealed last week that he had an offer of a post as assistant director of purchases and special services with the New York Port Authority in New York City. The job, he said, would pay "considerably more" than the $7500 he receives from the county.

Yesterday's tilt was precipitated by County Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter, who demanded to know whether McNayr plans to go or stay. McNayr had said previously that he would not leave until after the budget is completed, but Sauter maintained such a course was improper and said he intends to have McNayr dismissed if his decision is to remain in the county.

The commissioners yesterday approved a report of a special committee on the county home which provides that the nine inmates be placed elsewhere by the county welfare board. It was suggested the property might be used as a school for handicapped children.

The special committee, which was appointed by the Montgomery County Chest and Council, recommended that plans be made for caring for aged and chronically ill persons in an institution near a hospital. The committee reported the fire hazard at the home is great and there is too little supervision of the patients at night.

Fairfax Split On Truman Issue Is Seen

Fairfax County's 32 delegates to the Virginia State Democratic convention are about evenly divided on the issue of bolting the party if President Truman is nominated.

Three delegates elected at the county convention Monday night said yesterday the delegation now favors a bolt by 17 to 15. A random poll of delegates by The Washington Post supported that statement.

The three delegates pointed out, however, that there is a possibility some of the delegates might change sides if the issue comes up.

Under the "unit rule" of voting in the July 2 State convention, adopted at the county convention Monday night, a majority of the delegation will cast all of the county's 16 votes. The State convention will meet in Richmond.

Prince Georges Tightens Rules On Carnivals

The Prince Georges County Commissioners moved yesterday to tighten up procedures for issuing permits for carnivals.

Effective June 1, the board decided, applicants for permits must advertise their intention to hold carnivals for at least two weeks in county papers and then must appear before the commissioners at a public hearing to explain the purpose of the proposed shows.

In the past, carnival permits have been granted as a routine matter on receipt of written applications to the commissioners.

Five such permits were issued at yesterday's meeting before the board decided to adopt a more rigid policy.

The commissioners gave their unanimous approval to a proposal by several county groups to seek State legislation to permit the State to finance construction of school facilities which are badly needed in Maryland counties.

North Dakota Delegates To Hold Out for Truman

Fargo, N. Dak., May 11 (AP).—North Dakota Democrats today voted to instruct delegates to the natoinal convention to vote for renomination of President Truman "as long as his name is before the convention."

National conventoin delegates will be chosen tomorrow along with candidates for the June 29 primary election.

Wertz Triples Twice With Two On, Nats Lose, 4-1

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ON MONDAY NIGHT Sidney Walker will attempt to stretch his Griffith Stadium winning streak to three straight. It will be his first start at the stadium in two years. He pitches overhand, sidearm and underhand. He's better known as Beau Jack, the busiest fighter since Henry Armstrong.

POVICH

The last seen of Beau Jack in the Stadium, he was making hamburger of stubborn Danny Kapilow and chopping out a decision in a messy 10-round bout. Six weeks before that in the same ring he caught up with Sammy Angott in the seventh round and numbed him with a bolo punch.

Mons. Al Weill is bringing Beau Jack back to the stadium on Monday for a contest with Tony Janiro, the Youngstown, Ohio, welterweight who is the only fighter to boast a knockout victory over Beau Jack. That happened in Madison Square Garden a year ago and to hear Weil tell it Beau Jack is aching for this return match.

"Get me Janiro again," Weill quotes Beau Jack. "That's one guy I always could lick," Beau Jack added in strange disregard for the facts.

THE LAST JANIRO-BEAU JACK fight was somewhat inconclusive despite the fact it is entered in the records as a technical knockout for Janiro in four rounds. It was a close fight as far as it went, but in the fourth round Beau Jack's trick knee collapsed and they stopped it, awarding the fight to Janiro. Beau Jack agrees that he lost the fight, but according to Weill he doesn't understand why they called it a knockout.

"Technical-Schmechnical, what kind of a knockout is that?" Weill quotes Beau Jack. "He didn't stop me, he didn't even hurt me. Nobody ever knocked me out. I ain't a knocked-out fighter yet."

Beau Jack will be the favorite to square matters with Janiro Monday night. After a long rest and an operation on his knee, he returned to campaigning and has won seven of eight fights. The knee hasn't bothered him.

As a welterweight, Janiro all but licked Jake LaMotta last winter at a time when LaMotta was supposed to be the uncrowned champion of the middleweights. LaMotta got the decision, but Janiro gave him a busy night of it despite conceding weight. He'll have the weight advantage over Beau Jack.

"IT'S A NEW YORK FIGHT I'm putting on in Washington," says Promoter Weill grandly. "I am lucky to get it for Washington. It does not come here except that the Boxing Managers Guild are on strike against Mike Jacobs and won't put the show on in New York. Jacobs is crying for it, but I will put it on for my friends in Washington."

To hear Weill tell it, the Garden was frantically trying to buy out his show all last week when it appeared certain that the Managers' Guild strike would end. "They offered to give me $7000 for the promoter rights if I gave them the show for New York. I would not do that because Washington deserves it and I promised them good fights."

It ought to be a good fight at that. Beau Jack never has figured in a dull one. The only way he knows how to fight is to keep punching, and the only time he takes a backward step is when he's knocked back. That happens, too, because he's easy to hit. With Janiro, he'll be in there against a sharpshooter who wasn't at all awed by the threat that LaMotta would knock him out of the ring.

WEILL SHED SOME LIGHT, incidentally, on the Managers Guild's squabble with Promoter Jacobs and the Garden. "It wasn't a fight with Jacobs at all. If Mike hadn't been sick and turned the match-making business over to Sol Strauss, there would have been no trouble at all. Strauss tried to make a showing on the balance sheet by cutting the fighters' guarantees down from 60 per cent to 55 per cent. We always could get 60 per cent from Mike if it looked like a good show. We held out for part of the television rights because Strauss got so tough with us on the other."

He airily dismissed last week's development when Jacob's man, Strauss, filed suit against Weill to recover $3000 which Weill owed Jacobs on an advance payment two years before. "Everybody on Forty Ninth Street owes Mike money, why did they have to pick me out to sue?" says Weill.

He's gonna pay up the $3000 right away, says Weill. He never had any idea of denying the debt, ne says. "I'd have paid Mike long ago, except he never asked me for it. If I had thought he needed the money . . ."

Griffs Push Run Across On Tigers in 9th Inning

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Rookie Vic Wertz tripled to score two Detroit runs last night and you can say that over again without being redundant because he did it twice to lift the Tigers to a 4-1 victory over Mickey Haefner and the Nats.

Wertz's two blows—struck in the first and sixth innings—accounted for all of the Tigers' runs and moved unbeaten Hal Trucks to his third straight pitching victory.

Trucks, after pitching himself out of frequent trouble for eight innings, was clipped for Washington's lone run in the ninth and retired in favor of Frank Overmire.

Coan Homers

Gil Coan provided the 14,461 customers a shortlived thrill in that ninth inning with two on base and the Nats needing three runs to tie. He whaled a line drive over the right field wall foul by a couple of feet or so Umpire Cal Hubbard said. Nobody squawked except the fans, so Hubbard apparently was correct.

That ninth inning was the only exciting session for the customers.

A walk to pinch hitter Al Evans, and Eddie Yost's double into the left field corner cut the Tigers' lead to 4-1, and when Trucks also walked Kozar he was withdrawn.

Overmire was pitching when Coan whacked his near homer. From that point the Nats' situation worsened rapidly. Coan made another bid for a hit but Mullin speared his line drive into right field and the Nats were a gone gang when Vernon grounded out.

Nats Outhit Tigers

The Nats outhit the Tigers, 9 to 7, if that's any consolation. But for eight innings they got only one man as far as third base against the fast-balling Trucks.

Haefner ran into sudden trouble in the first inning after getting two men out. He walked Mullin and pitched a two-bagger to Evers. Wertz whacked his next pitch into right field to score 'em both.

The same two guys were on base with two out again in the sixth when Wertz again tripled over Sherry Robertson's head to raise the Tigers' lead to 4-0.

The Nats had men on bases against Trucks in every inning except the seventh. They got nothing out of the third inning despite the fact that Wooten and Haefner led off with singles. On Haefner's blow, which skittered off the glove of Third Baseman Lake, Wooten attempted to race to third when he saw that bag unprotected but Pitcher Trucks beat him to the base to take a throw from Berry and retire him to puncture the Nats' rally.

Again in the seventh the first two Nats led off with hits, singles by Early and Wooten, but it was futile. Pinch-hitter Early Wynn lined out, Yost walked to fill the bases, and Kozar and Coan could raise only short flies to center field.

Forrest Thompson pitched the last two innings for the Nats and held the Tigers hitless, but that proved unimportant.

Keltner Hits 10th Homer

Reynolds Wins 5th Straight, Halts High-Flying Tribe, 4-1

New York, May 11 (AP).—Allie Reynolds halted the high-flying Cleveland Indians today, snapping their five-game win streak with a 4-1 victory for the New York Yankees. It was Reynolds' fifth straight success in an unbeaten season.

Reynolds, although nicked for nine hits, including Ken Keltner's tenth homer in the fourth inning, held his former mates in control most of the afternoon. Charley Keller, making a fine comeback, was his biggest booster with two doubles and a single.

In the second, seventh and eighth, the Tribe had two men on base but could not get to Reynolds for the big hit they needed.

Bob Lemon, the most consistent winner on the Cleveland staff, yielded all the runs before he was lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Keller accounted for both scores in the first inning. He doubled to right center, driving home Bobby Brown who had dumped a single into short left between Lou Boudreau and Dale Mitchell. Boudreau got his glove on the ball but dropped it. Keller later scored on Joe DiMaggio's fly.

A double by Keller, an infield out and a single by DiMaggio gave New York a run in the third. Johnny Lindell's double down the left field line, followed by Joe Gordon's error and Bill Johnson's single added up the final score in the fifth.

Stephens Hits Two . . .

Kramer Ends Bosox Losing Streak, 8-0, Aided by 3 Homers

Boston, May 11 (AP).—Aided by two home runs by Vern Stephens and one by Bobby Doerr, the Boston Red Sox today blanked the Chicago White Sox, 8-0, behind the six-single pitching of handsome Jack Kramer, against whom only one enemy base runner advanced as far as second base.

Stephens treated Starter Glen Moulder like a batting practice pitcher, leading off the second inning with a home run high into the screen atop the left field wall and duplicating the stunt in the third inning.

Bobby Doerr followed the example in the second inning when he too punched a drive into the same netting.

Boston Manager Joe McCarthy changed his lineup in an effort to put some thump into the local hose who had lost five in a row. Stan Spence, who has been a first baseman all season, was sent to right field and Jake Jones played first.

Eastern's Ramblers took over undisputed possession of first place yesterday with a 7-2 victory over previously unbeaten Wilson at Eastern stadium. It was Eastern's fifth straight Interhigh league triumph.

Eastern thereby clinches a play-off berth.

Right-hander Eddie Kline turned in a sparkling three-hit pitching job, retiring the last 10 Wilson batters in order. Kline got plenty of help from Shortstop Billy Kallas' big bat. Bill's long homer over the centerfield wall in the third was Eastern's second run. His double to right in the fourth knocked in the fifth run. And his single to center in the sixth sent home the last two.

Nathaniel Wins by Neck In Jennings

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., May 11.—Maryland bred horses who have been holding their own with those from Kentucky and elsewhere added another victory to their growing string today. Some local fans were taking this as an omen that the Free State's Bovard might upset Citation, the Calumet comet, in the Preakness Saturday.

Anyway the Lazy F Ranch's Nathaniel, a sone of Challenger II and foaled at the W. L. Brann farm near Frederick, accounted for the $7500 added Jennings Handicap today. Jockey Arnold Kirkland, the Virginia boy, booted the colt home a neck in front of the Shamrock Stable's Little Harp, piloted by Paul Keiper.

The beaten-off third in the field of five was Calumet Farm's Pep Well. Only two others, Pentagon Stable's The Doge and H. G. Bedwell's Daily Dip competed.

Nathaniel, a consistent sprinter on a fast track, showed his victory was not a fluke by turning in the three quarters in 1:11 1-5, the fastest 6 furlongs of the current meeting and the best for the race since E. K. Bryson's Director J. E. won his Jennings in 1:11.

The crowd of 11,000 shopped around for a favorite and finally settled on The Doge which flashed some speed and then folded like a 100-1 shot. Nathaniel returned an $8.20 mutuel.

The victory was worth $5975 to Nathaniel and brought his season's earnings to $9650 for two victories in three starts.

2 More Out Of Preakness

Pimlico, Md., May 11.—The ever-shrinking Preakness field was further reduced today with the withdrawal of Cornelius V. Whitney's Mount Marcy and W. L. Brann's Escadru. Mount Marcy was taken out of the big race here while Escadru was withdrawn by Trainer Ed Christmas who sent word to that effect from New York.

The Whitney stable will rely on Vulcan's Forge, according to Trainer Sylvester Veitch. It was disclosed today that Mount Marcy, second to Bovard here yesterday, had suffered a bucked shin and was showing a decided lameness.

Jockey Ted Atkinson was to have ridden Mount Marcy in the Preakness, but he will now stay in New York. Jockey Johnny Gilbert, who had been engaged to handle Vulcan's Forge, will have that mount.

It looks like a very small field will go after Citation in the famous Maryland race.

King Ranch's Better Self arrived from New York and Trainer Max Hirsch said the colt would be a definite starter. From New York also came word that Trainer Christmas intended to point Escadru for the Belmont Stakes on June 12.

Kenwood Defeats Manor

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Despite the brilliant effort of Mrs. Walter Stokes of Manor, Kenwood's strong team held its lead in the Women's District Golf Association first team matches yesterday at Congressional.

Mrs. Stokes shot a 79 to enable her and her partner, Mrs. R. B. Watson, to take three points from Kenwood's Mrs. Betty Meckley and Mrs. Rex Howard, although Mrs. Howard shot a fine 83.

But that three points was all Manor was able to get because Kenwood's other two teams, Mrs. S. Crocker-Mrs. P. Trouchaud and Mrs. Ellen Harris-Mrs. Ed. Widmayer shut out their Manor opponents.

The victory enabled Kenwood to stay in front of Army-Navy, who trounced Washington Golf and Country Club, 8-1.

In the day's other match, Chevy Chase took over third place in the team standings by virtue of a one-sided 9-0 triumph over Woodmont.

The clubs now stand: Kenwood, 30½; Army-Navy, 24; Chevy Chase, 19½; Manor, 12; Washington, 10, and Woodmont and Congressional, 6 points each.

Manor Wins, Takes Second Team Lead

Manor Country Club took over the lead in the Women's District Golf Association second team matches yesterday at Prince Georges by scoring a crushing 9-0 victory over Congressional.

The triumph gave Manor 22½ points and a 3-point lead over idle Prince Georges after four weeks of play.

In other matches, Kenwood downed Belle Haven, 6½-2½, and Washington Golf and Country Club edged Chevy Chase, 5-4.

Kenwood is now in third place with 15½, followed by Chevy Chase, 15; Washington, 15; Belle Haven, 12½, and Congressional, 8½.

War Assets Lay-Off To Affect Less Than 100 Employes Here

WAR ASSETS: The lay-off in this agency will be less than was expected. About 3800 WAA jobs the country over must be knocked out before July 1. Less than 100 of these are in headquarters here. Lay-off notices will go out the end of this month. This is the personnel picture:

WAA had 23,795 employes on May 1. In this city were 2098. The Budget Bureau ordered the surplus-selling agency to get down to 20,000-man staff as of July 1. At headquarters could be 2000.

This doesn't mean that 3795 employes will be fired. In April, for example, turnover cut 1500 from the WAA staff and big batches of resignations are expected this and next month. By September 1, WAA must be down to 16,000 employes.

Meantime, it seems that Congress will not act on the President's plan to transfer WAA and Treasury's Bureau of Federal Supply to Federal Works.

PERSONALS: Milton Katz, a former War Production Board lawyer, who is the Byrne professor of law at Harvard, is slated to be appointed general counsel to W. Averell Harriman, the roving ambassador to the Marshall plan countries . . . Assistant Commerce Secretary John Alison leaves today for Geneva. He is the chairman of the United States delegation to the International Aviation Organization . . . The Senate has approved a bill to raise the travel allowance of railway mail clerks from $4 to $6 a day.

LIBRARY: The House Appropriations Committee yesterday rejected its request for funds to hire upwards of 400 new employes. The only personnel increase it approved was for 17 jobs in its copyright office. Explaining its action, the committee reported:

"The basic question is simply whether the Library is to continue to expand its elaborate and numerous services, or continue at approximately its current level and on its present basis, or whether it is to function as a library primarily for the benefit of Congress and governmental agencies."

The committee warned that it will continue to deny requests for expanded activities until the policy question is settled. It also recommended:

That the librarian immediately take up with a legislative committee a plan to provide a suitable appeals procedure for Library employes who are accused of disloyalty; that the Library's organizational structure should be simplified, and that the ratio of high-salaried jobs should be cut.

GPO: The committee cut $3,392,000 from the budget of the Government Printing Office, but no employe would lose his job if the reduction is approved. Most of the cut was in GPO's revolving fund.

The committee turned down a plan of the Superintendent of Documents to establish regional offices to sell GPO publications.

It took a crack at GPO's accounting methods which it described as "unsound business practices." The Public Printer was instructed to undertake a study of the agency's accounting system.

NOTES: The committee rejected a plea for funds to hire 15 more Capitol policemen. . . . It urged an over-all inquiry of the salaries paid employes of the House of Representatives. It conceded that there are many inequities between the salaries of various employes. . . . The committee put the Keefe Red rider onto the legislative appropriation bill. This rider would prevent funds being used to pay the salary of any employe who is a member of any organization whose officers have not signed anti-Communist affidavits. It could result in the withholding of salaries for several members of Congress who are members of the printers' union.

UPWA: The Red rider has upset the plans of this left-wing union. CIO's United Public Workers will convention next week in Atlantic City. Plans are afoot to split off the Federal worker members under a right-wing organizing committee.

But now, it seems, some legal experts believe the Red rider would cover State employes who are paid in part by Federal funds—a bloc of employes the UPWA has been reasonably successful in organizing. There is talk that the union will unite to fight the rider. UPWA's executive committee will meet Saturday in Atlantic City to make its recommendation on whether UPWA is to be split up.

Meantime, there appears to be a fairly good chance that the Senate will amend the Keefe rider to make it apply only to the UPWA.

HATCH ACT: The Civil Service Commission will consider liberalizing the Hatch "no politics" Act for Federal workers who live and vote in nearby Maryland and Virginia. It will hold a public hearing a week from today on the question. Anyone who wishes to present his views to the commission should contact William C. Hull, commission secretary, before May 18. Rep. Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) recently urged the commission to relax the Hatch Act for nearby Federal workers.

EFFICIENCY RATINGS: The Senate Civil Service Committee will begin public hearings a week from Friday on the efficiency rating system. A subcommittee headed by Senators Baldwin (R., Conn.), Thye (R., Minn.), and O'Daniel (D., Texas) will make the study. Meantime, the committee staff is making a study of efficiency systems used in industry.

Leading Clerics 'Amazed'

428 Marriage Law Violations Pinned in Year on 350 Pastors

Leading Washington clergymen yesterday expressed surprise at charges that local ministers have been violating the law in respect to marriage ceremonies.

They were amazed—principally—that any clergyman could be ignorant of the laws.

"The requirements are printed right on the marriage license," pointed out Episcopal Bishop Angus Dun.

The situation, according to Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King, is this: In the past year about 350 clergymen of all faiths, some of them "prominent," have performed 4" weddings in which there have been violations.

Either they did not file a proper report on the ceremony with the District Court within 10 days, as required by law.

Or they did not file any report at all.

Or a minister other than the minister named on the marriage license application performed the ceremony.

On the first two charges the maximum sentence is a $50 fine or a year in jail. The maximum penalty on the third charge is a $500 fine or a year in jail.

The only one of the 350 clergymen identified was the Rev. Parish D. Freeman, a Baptist ministerial student of 809 Howard rd. se., who was charged with failing to file a report within 10 days and performing a wedding ceremony when another minister's name had been on the application. He was allowed to forfeit $25 collateral.

King made it clear that it is not the intention of the corporation counsel's office to jail any of the ministers.

"If they have a reasonable explanation for not complying with the law there won't be any prosecution," said King.

And in cases where ministers are charged with violations, he added, they will be permitted to forfeit collateral.

King said he is attempting to contact all of the clergymen by telephone, but that if this fails it may be necessary to send a policeman to the minister's home.

"I entirely agree," commented Bishop Dun, "that the clergymen of our church and of others should conform with the law."

He said he knew of no instances of such violations but assumed where they had occurred they were due to either ignorance of the law or carelessness.

Minister Agrees With King

The Rev. J. Warren Hastings, pastor of the National City Church, said:

"My reaction is that he (King) is right. If these ministers don't know the law they should know it. And if they do know the law and ignore it they should be held legally responsible."

He added that a minister should be held as legally accountable to observe the law as a restaurant owner is to keep a clean kitchen or a motorist is to observe traffic regulations.

The same view was voiced by the Rev. E. B. Willingham, pastor of the National Memorial Baptist Church who agreed "the law should be observed."

"I know I have not violated the law in the three years I have been here," said Dr. Willingham, "and during that time I have performed between 250 and 275 ceremonies. All of the records were sent in within 24 hours of the ceremony."

Sales Tax Hearings Open Today

Commissioners To Be Called First; Parking, Hospital, Insurance Bills Up

Washington's Commissioners will be first witnesses today in joint Congressional hearings on the proposed 2-per-cent District retail sales tax.

The hearing, at 10 a. m., will be held in the Senate District Committee room at the Capitol. Another session is slated Thursday. Business, labor, citizen and other groups are to testify.

In a second hearing today, a Senate District Subcommittee will review bills to:

1. Let the District make 50-year land leases for private construction of off-street parking facilities
2. Let District insurance companies invest in obligations of the World Bank, and
3. Let Federal an dDistrict hospitals get liens against benefit payments made to accident patients, to settle the hospital bills.

In decisions yesterday, the House Public Works Committee approved bills to:

1. Let the Government give Lucy Diggs Slowe and George Washington Carver Halls here to Howard University for use as dormitories, with a 15-year option for the Government to take them back if needed for national defense, and
2. Let the Government obtain from the Smoot Sand & Gravel Co. without charge a tract of land for the Mount Vernon Memorial Parkway near Alexandria in exchange for specified dredging rights.

Randle Highlands Group Favors D. C. Sales Tax

The Randle Highlands Citizens Association last night went on record as favoring a sales tax for the District of Columbia and opposing any real estate tax increase. The group also urged repeal of the District's present income tax.

Meeting at Randle Highlands School, 30th and R sts. se., the association elected George L. Gregg, 2911 S st. se., as its new president. Other officers elected were: David C. Williams, vice president; Mrs. Edward B. Morris, executive secretary; Mrs. Joseph J. McKeon, assistant secretary; and Joseph F. Soresi, treasurer.

Tobacco Auctioneer's Chant Again Is Heard

The Washington Post

"WHAT AM I OFFERED?"—Auctioneers, buyers, growers and spectators move down the long rows of tobacco bins at a warehouse in La Plata, Md. Annual auction of the smoking weed opened yesterday in three southern Maryland towns. Prices were reported to be generally higher than last year

Stop Feuding Or Get Out, Cripple Aid Group Told

District Society For Handicapped Children Facing Affiliation Loss

The District Society for Crippled Children yesterday was told to end its staff feuding or lose its National affiliation within 60 days.

The order was issued by the executive committee of the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, which met in Chicago over the weekend to hear a report of its own investigator on the local administrative controversy.

The national organization called for reorganization of the local setup, and backed up its demand with the threat of denying local participation in the Easter seal fund-raising campaign.

The District society, which runs an extensive program for children suffering from cerebral palsy—brain injury—raised more than $50,000 in the seal drive this past Easter.

Five Quit in Dispute

The local society was jolted last month by the walkout of five members of the professional staff in a dispute with Mrs. Jewell Gaffney, executive secretary. The local executive board met hurriedly and gave Mrs. Gaffney a vote of confidence.

The national organization, however, sent its own investigator here. It was disturbed, the national executive committee said, by unfavorable publicity over the local administrative fight, by the apprehension of parents whose children are participating in the society program, and by failure of the local staff to meet Nation-wide standards.

The investigator made an 18-day probe, and reported back to the national executive committee. The order to reorganize on a basis satisfactory to the national organization followed.

Special Meeting Held

The local executive committee headed by Mrs. Beulah J. Drake last night called a special meeting at society headquarters, 176 Massachusetts ave. nw., to consider the ultimatum of the national executive committee. The order was taken under consideration.

The national leaders said they were in no manner "passing upon the merits" of any charges made against the local organization or its officials, but nonetheless, they felt that a "complete reorganization" of the local society is "absolutely essential" to overcome the effects of the recent unfavorable publicity.

The national body notified the local unit it is ready to assist in the District reorganization, and sent Luther G. Hester, national director of extension services, here to meet with the local board.

District Youth Wins $100 Poster Prize

Chicago, May 11 (AP).—A 17-year-old Detroit youth today won the $500 first prize in the nation's Easter seal design contest.

A poster designed by Ardy Kazarosian was selected from entries from 27 States by the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, sponsors of the contest. The poster will be reproduced on two billion Easter seals.

Other winners were: Darlene Krassig, 16, Newport, Oreg., second place, $200; Daniel Hardesty, 2, of 1518 Potomac ave., se., Washington, D. C., third place, $100.

Union Officer Admits Lying To Grand Jury

One of the union officials on trial in District Court on conspiracy charges admitted yesterday that he had lied in his testimony to the grand jury and to a lawyer of the union.

Evans H. Hamilton conceded that he had told both the grand jury and Vincent F. Morreale, general counsel of the International Hod Carriers Union (AFL), that executive board minutes relating to the purchase of $15,000 worth of liquor were read to the membership of Local 74 for approval.

His statements were made in October, 1943. The minutes had been taken of a board meeting September 25, 1942, and had been read at a general membership December 2, 1942, he had testified at that time.

Yesterday he said that the general meeting in December, 1942, had been adjourned before he had a chance to read the minutes of the executive board. He explained that he had had no opportunity to check before he made the false statement in 1943. He is under indictment for perjury.

Defendant George Morgan, another union official, told the court he did not know anything about the $15,000 worth of liquor, allegedly purchased with union funds by another official, Larry Kelly, and stored in the basement at union headquarters, until revenue agents began their investigation in 1943.

Kelly, alleged head of the conspiracy, has been reported dead. On trial with Morgan and Hamilton are Faust Moreschi and Joseph Speed, union officials, and Isaac Weiner, real estate man. Four others have been acquitted by Justice Alexander Holtzoff.

Ex-Pentagon 4-F Facing Fraud Charge

The best-laid paperwork of a Pentagon civvie to become an accredited Air Force lieutenant has finally won him nomination for other bars.

The case of the ambitious 4-F was revealed yesterday in Richmond, Va., where criminal information was filed against John Andrew Keller, jr., about 25, formerly of Arlington, Va., charging him with attempt to defraud the Government.

FBI agents said Keller was recently arrested in Ottawa, Ill., where he and his wife now make their home. Turned over to Assistant United States Attorney Eardley, in Chicago, he waived appearance before a Federal grand jury and agreed to stand trial in Chicago.

If convicted, he faces 10 years behind Federal bars, a $5000 fine, or both.

According to Eardley, Keller conceived a plan to appoint himself a lieutenant after his draft board ruled him ineligible for service. As a civilian employe at the Pentagon, he had access to the files, Eardley said.

So, slowly and cautiously, Keller filled out and filed the necessary papers towards becoming a second lieutenant. Travel orders indicating he served meritoriously in the European theater, citations for bravery, recommendations for the Purple Heart and even discharges from various hospitals went into his records jacket, investigators said.

Then Keller quit his Pentagon job. A few weeks later a letter was received at the Pentagon. Keller was demanding to know why he had not been promoted a first lieutenant. Army officials were sympathetic. That is, until they began receiving reports from overseas units in which Keller's records said he served that he was unknown there. The matter was turned over to Federal investigators.

McCloskey Testifies on Court Order

On the order of District Court Justice David A. Pine, Scott S. McCloskey yesterday testified before the special Federal grand jury investigating real estate lobbying here.

McCloskey, a real estate man who recently had offices in the Barr Building, had refused even to enter the grand jury room Monday. Taken immediately before Justice Pine, he explained he had refused on the advice of counsel.

His attorney, John W. Slater, declared that the subpena ordering McCloskey to appear before the grand jury with records of any correspondence he had had with a "large number" of persons "related to Federal legislation" was too vague for him to obey.

Last Wednesday, when McCloskey originally appeared before the grand jury, he was granted a continuance to Monday. Justice Pine denied a continuance of several days Monday and ordered him to appear in court yesterday.

After hearing the defense arguments, Justice Pine ruled that McCloskey must testify or face further court action.

D. C. Area Woman Dies in Tennessee Of Auto Injuries

A 51-year-old Bladensburg woman died early yesterday in a Nashville, Tenn., hospital of injuries suffered in an auto accident near Nashville Monday night.

Mrs. Louise Allen, 3609 Kenilworth ave., was fatally injured when an automobile driven by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Howard Cobb, 21, 2404 Valley Way, Cheverly, plunged over an embankment. Mrs. Cobb and her 10-month-old daughter, Deborah Ann, were not seriously injured.

According to members of the family, the two women were returning from a vacation visit

Mrs. Ella Thompson to Head Citizens' Group for 24th Term

Mrs. Ella M. Thompson of 1536 16th st. nw., last night was re-elected to serve her twenty-fourth term as president of the Thomas Circle Citizens Association.

Mrs. Thompson

The group of about 25 persons, meeting at Mrs. Thompson's home, adopted two resolutions. One commended District Attorney George M. Fay for his efforts to stamp out gambling here. The other opposed the proposed plan to make 10th and 12th sts. nw., one-way streets.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Fred J. Haig, vice president; Mrs. Mary B. Wilson, secretary, and Frank M. Thompson, treasurer and corresponding secretary.

Foley succeeds William Miller, head of Miller Furniutre Co., who was president of the association 12 years. Last night's meeting was held at the law offices of Joseph Schneider at 7th and F sts. sw.

Other officers elected were: Frank Hurst, vice president; Hugh A. Rourke, secretary; Michael Troiano, treasurer, and Ashley Abendscheim, Joseph Schneider and Morris Engle, executive committee members.

5 Held for Jury On Charges Of Gambling

Five persons, arraigned on gambling charges yesterday before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, were ordered held for grand jury action.

Arrested Monday at 1039 5th st. ne., they were: Luther S. Saunders, 44, of the 5th st. address; Edna M. Young, 44, of 1125 5th st. ne.; Herman G. Brown, 43, of 1036 6th st. ne.; John Wesley Smith, 30, of 519 L st. ne., and John Rozier, 48, of 76 I st. nw.

Tobacco Up As Auctions Open in Md.

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

South Maryland's tobacco auctions opened in three towns yesterday, Waldorf, La Plata and Hughesville, with prices generally higher than last year.

Many tobacco experts, auctioneers, bidders for large companies, and warehousemen, predicted the crop of 38.4 million pounds may bring as much cash into the Maryland hills as last year's all-time record crop of 47 million pounds.

Bidders for foreign governments, who were conspicuous by their absence last year, were present yesterday. All large cigarette manufacturers were present, and several dealers.

There was grumbling, as usual, by some growers, and warehousemen were anxious not to boast that prices were high in the hope that as the auction progresses they will go still higher.

At the Waldorf warehouse of Ryon, Turner & Robinson the official top was announced as 63 cents a pound, compared with 58 cents on opening day last year. The Washington Post reporter, however, saw several burdens bring 65 cents. The low was 10½ against 8 cents a year ago. One grower at Waldorf got 40 cents for a "hack" of last year's tobacco. A year ago he rejected a bid of 18 cents for the same tobacco.

Giving strength to the market was the Government grading by the Department of Agriculture. Under the grading system the Government supports the price. If a grower is dissatisfied with the offer, he can borrow or sell to the Government at 90 per cent of parity for his grade.

Top grade tobacco was slighty higher than a year ago, medium generally well above 1947 bids, although low grades found a slow market.

Recreation Chief Fears Budget Trim

The D. C. Recreation Board yesterday was told by Superintendent Milo F. Christiansen, that he fears the Senate may cut back on the District recreation budget approved by the House.

Christiansen said that in a new procedure, he had been called to the Hill by investigators for the Senate Appropriations Committee, who intimated they felt the District's recreation bill is too high.

The board voted to ask the District Commissioners to request that they be given time to state their case if the Senate should decide to take such action.

Asks Use of 79 Schools

The board also is asking the Board of Education for community recreation use of 79 school buildings and grounds during the period June 24 through September 30. Three new schools are included in the request. They are Hayes, Merritt and Blow schools.

Yesterday's board session was enlivened by a discussion on how much a footbridge should cost. The bridge in question, a 30-foot span for pedestrians at the Watts Branch Playground, Banks pl. and 61st st., is estimated to cost $6000.

The bridge would be of reinforced concrete. Said Board Chairman Harry Wender:

"I'm not going to vote for $6000 to spend for a 30-foot bridge. I think it's unconscionable. I don't see why we have to build a bridge that's going to last forever—20 years is enough."

C. Melvin Sharpe said the board probably would be "criticized bitterly" if it should decide to spend $6000 for the bridge, but that the board still must consider whether erecting a cheaper, timber bridge would, in the end be economy.

Decides to Seek Bids

The board decided to ask for bids for the project, and also asked that preliminary plans for a timber bridge be made. Robert Andrews, assistant superintendent, said bids on the project have been promised by June 3.

During the session, the board voted to ask the District Commissioners to request the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to assign the Bald Eagle area and addition to the Anacostia Recreation Center. The board had asked for this assignment in 1944, at which time the Navy Department had indicated it would need to continue use of the land.

N.Y. Plunge Victim Is Identified as Arlington Man

New York police yesterday announced that the man found dead Friday on the roof of a fourth floor extension of an 11-story midtown building has been identified as Jesse C. Duke, 58, of 2109 N. Illinois st., Arlington, Va.

Identification was made, police said, by the dead man's son, Jesse C. Duke, jr., of the Arlington address.

Fourteen years ago, Jesse Clarion Duke, attorney here, was disbarred on charges brought by the District Bar Association that he had brought false charges against Justice F. Dickinson Letts, then on the District Supreme Court, and Leo A. Rover, former United States attorney.

ubrey Morgans to Join ritish Embassy Staff

By Marie McNair

NTERESTING additions to the British Embassy staff will be Aubrey Neil Morgan and Mrs. Morgan, who is the youngest ughter of Mrs. Dwight Morrow and therefore a sister of Mrs. arles Lindbergh. Mr. Morgan's wartime job was under the imposing title of Deputy Director General and Controller of the British Information Services in the United States. He's been named personal assistant to the new British Ambassador, Sir Oliver Franks, due to arrive in Washington the end of this month.

MRS. McNAIR

The Morgans at war's end went back to their farm at Ridgefield, Washington State, where they're bringing up their three children.

Mrs. Morgan, the former Constance Morrow, is youngest of the three Morrow girls. Her father, the late Dwight Morrow, was once Senator from New Jersey, later Ambassador to Mexico, and it was while he was attending the London Naval Conference back 1930 that young Morgan first met the Morrow family. Aubrey rgan married Elizabeth, eldest of the trio, and after her death married her sister. As Constance Morrow, Mrs. Morgan took a g at summer theater while still a student at Smith. She achieved mething of a success under the name of Constance Reeves.

WHAT TO WEAR," the eternal feminine question, takes on new importance for the less than two dozen women invited the garden party on Thursday at Buckingham Palace.

'Nothing elaborate, nothing extreme," says Mrs. William H. ck, of Washington, wife of the American Consul General at uthampton, "but definitely the new look." Her gown of beige pe ' a swing skirt and with it she'll wear matching gloves d a bangkok straw hat. Her daughter, Betty, has chosen a green d white print, a white straw hat trimmed in black ribbons, white ves and black shoes

Also in the group who'll meet King George and Queen Elizabeth Miss Sherley Smith, granddaughter of Mrs. Dwight Davis of shington, who was presented to society here at a dance, given her grandmother, last June. The debutante's frock will be a glish print—green and white on a black ground and with it e'll wear a white hat.

MRS. RANDOLPH HUNTINGTON MINER, a great lady, who admits to 80 summers, had a fund of anecdotes in a life as a rld traveler, wife of a Navy man, and a descendant of the last anish Governor of the California Territory.

Some memories make her laugh, at others she weeps. But sad gay she can tell a story with the same enthusiasm as if it had st occurred.

Recalling the years when she lived in Los Angeles, she remembers a butler whom she had engaged only a day or two before a ge dinner party at which she was to be hostess.

In Italy at her villa near Genoa, Mrs. Miner's men servants ver appeared unless in livery. She wished her new butler to nform to the same standard so she informed him she would purase the proper outfit.

"Don't bother, madame," he replied, "I have a uniform already." —came the dinner hour. A number of Mrs. Miner's San Franco friends were seated about the table.

Imagine the look of surprise and pain on the hostess' face when butler's arm shot out with the soup plate and emblazoned in d across his forearm were the words 'St. Francis Hotel."

Hush Hush Party Honors President; Needed—a Class For Dancing Diplomats

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

ONE OF THE most hush-hush entertainments of the season was the birthday party given in honor of President Truman by Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark. It was at the F Street Club and all other would-be diners were shoo-ed away to insure the President a spot of relative privacy.

This department's starting a campaign to include dancing lessons in the curricula of all diplomats. Lately, a number of the town's charming Ambassadors have been stepping around dance floors with disastrous results for their partners. One of the neatest gliders about is Vassili Dendramis, Greece's envoy, who is equally skilled at bridge.

Radio notes: Mme. van Kleffens, the youthful, Netherlands Ambassadress, broadcasts several times a week. She's good. Listen in . . . A clever radio promotion job is an ad for a pie crust mix program. They have sent everyone on their list three bright copper pennies—which can be exchanged for a package of the product. In a mail topheavy with bills, 3 cents for free looks dandy!

Tra La La Notes

HANDSOME new oddments spotted around town include Mrs. George Mesta's brown tulle evening gown, its trailing skirts weighted down with giant, pinky-white roses . . . Mrs. Robert Hooker's white ostrich feather cape. Mrs. H., by the by, has had a hectic spring, her husband's in Moscow, her brother just returned from the Battle of Bogota . . . Mrs. Richard McCreery's armful of diamond bracelets—each one handsomer than the last . . . Helen Harrison, the Leland Harrison's younger daughter, in a pink and blue striped dance dress—the material bought in Switzerland.

Something new in entertainment—the Hawaiian dancer, grass skirt and all, who has been undulating at some of this month's parties.

Refreshing job—Anthony Hyde, once deputy director of OMWR and one of those who worked on President Truman's economic report, is off to New York to publicize tea. Why not bottle a good iced tea for summer consumption?

Our Interesting Visitors

INTERESTING women here and about-to-be-here include Countess Rosie Waldeck and Helen Vlachos. Countess Waldeck, who penned "Athene Palace," the best seller about Romania under the Nazi regime, has polished off her second historical novel. Its heroine is Napoleon's friend, the Duchesse de Brantes. Now the Reader's Digest is planning to send her to Germany to toss off articles, write a book.

Dark, tiny Rosie works very hard at her trade, lives in a New York hotel to avoid the pleasures (really!) of housekeeping.

Helen Vlachos, who is young and snappy looking, is an associate editor of Athens' leading newspaper, Kathimerin, which boils down to precisely five letters in English, "Daily!" She is here to talk to our press, to study newspaper methods and has been invited to talk at both Democratic and Republican women's clubs. Mme. Dendramis, wife of the Greek Ambassador, is steering her around.

Romance in the Air

AN INTERESTING marriage-in-the-offing is that of Betty Whittaker, widow of the Herald-Tribunes' star correspondent, John Whittaker, and Charles Owsley. Betty, who is the exceedingly pretty mama of four children, will go to Switzerland where "Chuck" is working for the State Department. He is an Ohioan, a former colonel in the China-Burma-India area and an expert in psychological warfare.

Henry Pleasants 3d, Maj. William E. Shedd, Capt. Hugh M. Wendle, Lieut. Levin Broughton and Lieut. Kenneth R. Hansen.

A reception followed in the Great Gallery of the famed Schoenbrunn Palace.

Steinbach—Cortvriendt

Given in marriage by her stepfather, Mr. Neidhardt, the bride wore a white gabardine suit with navy blue accessories and carried a nosegay of white flowers.

Mrs. Dorothy York, matron of honor, wore a light blue suit with wine accessories and a corsage of Joanna Hill roses. Constant Cavallo served as best man, and James A. Cortvriendt as usher.

MRS. TRUMAN (center), guest of honor at the D. C. On the Capital Club Front

Women Challenged in Peace Effort

By Genevieve Reynolds

Two national leaders—Senator Alexander Wiley and Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, yesterday challenged American women to utilize their leadership for world peace.

Occasion was the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs' annual breakfast honoring Mrs. Truman. The gala event, held yesterday in the Mayflower Hotel, was attended by approximately 800 of the Capital's club leaders.

The Wisconsin Senator told the audience, "Girls, you can't pass the buck to Congress. You have to accept your role as leaders in the church, community, Nation, and in world affairs."

Thinking Needed

Pointing out that fear envelops the world, he declared that what is needed is "straight thinking and a sense of adequacy for the job of world leadership that has been thrust upon this country."

Senator Wiley offered Lincoln's three safety valves for easing out nerves and clear thinking—sense of humor, prayer and love of country.

In conclusion the Senator remarked, "If you want to help this country, have confidence in your government and the legislators."

Mrs. Buck said that uppermost in every speaker's talk she had heard across the Nation was, "will there be war or peace."

She admonished her listeners to look at things realistically—as they are. "There never has been a normal time; therefore, let us go ahead with times as they are," she advised.

The federation head maintained that she disagreed with those speakers who advocated dropping a bomb on Russia now. "We should think deeply and watch carefully what is happening so that we can see that there won't be World War III," she said.

Then she listed a series of international events which might have brought on World War III had not the United States watched carefully and proceeded slowly. Included among them were the British plane incident a few weeks ago in Europe; Bogota revolution inspired by communists; Italian elections; threat of Soviets to take over Finland; and the Korean elections.

In addition, she called attention to two other explosive issues which, she said, can provoke war if not handled wisely. These are the withdrawal of British troops from Palestine and the June 30 dead line set by the Soviets for Great Britain, France and the United States to pull out their occupation forces from Germany.

Communist Types

Mrs. Buck recalled a conversation that she had had with a Korean woman recently. She said that the woman described the Communists in Korea as (1) the apple type—red on the outside and white inside; (2) tomato kind—red all the way through; (3) watermelon type, nice green and attractive on outside but Red on inside.

The federation head asserted: "I don't doubt but what we have the same three types of Communists here. The most dangerous, of course, is the watermelon kind."

Outlining the General Federation's indorsement of the Stratton bill, Marshall Plan, universal military training and support of the State Department's Voice of America Program, she appealed to the predominantly feminine audience to back renewal of the reciprocal trade agreements.

Stressing the necessity for a strong Air Force, Army and Navy, Mrs. Buck averred: "Only if we are strong can we talk peace and assume our role of world leadership which we inherited from Great Britain. We are building a strong Army, Navy and Air Force for peace, not war."

Reviewing the part that federation women have played and are playing in building friendship among other women of the world, she concluded, "If American women can build a bridge of friendship around the world with other women—we can have peace."

Dances Are Given

One of the high lights of the program was a group of native Philippine dances, including the Sa Kaburiran, Kandingan, Pandango Sa Illaw and the Tinkling or Bamboo. Dancers included Miss Florence del Carmelo, Mrs. Anita Montehermoso, Francisco. Piano accompanist was Miss Milagros Santos.

Special music for the breakfast was furnished by the Metropolitan Police Department Band under the direction of Capt. Charles Benter and Olin A. Maxfield.

Among the distinguished guests at the head table in addition to the First Lady were Mme. Van Kleffens, wife of the Netherlands Ambassador; Mrs. Narciso Ramos, wife of the Counselor of the Philippine Embassy; Mrs. Mamie Lander, past most worthy grand matron of the Order of the Eastern Star; Mrs. Roy D. Whitlock, president of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Mildred Wells, editor of the general federation's magazine, "The Club Woman"; Mrs. Leslie Wright, national legislation chairman of the General Federation, and Mrs. Wallace Streeter.

Committee chairman planning the festivities were Mrs. Marie Deal, music; Mrs. Edgar B. Merritt and Mrs. Albert Sharp, printing; Mrs. William N. Collins and Mrs. Lee D. Ritter, hospitality; Mrs. William O. Gale, arrangements; Mrs. Needham C. Turnage, decorations, and Mrs. Ernest W. Howard, publicity.

Delegates to the District of Columbia Chapter, P. E. O. Sisterhood's annual convention, which opened yesterday at the Kennedy Warren, rounded out a jammed calendar of reports, music and skits with a gala banquet. Guest of honor at the social event was Mrs. Laura Storms Knapp, of Ames, Iowa, first vice president of Supreme Chapter, who will be principal speaker at this afternoon's meeting.

High light of the morning session was the presentation of a charter to Chapter X by Mrs. Knapp. This is the Twenty-fourth District chapter recently organized by Mrs. Edgar A. Stansfeld.

In her report at the afternoon gathering, Mrs. R. E. Brewster, first vice president, stated that all chapters participated in philanthropic activities, and that several are sponsoring loan funds to girls. In addition 12 chapters have sent packages of food and clothing through CARE to Austria, Germany, England, France, Finland and Holland plus gifts to Cottey Junior College, the District P. E. O. Welfare and Post War Funds.

The national PEO educational fund now total over one million dollars.

Miss Margaret Rommel, treasurer, reported that there are 770 active members of the District of Columbia Sisterhood; that 23 chapters contributed $777 to Cottey Junior College, which was organized and is maintained by the PEO Sisterhood.

During the afternoon the convention recessed to hear Dr. Peter Marshall, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church and Chaplain of the Senate, talk on "Love," which is the conclave's chosen theme.

Included on yesterday's program was "an Hour of Remembrance" for seven members who died during the past year; presentation of a PEO Projects play, "Margy Goes to College," written by Mrs. Ida U. Brown of Chapter H. Those taking part were Mrs. Brown, Elizabeth Mann and Mrs. Virginia Kirkbride.

Recent Discussion of Wife's Sharp Refusal To Clean Husband's Muddy Shoes Brings Novel Slant From Reader; Says Wife Is Maladjusted

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Some time ago you discussed a wife's sore grievance with her husband's untidy ways and his insistent notion that she should pick up after him, keep his clothes in order, clean his shoes, etc., in addition to doing all the housework for a family of four, including two young children.

The gist of your verdict was that the man's attitude is childishly selfish and inconsiderate, and in conclusion you remarked, "A shift towards maturity on his part is necessary to restore good feeling; and the most you can do to bring it about is to be sturdily outspoken and self confident in defining justice, instead of seething inwardly about his childishness."

Now, may I suggest that the sharp quarrel over his muddy shoes is a relatively safe point, unconsciously chosen by them, for venting disappointment in the marriage as it is working out. This need to explode over a trivial matter also implies that each has a strong desire to keep the family relationship intact.

Thus I doubt that the lady's distress would be much relieved if her husband took a more responsible attitude towards his clothes. I think her real problem is her maladjustment to the wife-mother role; for she frankly admits her boredom with housekeeping and child care as compared to the stimulation of an office job.

Suggests Four Aids to Morale

ALTHOUGH she performs her homemaker duties conscientiously, the expense to herself of these tedious activities is evident in her general frustration, now overtly leveled at her husband's untidiness, but covertly perhaps at the man himself for bringing these trials upon her. He in turn is demanding undue proof of wifely devotion as reassurance, because he instinctively feels threatened by her rebellious attitude.

Instead of asserting a right to refuse to be her husband's valet, Edith might better assert her right to get away from the house and the children for one-half day a week, to invest time and money in any activity which appeals to her. Many mothers use this time to prepare for a more interesting occupation in later years than their pre-marriage jobs afforded.

A second aid to morale is to realize that the present phase is temporary, that it must of necessity last only until the children reach school-age, after which she may take a part-time job if she so inclines. A third, more immediate "lift" may be found in current creative activity that can be picked up at odd times during the day or evening.

Reflect That Youth Can't Last Forever

SEWING is one such possibility: designing children's clothes and/or toys; making hook rugs, writing children's stories, becoming an expert cook of unusual dishes, gardening, etc. It isn't necessary to spend a lot of time on a hobby to get benefit from it. It is only important to be bursting with enthusiasm to get at it when a chance occurs.

A fourth suggestion is to pause frequently to see life in perspective. Instead of idealizing the memory of her secretarial job as it may have seemed in the flush of youth, she should reflect on how it would seem now, if she were still unwed and looking more frantically for "the ma.," while her friends were busy with marriage, children and homemaking.

This reflection might be sufficient to help her enjoy the five minutes a day spent tidying up after her husband or the quarter-hour given to cleaning his shoes as a special favor. A sense of pleasure in her wifely status would take her husband off the defensive and relieve his childish reaction to the threat implied in her present wrathful attitude. R. T.

Will Wives Applaud These Helpful Hints?

DEAR R. T.: This is an interesting slant, which I am glad to pass on to Edith and other homemakers wrestling with comparable vexations. Perhaps they will tell us what they think of your suggestions. M. H.

COTTON Fantasy: Two of the charming cootton frocks shown in yesterday's fashion show at Lisner Auditorium, were these designed by Adele Simpson. Made of pastel hued chambray they are ballerina length and are worn over full length dotted swiss petticoats with dust ruffles reaching to the floor. They are matched with chambray parasols. Cotton Steals the Spotlight In Summertime Style Show

Two cotton frocks, from the clever hands of Adele Simpson, stole the spotlight at yesterday's star-studded fashion show at Lisner Auditorium.

The simple, but charming, little dresses had plenty of competition. Staged for the benefit of the equipment fund of George Washington University Hospital by the members of the women's board, the show brought together famous names of officialdom, stage, screen and fashion.

Mrs. Truman was guest of honor at the afternoon showing, and additional notables were present at the 8 p. m. performance. Ilka Chase, fashion authority, authoress and actress, who is currently appearing in "There Goes the Bride" at the National Theater, spoke briefly before the curtain rose on the fashion show. Other celebrities taking part in the program included the Duncan sisters of Topsy and Eva fame, who presided at the presentation of the prizes.

Taking a cue from Washington's present torrid wave, the show was entitled "In the Good Old Summer Time." It was presented by Julius Garfinckel & Co., and featured fashions by such well known designers as Hattie Carnegie, Ben Reig, Jane Derby and Miss Simpson.

The latter's chief contributions were the twin cotton dance dresses which opened the show. Made of sheer, fine woven chambray, they are ballerina length and worn over full-length dotted swiss petticoats, two large ruffles showing below the hem of the dress. Shown in pale pastel shades of pink and blue, they were effective with the matching parasols which the models carried.

Mrs. Douglas L. Hatch was general chairman of the show, and Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, chairman of patrons. Other members of the committee were Mrs. W. Royce Powell, chairman of awards; Mrs. Joseph C. McGarraghy, chairman of programs, and Mrs. Joseph Vivari, chairman of ushers.

About Colors For Wallpaper

We are going to have our living room and hall repapered. I had thought of pale green all over, including woodwork. We want to get new rugs and drapes and are undecided on color. We have an antique sofa done in dark red, also a gentleman's chair in gold. We do not want to have to have these two pieces done over. Please help us out on the color of rugs and drapes, and advise us if the green walls would be suitable. H. L. C.

A pale greyed green, a greyed blue green, or a Wedgewood blue would be lovely as a background wall color for your red sofa and gold chair. If the room is on a sunny side of the house you could use a rug the same color, but a deeper shade than the walls. For instance, with pale green walls a deeper pale green rug. The choice of a plain rug would be especially good if the room is not large. If the upholstery on the sofa and chair is plain fabric and, since the walls also have no figure, perhaps a figured rug which has rich reds, gold and green in the design would be nice. An oriental type design would work well. With a figured rug the drapes could be a plain gold or brocaded gold fabric, or if you choose a plain rug, choose curtains with design, picking up the predominant colors in your room in the design.

My husband and I are expecting a baby very shortly. We are planning our announcements and are having a problem. Many of my relatives don't know my husband, nor my married name, as we are living away from home. When they receive our announcements they won't know who it is from. I would like to put my maiden name or my father's name somewhere on the announcement. Can you suggest any way to do this so that it won't look ridiculous? I am an only child and there won't be any confusion about the maiden name. M. L.

It is perfectly proper and very nice to send personal notes announcing the baby's arrival. So, at least for the announcements going to relatives who are not familiar with your married name, I would suggest you write them a personal note signing it with your maiden name and your married name, such as, Sally Jones Brooks. Or, such a note could be written on the back of the announcement card.

Please tell me how to remove shine from a black suit. M. W.

Moisten a sponge or soft cloth with water and thoroughly rub the shiny areas with it. This should help to bring up the nap, doing away with the shine. Also, pressing the suit very lightly using a heavy damp pressing cloth over the suit under the iron, helps to remove shine.

In trying out the recipe which appeared recently in The Washington Post, called "Tarred Angel Pie," I found that the semi-sweet chocolate would not melt sufficiently (in the top of a double boiler) to be poured over the pie; in fact it was difficult even to spread it. Since I think this is the most delicious pie I have ever tasted, I am anxious to perfect it and thought perhaps you could give me some advice. J. G. W.

While the semisweet chocolate is in the double boiler, add hot water a few drops at a time, stirring constantly. Continue adding the hot water very slowly and stirring until the chocolate is smooth and a spreading consistency.

Can you give me any information as to where I may obtain books giving suggestions on short skits, entertainments, refreshments and things to make for a group of girls between the ages of 10 and 13 years? H. H.

Here are the titles of three books which I think would be helpful to you. "Fun With Cooking" by Mae Blocker Freeman (pub. by Randon House, N. Y.) has numerous show-how illustrations and recipes simple enough to guide the girls for an afternoon of cooking fun with no further instruction. "Party Book" by Betty Betz (pub. by Grosset & Dunlop, New York, 10, N.Y.) has refreshment ideas with recipes and suggestions for entertainment. It is written on the early teen age level—The girls would love it! "Year Around Party Book" by William P. Young and Horace J. Gardner (pub. by J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia) has party ideas, too, and it also has some suggestions for stunts. All of these books can be bought at local book stores.

I have a prewar aluminum kettle in which there is a coat of rust. However, the rust does not intermix with the water. Is there any way to remove the rust and may using the water from the kettle bring about any harmful effects? A. M.

Is this kettle a tea kettle in which water has been boiled for some time? If this is the case, the coating referred to is commonly called hard-water scale and is a combination of minerals from the water. If you use care, here is one method for removing it which may prove successful. Set the dry kettle on a low flame, allowing it to heat gently. The expansion of the aluminum as the kettle heats will usually cause the deposit to chip and become loose. Be sure to stand by throughout the entire process and do not continue heating more than 10 minutes. Another method is to fill the kettle with a solution of four cups of water to one cup of vinegar. Bring this to a boil and allow to stand overnight. If this removes some deposit, but not all, the treatment can be repeated.

Using the water from the kettle in which there is a deposit is not in the least harmful, unless, of course, you get a piece of the hard deposit into your food.

PETUNIA!

I don't know Whether It's liver
Or leather!

Take a note, Petunia! Don't salt liver BEFORE you fry it—salt it AFTERWARD. Salt causes liver in hot fat to toughen and shrivel.

Tie-Back Curtains

The best way to get the hooks even for the ties on tie-back curtains is to pull the window shade down to the place where you want the hooks to be and then let the bottom of the shade act as a ruler and place your hooks on either side of the window even with the shade. There is no guesswork needed.

Dash of Bitterness Adds Zest to Meal

Nobody likes a bitter dose, but a dash of bitter gives zest to many a dish—to mixed green salad, for example, or cooked greens. At this time of year the United States Department of Agriculture suggests that dandelion greens—now appearing in lawns, parks and open fields—offer a bit of refreshing bitterness and are free for the digging.

The old-fashioned method of long boiling of dandelion greens with several changes of water to remove the bitterness is frowned on by cookery specialists today. Much of the nutritive value of the greens is discarded with the water, and the long boiling causes loss of fresh flavor and color. A better way to avoid too much bitter is to choose the very young greens, which are only faintly bitter, and then blend them with other mild-flavored greens for salads or for cooked greens.

The Borrowed Vacuum

If you borrow your neighbor's vacuum cleaner, sweeper, etc., be sure to empty it before returning it to her. A bag full of dust is certainly not the reward for her kindness.

Longer Wear

Silks will last longer if soap is never applied to them directly when they are washed. Wash them in sudsy water and use a gently squeezing motion to wash out the dirt. Rinse well in lukewarm water several times.

Md. Special Assembly Has Busy Outlook

Annapolis, Md., May 11 (AP). — Two proposals are sure-fire bets for consideration at the May 25 special session of Maryland's General Assembly, but old hands say it's certain a variety of other measures will be pushed into the legislative hopper.

Governor Lane called the session yesterday, saying he would recommend a 10 per cent cost-of-living pay raise for most State employes.

A bill to accomplish that purpose is the main reason for a session.

Another included in the administration program would put up an additional $500,000 for State Welfare Department relief purposes next year.

Already other bills with willing sponsors have been mentioned as fuel for legislative action.

Some could stir up quarrels. Most are noncontroversial proposals which would settle lesser State problems, or local questions without having to wait for the next regular session in January.

Sen. L. Harold Sothoron (D., Prince Georges), majority floor leader, said he had called a conference next week to weigh a bill which would free the way for more Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission bonds.

Here in the home county of the State capital, Senator Wilbur R. Dulin (D., Anne Arundel) said he will press for two bills.

One would outlaw dog racing in Anne Arundel County, a proposal that provoked a controversy last winter.

The other bill, which Senate President Joseph B. Byrnes (D., Baltimore, Fifth) said has received considerable backing, would allow fire companies, community associations and church groups to conduct raffles for their own support.

Reports from Salisbury were that the Wicomico County delegation would seek a measure authorizing a $400,000 school bond issue. Officials in other counties have been talking about similar projects.

Court to Study Dubonnet Plea For Citizenship

District Court Justice Jennings Bailey yesterday took under advisement a plea from Mrs. Ruth Obre Dubonnet, 47, wife of a wealthy French wine producer, that her American citizenship be restored.

Mrs. Dubonnet, who is American-born but has lived many years in France, declared she became a French citizen in 1943 to protect her life from the Germans and to continue her humanitarian work as an ambulance driver. She was in fear of her life because the Gestapo had become suspicious about her falsely issued French citizenship papers which she had used up to that time, she contended.

Prosecutor Ross O'Donoghue argued that she had been friendly with high German officials during the war. At one time she was questioned by the Free French about collaborating with the Germans, he told the court.

Mrs. Dubonnet has been in the United States for the last two years, trying to regain her citizenship.

Boys' Testimony Jails Man on Larceny Charge

The testimony of three boys, who first called police when they saw Henry B. Boone, 33, of New York City getting the worst of a fight, sent him to jail for 210 days on an assault and larceny charge in Municipal Court yesterday.

The trio was playing at 5th and G sts. nw. Monday night when they saw Boone being struck on the head with a bottle, they told Judge Walter Casey. They called police, who broke up the brawl and left.

A few minutes later the boys said they saw Boone approach a man, sleeping on a bench, rip open his pocket and take $6 from his wallet.

They followed Boone to a cafe and kept watch outside after calling police a second time. The young sleuths, all aged 11 years, were Angelo Alvino of 427 4th st. nw., Anthony Vidotto of 112 E st. nw. and Joseph Ruffo of 624 4th st. nw.

New Law Provides Navy Funds for Monterey School

Legislation signed by President Truman provides $2,500,000 for purchase by the Navy of the Del Monte Hotel at Monterey, Calif., for use as a post-graduate school.

The funds are contained in the first deficiency appropriation bill and are to be paid to the Del Monte Corp. The Navy has leased the hotel since early in World War II.

Representative Bamblett (R., Calif.) said the Navy plans to enlarge its technical training program at Del Monte. He described the installation as "the Annapolis of the West."

Children Crusade Drive Explained

An introductory luncheon to explain the purposes of the Crusade for Children campaign was held here yesterday at the 400 Club, with representatives of some 60 civic, business, social, fraternal and governmental organizations attending.

It was announced at the luncheon that the opening campaign outdoor show, featuring Margaret O'Brien, MGM child movie star, will be held next Monday evening at the Sylvan Theater, on the Washington Monument Grounds. The campaign seeks to raise funds for food and medical care for distressed children in war-torn lands.

Variety Club Benefit Is All Romberg

By Paul Hume

Sigmund Romberg plays the piano, writes music, leads the band, MC's the show and hands out checks for $500.

Last night in Constitution Hall, he did all of these before a large audience headed by the President and Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Margaret. The occasion was a benefit concert for the Variety Club of Washington's welfare fund.

Three hours of Romberg may have exhausted lots of listeners, but the star of the show seemed as fresh as ever when it was all over. Gems from Victor Herbert, melodies from Tschaikowsky, pearls by Schubert, and plenty of Viennese waltzes made music alongside buckets of Romberg.

Four soloists bore down on a microphone to sing from opera and operetta, and a large orchestra turned on loud and soft music with and without direction from Romberg's hand. (Lots of conductors would never take the chance of letting their boys play without direction. It gives people ideas.)

Though the audience was not the size it might have been, announcements from the stage assured us that the Variety Club would be able to help shut-ins and needy children from the proceeds of the concert. At that point Romberg pulled out his own check for the half grand. What can you say to a man who has written so many people's favorite music when he starts handing out green stuff besides? So what if it is tax exempt? Who else is doing it these days but Sigmund Romberg, and writing music.

Three Sentenced For Assault in Fairlington Strike

Three former Fairlington strikers received prison terms yesterday in Fairfax County Circuit Court on charges of assaulting a nonstriking worker at the Arlington apartment development last December 13.

The former strikers, all of whom pleaded guilty, were Wilbert L. Roberson, 33, of 940 P st. nw., who received two years in the State penitentiary; Wilson Robinson, 48, of 3345 King st., Alexandria, and Edward M. Putman, 24, of 635 N. Washington st., Alexandria, who received one-year sentences.

The trio were charged in the assault on Charles H. Ball, 5809 N. Washington blvd., Arlington. In addition, Roberson was sentenced to six months for assaulting Bryant Tyree, 120 N. Henry st., Alexandria.

They were convicted last Monday on charges of assaulting Thomas O. Davis, 3035 Calvin st., Alexandria. All sentences will run concurrently.

Gambling Table Charge Results In Fine of $300

John W. Daugherty, 1866 California st., N. W., was fined $300 by Trial Magistrate William Wheeler yesterday on charges of setting up a gaming table.

Leroy Thompson, 43, 105 Geneva ave., Takoma Park, Md., was fined $100 on a charge of operating a disorderly house. Thompson said he would file an appeal.

Both men were arrested Sunday in a raid on 105 Geneva ave. address, with six other persons by Montgomery County Police.

The others charged with gaming each forfeited $7.50 collateral.

They were: Marvin Taylor, of 1211 Potomac st., nw.; Ernest C. Garnett, of 72 Ritchie ave., Silver Spring; Long, of Jones Mill rd., North Chevy Chase, Md.; James L. Byrd, of Wheaton, Md., and Kemon Jones, of 449 Newton st., nw.

Police said the men were found shooting craps.

Veterans Still Plugging Boom For Eisenhower

Veterans-for-Eisenhower yesterday announced that it is still plugging the Ike-for-President boom among the Nation's former GIs.

The announcement followed official word from New York that the National Draft-Eisenhower League of New York had formally given up the ghost.

"The 'V-E' movement is still very much alive," declared Dick Hawkins, 150 Wayne pl. se., codirector of Veterans-for-Eisenhower, which has national headquarters here at 3 Thomas Circle.

"V-E," Hawkins said, is nonpolitical, and seeking to organize pro-Eisenhower sentiment among the country's veterans. Through affiliates and contacts in 34 States, Veterans-for-Eisenhower have been stimulating a postcard barrage to the wartime military leader urging Ike to become a presidential candidate, according to Hawkins.

Jobless Veteran's Body Recovered At Waterfront

The body of a man taken from the Washington channel Monday was identified yesterday as that of James Bryant, 22, an unemployed carpenter of 72 L st. nw.

Identification was made by an uncle, Isaiah Field, 413 K st., who said the man had been discharged from the Army in 1945 after 11 months of service, but was unable to find work.

His father, the uncle said, is Oscar Bryant, of Goldsboro, N. C.

A death certificate is being withheld pending further investigation by homicide squad detectives. Police reported no marks of violence were found.

Death Truck Driver Gets 18 Months

An 18-month prison term was imposed yesterday on George A. Samuels, 28, District truck driver, after a Prince Georges County Circuit Court jury upheld a Hyattsville Police Court verdict in which Samuels was convicted of manslaughter.

The sentence was imposed by Judge Charles C. Marbury. Samuels, 426 4th st. sw., was convicted of driving the truck which struck and killed Thomas W. Sasscer, 61, of Baltimore, an employe of the Prince Georges County Engineering Department, last October 27 on Addison Chapel rd., near Fairmount Heights.

Following his conviction in the lower court, Samuels was sentenced by Judge Alan Bowie to two years in the Maryland House of Correction. He had been free on bond pending his appeal.

Samuels is the father of two children, whose mother died early last month as he was awaiting trial on his appeal.

In a similar case, Judge Marbury early this month assessed a fine but failed to impose a prison sentence on Clemmer B. Mills, 37, of Waldorf, Md., convicted in the death of a 10-year-old girl who was fatally injured by Mills' auto as she started to board a parked school bus. Judge Marbury said he felt "no useful purpose" could be accomplished by committing Mills to prison.

Naval Academy To Hold Service For Javelin Victim

Annapaolis, Md., May 11 (AP).—The Naval Academy's Third Battalion will act as escort tomorrow at funeral services for Midshipman George J. Eliopulos, 21, who was killed by a javelin on the athletic field.

Eliopulos

The academy said it would be the largest escort guard ever mustered for a midshipman's funeral. The entire junior class, as well as members of the athlete's battalion, will attend the services. Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, academy superintendent, and Capt. Frank T. Ward, commandant of midshipmen, also will represent his family.

Eliopulos died yesterday, 20 minutes after the javelin slipped out of another trackman's grasp and struck him in the neck. The other middie is under hospital treatment for shock.

The body will be sent to Rawlins, Wyo., home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Eliopulos.

Mrs. Keleher Asks Support by Spouse During Suit

Mrs. Anna T. Keleher, 38, of the Woodley Park Towers, yesterday asked District Court to order her husband John B. Keleher, of the Hotel 2400 to support her, pending the settlement of her suit for separate maintenance.

The separation suit was filed by her in March, 1947. In addition she has pending an alienation of affections suit for $250,000 filed against Mrs. Dorothy Blake, of the Dorchester House, and a suit to recover $6450 from Lawyer Charles E. Ford, which she maintains he converted to his own use while he was her attorney. Both suits were filed this spring.

In an affidavit, filed yesterday along with her motion for maintenance, Mrs. Keleher declared that her husband earns about $15,000 a month. Last month, he gave her only $325, the affidavit declared.

Police Pick Up 6 New York Boys Playing Hookey

Six boys from the Bronx, N. Y., aged 11 to 14, were picked up by District police last night.

The boys said they had stayed out of school and, fearful of parental wrath, pooled their allowances to a total of $15.50 and boarded a bus for Washington.

Here they went to the home of Richard Milstead, 21, of 1629 N. Capitol st., a cab driver whom one of the boys had met on a vacation last summer. Milstead notified police, who got in touch with the parents of the boys in New York.

Private School Addition Opposed By Alexandrians

The Alexandria City Council last night deferred until May 25 action on a request for a permit to build addition to the Congressional School, a private institution at 500 West Windsor ave.

The request, presented by John Barton Phillips, attorney, was protested by residents, who asserted real estate values would be reduced, and noise at recess would be "perfectly unbearable."

The council set up two new voting precincts to accommodate voters in the August primary. In the fifth ward, George Washington High School was named as a polling place in addition to Maurey School. A new polling place in the Sixth Ward will be the No. 2 Engine House. Mount Vernon School is the other sixth ward point.

Lecture on Archecture

A lecture on "The Earliest Spanish Architecture in the New World" will be given tonight at 8:15 in the art department of Catholic University. Speaker will be Dr. Erwin Palm, curator of colonial buildings in the Dominican Republic and professor of archeology, art and esthetics at the University of Santo Domingo.

Video Tower Permit Denied In Arlington

The Arlington County Board last night denied an application to build a 400-foot television tower in the county's Country Club Row area.

The application for a use permit to construct the tower and a television transmitter building was made by the A. B. Du Mont Laboratories, Inc., to transmit television programs for Station WTTG. It was proposed for the 3700 block of N. Upland st.

John E. Bland, president of the Country Club Row Citizens Association, told the county board the tower was "not strictly in keeping with the character of a residential neighborhood."

He said the tower would violate the area's height regulations and would not provide "essential services to the region."

Although they denied the use permit, county board members urged the Du Mont company to locate in Arlington County if some other more satisfactory area could be found.

Realty Men Give $286,000 Toward United Appeal

Washington real estate men and builders have contributed $286,000 to the United Jewish Appeal for overseas relief and Palestine aid.

The contributions were announced last night at a dinner of the real estate division of the drive at the Statler Hotel. Approximately $1,500,000 has now been raised in the month-old campaign.

Leo M. Bernstein and Frank J. Luchs, co-chairmen, announced that efforts would be made by the division to raise $400,000 before the conclusion of drive.

The apparel division of the United Appeal will hold a fund-raising dinner Thursday night at the Statler, and on June 4 a $36.60 luncheon will be held at the Mayflower by the women's division.

Marriage Voided For Failure To Consummate

London, May 11 .—Sir Donald Lesie Finnemore, a justice of the divorce court, ruled yesterday that a husband's practice of coitus interruptus in sexual relations with his wife is ground to nullify a marriage.

He granted a decree nisi of nullity to Mres. Mildred Ellen Grimes, whose husband, Walter Edward Grimes, did not contest the court action. They were married in September, 1946.

Justice Finnemore held that coitus interruptus—deliberate ending of intercourse before its completion—constituted willful refusal to consummate the marriage because it is not "natural or complete intercourse."

Unidentified Man Found Dead in Grass Near Tracks

A man's body was found yesterday shortly before 5 p. m. in tall grass near the New York ave. viaduct over the railroad tracks in Northeast Washington.

The body was taken to the morgue where an autopsy was to be held to determine the cause of death.

The man, apparently in his 40's, had no identification in his clothing. He was about 5 feet 7, chunky build and had receding light brown hair. He was wearing a green undershirt, white sport shirt, gray vest and gray jacket, tan trousers, black socks and a pair of scuffed sports shoes.

Police said the body was found by Connie Barnhart, 35, of 1127 4th st. nw., several feet from the sidewalk.

Father Identifies, Takes Home Girl Amnesia Victim

An 18-year-old girl who arrived in Washington Monday night unable to remember her name, was identified by her father yesterday and returned to her Jersey City, N. J., home.

The girl, Ruth Rupp, arrived at the Greyhound bus terminal, bewildered, unable to tell her name or explain why she was here.

Police found an identification tag in her pocketbook a driver's license, $25 in cash and a pay voucher on the Radio Corporation of America in Harrison, N. J. She was taken to Gallinger Hospital as an amnesia victim.

Her father, Earl Rupp, identified her at the hospital and told police she probably was "emotionally upset."

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Frail, Gray-Haired Old Grandma Solves a Problem

The gray-haired old lady was so burdened with parcels that she could hardly make her way aboard the streetcar.

Then she couldn't find her pass. She fumbled around for a while as the vehicle rocked along its route; finally she took a seat near the motorman, shifted gears on her bundles, and got her purse open.

After a good deal of exploration, she located the pass and held it up for the motorman to see. But the operator was busy with his controls and didn't notice her.

We were just beginning to feel sorry for the frail old lady who was having so many difficulties, when she put her fingers to her lips and let loose a shrill whistle worthy of a boy of 15!

The motorman turned, saw the pass, smiled his acknowledgement, and we proceeded on our way without further incident.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

You asked for suggestions regarding pleasant picnic areas.

May I suggest the park-like atmosphere along the new highway to Andrews Field, from Anacostia?

It is bordered by a nice stream, and has plenty of shade and wildflowers. It can be reached by driving out Nichols ave. se., or Branch ave. se.

While I'm writing, I'd like to tell you that I have a buddy (Robert Bear, jr., of Luray, Va.) who wants to become another Herblock.

His cartoons are really good, but he's never been able to break into print with them. Since you use poems and other exhibitions of local talent, why not use an occasional cartoon?

Gilbert Nielsen,

Dear Gil:

Okay, to help develop future Herblocks and Irwins, we'll print good cartoons whenever space permits.

It's always been my ambition to discover a big league cartoonist, so that I could sign the guy to an exclusive contract and then spend the rest of my life clipping coupons.

Bill

Above every traffic signal, there's a sign which warns:

Obey or Pay.

IT'S UP TO YOU

The tools of Fate are: thinking straight
With clear and lofty mind.
And doing all those little things
Like being ever kind.
But often in this stormy life
Some things are hard to bear.
A brave man takes himself in hand;
A weak man shows despair.
From birth to death, your Fate is sealed
By what you think and do,
And how you treat your fellow man—
It's really up to you.

NEW YORK.—This is a story told of Sir Oliver Franks, the new British Ambassador. When he was Provost at Queens College, Oxford, the crew—for the first time in almost half a century—won six bump races. This unusual victory called for the traditional bump supper given in celebration of the event. But because of some student infractions, Franks banned the supper . . . That night 200 students marched into the dining room. They carried an oar, draped in black, which was used 50 years earlier in the last race won by the crew. They sat at their tables in silence and nobody touched the food. Then they picked up the oar and marched out.

A Marshall Plan of Culture has been proposed to the State Department—a plan whereby designated backward nations, such as China and India, would be given the right to reprint American publications and adapt American films, without regard to international copyright.

Drew Pearson is being mentioned for a Nobel Peace Prize, for his Friendship Train project . . . The first book to be published by the new House of Kent will be "Yankee Doodles" by Milton Gross, a series of typewriter sketches about the New York Yankees . . . John Golden will start a campaign to make the Equity Library Theater a self-supporting enterprise. This program, one of the most remarkable in the history of the theater, has brought live shows to countless thousands, free of charge, who never had seen plays before. The performers, all members of Equity, rehearse three weeks—and work without pay.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Arabs Eye Abdullah Askance

By Drew Pearson

Arab leaders have been meeting secretly to plan for the invasion of Palestine, and some of them are not too happy. They don't particularly trust King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan, the central figure.

Pearson

King Farouk of Egypt, Ibn Saud of Arabia, and the Syrian government fear Abdullah will promote his own greater Syrian ambitions by annexing part of Palestine for himself, and then quit. These fears were increased by a recent secret meeting at Amman between Abdullah and his nephew, Prince Abdul-Ilah, the regent of Iraq. Arab leaders have also got wind of a secret British understanding with Abdullah, giving Trans-Jordan a permanent corridor to the Mediterranean near Gaza.

Final agreement on Arab invasion plans was reached at a secret meeting at Serka, Trans-Jordan, on April 23, attended by representatives of all the Arab states, and the Arab higher committee, including the Mufti. The main points of the agreement were:

The invasion army to be known as the "Arab League Palestine Army of Liberation." It will comprise the Arab Legion, supplemented by contingents from the regular forces of Egypt, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon and Saudi Arabia. The contingent from each country will number between 2000 and 3500 men. In addition, Egypt and Iraq agreed to supply air force units.

Abdullah was appointed supreme commander, with a general from each Arab state, and two Palestine Arab commanders under him. Gen. Ismail Safurt, British-trained commander-in-chief of the volunteer "liberation army," and Fawzi Al Kawkji, present field commander of Arab forces, are to be absorbed in the new headquarters at Jericho. Abdullah and the Mufti already have moved to Jericho. The Mufti's assignment is to watch Abdullah.

Arab states agreed at the secret meeting to finance the operation in proportion to their national resources, not in proportion to their contingents. Egypt is to bear the largest share; Iraq, which gets most of its money from England, is next.

D-Day was set for May 16, when a Palestine Arab provisional government is to be proclaimed and recognized by the Arab governments.

One significant statement at the meeting was made by the Grand Mufti, who interpreted the State Department's and United Nations' failure to become alarmed at previous Arab aggression as a guarantee they would not become excited over the invasion.

If the United States or the United Nations stiffened its attitude, however, it was agreed that Arab strategy might have to be changed.

Note—Since then, Arab leaders are reported worried over the Jews' ability to defend themselves. This may affect their ardor for invasion.

No 49th State

The Hawaiian statehood bill, which passed the House by a big majority, was secretly scuttled, 7 to 5, by the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee. Republican Senator Guy Cordon of Oregon and Democratic Senator Joseph O'Mahoney of Wyoming led the fight for making Hawaii the forty-ninth State, but were overridden behind closed doors by Senators Hugh Butler of Nebraska, the committee chairman; Eugene Millikin of Colorado, and other Republicans.

However, here is the pay-off. After voting down the statehood bill, the same Senators decided on another congressional junket to Hawaii—the fourteenth in the last five years—this time to investigate alleged communism in the islands.

Butler and GOP colleagues apparently were more interested in getting a vacation on the sands of Waikiki at the expense of taxpayers than in granting Hawaii's rightful claim to statehood.

Note—One unfortunate aftermath of the Senate action is that Hawaii's able delegate to Congress, Joseph Farrington, who was chiefly responsible for piloting the statehood measure through the House, faces defeat in the next election because his own political party knifed the bill in the Senate. Farrington is a Republican.

Real Estate Friend

Washington real estate spokesman, Senator Harry Cain, who tried to scuttle public housing in the Senate the other day, blew up a verbal hailstorm on the Senate floor.

In the thick of it were two fellow Republicans, Charles Tobey of New Hampshire and Ralph Flanders of Vermont.

"Last Friday," thundered Tobey, "he (Cain) stated that if we adopted his amendment, it would lessen the chances of the House adopting the general housing bill which the Senate passed unanimously."

Then, lifting his eyes to the rafters, Tobey appealed: "Are we going to commit hara-kiri? I ask you, sir!"

"Is it hara-kiri," cut in Flanders, dryly, "or Harry Cain?"

Note—Republican leaders in Washington State say that Cain has already committed political hara-kiri.

For you, my love

Whatever I may do today . . . Or I may dream tonight . . . I hope that it will help, my love . . . To make your moments bright . . . Because I owe so much to you . . . For all that you have done . . . To give me faith and courage in . . . The battles I have won . . . You have inspired me to live . . . A better life each day . . . And just your smile has been enough . . . To take my tears away . . . However dark the hour or . . . The shadow at my side . . . Your kindness has enabled me . . . To conquer every tide . . . And that is why my every dream . . . And all that I may do . . . Become the little daily prayers . . . I dedicate to you.
